Making Government Work Electronic Delivery Of Federal Services:

Making Government Work United States. Congress. Office of Technology Assessment, 1993 This report published in its entirety OTA TCT 578 and in a summary form OTA TCT 579 containing only the first chapter of the complete report focuses on key topics and issues that are central to the successful use of electronic delivery by government The review conducted by the Office of Technology Assessment concludes that the movement toward electronic delivery of government services is accelerating but that many factors must be considered The greatest risks of electronic delivery are overlooking the human element and users needs which would further widen the gap between the technologically literate and the technologically illiterate and failing to capitalize on all the opportunities that partnerships among government agencies and the private sector could provide Changes that will be required in federal management are outlined and options for successful implementation of electronic delivery are sketched Many rely on the amplification of existing structures Five appendixes complement the complete report including a list of the 11 boxes 5 figures and 22 tables that illustrate the discussion and lists of acronyms and terms contributors field study participants and contractor reports The summary volume contains four tables and two boxes SLD Making Government Work ,1993 Making Government Work ,1993 Reinventing

Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry, 1994 The Changing Nature of Telecommunications/Information Infrastructure National Research Council, Computer Science and Telecommunications Board, Steering Committee on the Changing Nature of Telecommunications/Information Infrastructure, 1995-03-27

Advancement of telecommunications and information infrastructure occurs largely through private investment The government affects the rate and direction of this progress through regulation and public investment This book presents a range of positions and perspectives on those two classes of policy mechanism providing a succinct analysis followed by papers prepared by experts in telecommunications policy and applications The Digital Hand, Vol 3 James W. Cortada, 2007-11-06

In The third volume of The Digital Hand James W Cortada completes his sweeping survey of the effect of computers on American industry turning finally to the public sector and examining how computers have fundamentally changed the nature of work in government and education This book goes far beyond generalizations about the Information Age to the specifics of how industries have functioned now function and will function in the years to come Cortada combines detailed analysis with narrative history to provide a broad overview of computing's and telecommunications role in the entire public sector including federal state and local governments and in K 12 and higher education Beginning in 1950 when commercial applications of digital technology began to appear Cortada examines the unique ways different public sector industries adopted new technologies showcasing the manner in which their innovative applications influenced other industries as well as the U S economy as a whole He builds on the surveys presented in the first volume of the series which examined sixteen manufacturing process transportation wholesale and retail industries and the second volume which examined over a dozen financial telecommunications media and entertainment industries With this third volume The Digital Hand trilogy is complete and forms the most comprehensive and rigorously researched history of computing in business since 1950 providing a detailed picture of what the infrastructure of the Information Age really looks like and how we got there Managers historians economists and those working in the public sector will appreciate Cortada's analysis of digital technology's many roles and future possibilities Bringing health care online : the role of information technologies

, Intelligent Environments P. Droege, 1997-03-20 The environment as modified and created by people is largely about the use of information its generation and exchange How do recent innovations in the technologies of information management and communication affect our use of space and place and the way we perceive and think about our surroundings This volume provides an international exploratory forum for the complex phenomenon of new information and communication technology as it permeates and transforms our physical world and our relation to it the architectural definition of our surrounding geographical space urban form and immediate habitats This book is a reader an attempt at registering disciplinary changes in context at tracing subtexts for which most mainstream disciplines have no established language The project is to give voice to an emerging meta discipline that has its logic across the specializations A wide range of professionals and academics report findings views and ideas Together they describe the architecture of a postmodern paradigm how swiftly mutating the proliferating technology applications have begun to interact with the construction and reading of physical space in architecture economics geography history planning social sciences transport visual art but also in the newer domains that have joined this spectrum through the very nature of their impacts information technology and telecommunications The space navigated in this volume is vast both in physical terms and in its virtual and analogous form It ranges from the space that immediately encompasses or is simulated to encompass the human body as in buildings and virtual tectonics to that of towns and regions We stay clear of molecular scale space and of dimensions that are larger than earth
