Making Knowledge Visible:

Making Knowledge Visible Elizabeth Orna, 2017-03-02 This ground breaking book opens up new territory for knowledge and information management The only way we can make what we know visible to other people is by putting it into Information Products the products in any medium where users meet the information they need and gain access to the knowledge of others Without them little business would get done inside organizations or between them and the outside world They are essential for the flow exchange application and preservation of information and knowledge This is the first book to make the case for the proper recognition of information products by organizations It shows how they should support business objectives and processes and be incorporated into information strategy and information architecture illustrates the value they can both add and subtract identifies the full range of stakeholders in them and argues that a triple alliance of information management information systems IT and information design is critical for successful information products Stories from real life illustrate every step of the argument The final part of the book demonstrates how an actual organization used information auditing as a tool to develop a strategic information product for an important user community

Handbook on Knowledge Management 1 Clyde Holsapple, 2013-04-17 As the most comprehensive reference work dealing with knowledge management KM this work is essential for the library of every KM practitioner researcher and educator Written by an international array of KM luminaries its approx 60 chapters approach knowledge management from a wide variety of perspectives ranging from classic foundations to cutting edge thought informative to provocative theoretical to practical historical to futuristic human to technological and operational to strategic The chapters are conveniently organized into 8 major sections The first volume consists of the sections foundations of KM knowledge a key organizational resource knowledge processors and processing influences on knowledge processing Novices and experts alike will refer to the authoritative and stimulating content again and again for years to come Making Knowledge Visible Elizabeth Orna, 2005 Information products whether printed or electronic are the essential vehicles of knowledge without which communication and commerce cannot take place Organizations depend on them for successful internal and external interaction but their potential for increasing business value has been largely ignored This book is the first to define and explain information products and their management as the missing link between knowledge and information strategy on the one hand and design and presentation on the other It sets out what information products are and how they can add value if part of overall strategy shows how to audit what they should be doing and what they actually are doing for the company and presents a change programme for a better management approach which enables the company to get full value from them The book is written for senior managers responsible for information and knowledge management corporate communications and IT and for information professionals web developers and information designers Like Elizabeth Orna's book Practical Information Policies it is destined to become the passport to clearer thinking on a usually woolly and neglected area of management It is

The Confessing Society Andreas Fejes, Magnus Dahlstedt, 2013-05-02 I highly appreciate the quality of Fejes and Dahlstedt s research and writing They manage to present in a comprehensible way some essential concepts of Foucault that help us to understand better what practices of lifelong learning in a broad sense are emerging nowadays in advanced liberal societies In doing so they contribute to the renewal of critical thinking in education They convince me that such renewal is important and necessary and I think both theoreticians and practitioners of lifelong learning will equally recognize and value this analysis particularly also because they present a good mix of theory and practice Professor Danny Wildemeersch Today people are constantly encouraged to verbalise and disclose their true inner self to others whether on TV shows in newspapers in family life or together with friends Such encouragement to disclose the self has proliferated through discourses on lifelong learning through which each citizen is encouraged to become a constant learner The Confessing Society takes a critical stance towards the modern relentless will to disclose the self and argues that society has become a confessing society Drawing on Foucault's later work on confession and governmentality this book carefully analyses how confession operates within practices of lifelong learning as a way to shape activated and responsible citizens and provides examples of how it might be possible to traverse the confessional truth of the present time Chapters include Reflection and Reflective Practices Deliberation and Therapeutic Intervention Lifelong Guidance Medialised Parenting This controversial book is international in its scope and pursues current debates regarding trans national policy and to research discussions on education lifelong learning and governance and it will provoke lively debate amongst educational practitioners academics postgraduate and research students in education and lifelong learning in Europe North America and Australasia Socio-Technical Knowledge Management: Studies and Initiatives Handzic, Meliha, 2007-04-30 This book connects knowledge management theory to knowledge management practice allowing the empirical research presented to resolve challenges It provides a better understanding of the benefits and limitations of various socio technical knowledge management initiatives especially in the realm of social oriented knowledge culture communities initiatives and rewards measurement technology oriented knowledge repositories modeling rating alerting and discovery systems Provided by publisher Anthropology, by Comparison Richard G.
