endangered languages Documenting Endangered Languages Geoffrey Haig, Nicole Nau, Stefan Schnell, Claudia Wegener, 2011-11-30 The rapid decline in the world's linguistic diversity has prompted the emergence of documentary linguistics. While documentary linguistics aims primarily at creating a durable, accessible and comprehensive record of languages, it has also been a driving force in developing language annotation and analysis software, archiving architecture, improved fieldwork methodologies and new standards in data accountability and accessibility. More recently, researchers have begun to recognize the immense potential available in the archived data as a source for linguistic analysis so that the field has become of increasing importance for typologists but also for neighbouring disciplines. The present volume contains contributions by practitioners of language documentation, most of whom have been involved in the Volkswagen Foundation's DoBeS programme Dokumentation Bedrohter Sprachen. The topics covered in the volume reflect a field that has matured over the last decade and includes both retrospective accounts as well as those that address new challenges: linguistic annotation practice, fieldwork and interaction with speech communities, developments and challenges in archiving digital data, multimedia, lexicon applications, corpora from endangered languages as a source for primary data, typology as well as specific areas of linguistic analysis that are raised in documentary linguistics.

The Languages and Linguistics of Mexico and Northern Central America Søren Wichmann, 2024-12-16 The handbook provides a thorough survey of the languages pertaining to the Mesoamerican culture region, including a wealth of new research on synchronic structures and historical linguistics of lesser-known languages, also including sign languages. The volume moreover features overviews of recent research on topics such as language acquisition and the expression of spatial orientation across languages of the region.

Algonquian and Iroquoian Linguistics, 2002 Native American Language Ideologies Paul V. Kroskrity, Margaret C. Field, 2009-04-15 Beliefs and feelings about language vary dramatically within and across Native American cultural groups and are an acknowledged part of the processes of language shift and language death. This volume samples the language ideologies of a wide range of Native American communities from the Canadian Yukon to Guatemala to show their role in sociocultural transformation. These studies take up such active issues as insiderness in Cherokee language ideologies, contradictions of space-time for the Northern Arapaho language socialization and Paiute identity and orthography choices and language renewal among the Kiowa. The authors, including members of indigenous speech communities who participate in language renewal efforts, discuss not only Native Americans' conscious language ideologies but also the often-revealing relationship between these beliefs and other more implicit realizations of language use as embedded in community practice. The chapters discuss the impact of contemporary language issues related to grammar, language use, the relation between language and social identity and emergent language ideologies themselves in Native American speech communities. And although they portray obvious variation in attitudes toward language across communities, they also reveal commonalities, notably the emergent ideological process of iconization between a language and various national, ethnic and tribal identities.

As fewer Native Americans continue to speak their own language this timely volume provides valuable grounded studies of language ideologies in action those indigenous to Native communities as well as those imposed by outside institutions or language researchers It considers the emergent interaction of indigenous and imported ideologies and the resulting effect on language beliefs practices and struggles in today s Indian Country as it demonstrates the practical implications of recognizing a multiplicity of indigenous language ideologies and their impact on heritage language maintenance and renewal
