Mitchell, 2012-08-08 Fifteen minutes before five o'clock on Good Friday 1998, Senator George Mitchell was informed that his long and difficult quest for an Irish peace accord had succeeded: the Protestants and Catholics of Northern Ireland and the governments of the Republic of Ireland and the United Kingdom would sign the agreement. Now Mitchell, who served as independent chairman of the peace talks for the length of the process, tells us the inside story of the grueling road to this momentous accord. For more than two years, Mitchell, who was Senate majority leader under Presidents Bush and Clinton, labored to bring together parties whose mutual hostility after decades of violence and mistrust seemed insurmountable. Sinn Féin, represented by Gerry Adams, the Catholic moderates led by John Hume the majority Protestant party headed by David Trimble Ian Paisley's hard line unionists and not least the governments of the Republic of Ireland and the United Kingdom headed by Bertie Ahern and Tony Blair The world watched as the tense and dramatic process unfolded sometimes teetering on the brink of failure Here for the first time we are given a behind the scenes view of the principal players the personalities who shaped the process and of the contentious at times vitriolic proceedings We learn how as the deadline approached extremist violence and factional intransigence almost drove the talks to collapse And we witness the intensity of the final negotiating session the interventions of Ahern and Blair the late night phone calls from President Clinton a last ditch attempt at disruption by Paisley and ultimately an agreement that despite subsequent inflammatory acts aimed at destroying it has set Northern Ireland's future on track toward a more lasting peace

Give Peace a Deadline Nathan Otto, Amber Lupton, 2009. For many, peace is an elusive dream. True advances toward this communal goal have been few. But this book bursts through the barrier of apathy to show individual readers how they can actually help achieve world peace in just five years. By adopting action through access, a trail-blazing approach to activism, the authors build on technological advances in both communication and collaboration to present a well-defined plan to end global conflict. By applying business disciplines such as professional management and result measurement to the peace-making process, Nathan Otto and Amber Lupton have ignited a revolution for global peace that will attract a broad range of peace seekers ready for immediate action and real results. Otto and Lupton don't just offer theories and concepts. Through connections with world leaders, major corporations, leading peace activists, and international media, the authors have developed a broad marketing platform for their peace program. And for readers who are ready to take responsibility for achieving peace, this is a beacon of hope in tumultuous times.
