Yemelianova, 2022-02-01 The book presents the first integrated study of the relationship between official Islamic leadership muftiship non official Islamic authorities grassroots Muslim communities and the state in post Communist Eurasia encompassing Lithuania Belarus Ukraine the Volga Urals Crimea the North Caucasus Azerbaijan and ex Soviet Central Asia It employs a history based perspective and compares this relationship to that in both the Middle East and Western Europe It argues that the nature and role of official Islamic leadership as well as state Muslim relations in most of the post Soviet lands have largely retained their particular national and broader Eurasian character which distinguishes them from what prevails in the Middle East and Western Europe At the same time the increasing political Europeanisation of Lithuania and Ukraine since 2014 and to some extent Belarus has accounted for their divergence towards the Western model of state Muslim relations Eurasia's Regional Powers Compared - China, India, Russia Shinichiro Tabata, 2014-12-17 Taking a long view and a wide perspective this book by Japan s leading scholars on Asia and Eurasia provides a comprehensive and systematic comparison of the three greatest powers in the region and assesses how far the recent growth trajectories of these countries are sustainable in the long run The book demonstrates the huge impact on the region of these countries It examines the population resource and economic basis for the countries rise considers political social and cultural factors and sets recent developments in a long historical context Throughout the different development paths of the three countries are compared and contrasted and the new models for the future of the world order which they represent are analysed Symbols and the Image of the State in Eurasia Anita Sengupta, 2016-10-14 This book discusses the significance of cultural symbols images in the nation building of Eurasian states that emerged out of the former Soviet Union It particularly focuses on the cases of Uzbekistan and Kazakhstan in the post Soviet era and argues that the relationship between nation and image building has been particularly relevant for Eurasian states In an increasingly globalized world nation state building is no longer an activity confined to the domestic arena The situating of the state within the global space and its image in the international community nation branding becomes in many ways as crucial as the projection of homogeneity within the state The relationship between politics and cultural symbols images therefore acquires and represents multiple possibilities It is these possibilities that are the focus of Symbols and the Image of the State in Eurasia It argues that the relationship between politics and cultural symbols images became particularly relevant for states that emerged in the wake of the disintegration of the Soviet Union in Central Asia It extends the argument further to contend that the image that the state projects is largely determined by its legacy and it attempts to do this by taking into account the Uzbek and Kazakh cases In the shaping of the post Soviet future these legacies and projections as well as the policy implications of these projections in terms of governmentality and foreign policy have been decisive Muslim Reformers and the Bolsheviks Naira. E

Sahakyan, 2022-03-31 This book explores how the Muslim scholars of Daghestan an important Muslim region within Russia experienced the 1917 Russian Revolution and how they attempted to gain religious and political authority in the new post imperial environment Covering the period between the February Revolution and the first massive repressions of the scholars of Islam it provides new insights into the complexities of the relations between Muslim reformers and Bolsheviks It challenges the prevailing view in Western scholarship that the relationship was antagonistic revealing that relations were pragmatic rather than ideological It argues that there was cooperation on issues of modern education and language policy and alliances against assumed common threats such as the British Wahh bis and local f s along with disagreements related to the Bolsheviks atheism and their concept of class struggle Overall it demonstrates that the Islamic reformist discourse in Daghestan although influenced by the wider Islamic debate at the turn of the twentieth century was an integral part of Soviet modernity Geographies of Muslim Identities Peter Hopkins, 2016-04-15 In recent years geographies of identities including those of ethnicity religion race and gender have formed an increasing focus of contemporary human geography The events of September 11th 2001 particularly illustrated the ways in which identities can be transformed across time and space by both global and local events of a social cultural political and economic nature Such transformations have also demonstrated the temporal and spatial construction of hate and fear and of increasing incidences of Islamophobia through the construction of Muslims as the Other As the social scientific study of religion continues to be marginalized within mainstream scholarship there remains an important gap in the literature This timely book addresses this gap by collecting a range of cutting edge contributions from the social cultural political historical and economic sub disciplines of geography together with writings from gender studies cultural studies and leisure studies where research has revealed a strong spatial dimension to the
