Selected Poems of Jay Wright Jay Wright, 1987 Transfigurations Jay Wright, 2000-11-01 Few poets have as much to tell us about the intricate relationship between the African American past and present as Jay Wright. His poems weave a rich fabric of personal history using diverse materials drawn from African, Native American, and European sources. Scholarly, historical, intuitive, and emotional, his work explores territories in which rituals of psychological and spiritual individuation find a new synthesis in the construction of cultural values. Never an ideologue but always a poet of vision, his imagination shows us a way to rejoice and strengthen ourselves in our common humanity. Here together for the first time are Wright's previously published collections: The Homecoming Singer (1971), Soothsayers and Omens (1976), Explications (1984), Interpretations (1976), Dimensions of History (1976), The Double Invention of Komo (1980), Elaine's Book (1988), and Boleros (1991), along with the new poems of Transformations (1997). By presenting Wright's work as a whole, this collection reveals the powerful consistency of his theme: a spiritual or intellectual quest for personal development as each book builds solidly upon the previous one. Wright examines history from a multicultural perspective, attempting to conquer a sense of exclusion from society and his own cultural identity and find solace and accord by linking American society to African traditions. He believes that a poem must articulate the vital rhythms of the culture it depicts and is dedicated to a pursuit of poetic forms that embody the cadence of African American culture. Defying characterization, Wright has experimented with voices, languages, cultures, and forms not normally associated with African American literature. He is well schooled in the cultures of West Africa, Europe, and the Americas, and true to his New Mexican birth, he is a powerful synthesizer of human experience. Transfigurations reveals Wright to be a man of profound knowledge and a poet of exalted verbal intensity.

Soul and Substance Jay Wright, 2023-06-06 Jay Wright is widely recognized as one of the most important American poets of the past half century. But in recent years, he has also written a series of unconventional essays that he calls examination papers, which he defines as designated inquiries to myself. In these linked essays, most of which resemble prose poems with only a few lines set on each page, Wright explores abiding artistic and philosophical concerns, including language, aesthetic form, knowledge, time, and death. Soul and Substance presents these pieces for the first time.

The Guide Signs Jay Wright, 2007 In The Guide Signs, acclaimed poet Jay Wright closes a movement he opened with his first book, The Homecoming Singer, in 1971, a movement that takes its design from the ancient people of Mali. Wright continued this theme in subsequent works, all gathered in Transfigurations: Collected Poems, whose eight books represent the eight master signs. The two books of The Guide Signs represent the primordial Nommo twins. All together, these ten books, as the ten earlier signs taken from the complete signs of the world, provide the base for the soul and life force given to everything. Wright encourages the reader to participate in weaving the fragile and fragmentary fabric of experience and to do what Horace Silver encourages his listeners to do: get down in the music with us.

The Way Down John Burt, 2014-07-14 For the sake of contraption like Frost and of character like Robinson John Burt will do a great deal and his scope and scansion require a great deal for his theme is nothing less than the reinvention of heroism King Mark Mary of Nazareth St Francis Paolo and Francesca Ariadne and the invention of a new heroics Woodrow Wilson Willard Gibbs As attentive to ekphrasis as to the sonnet s narrow room Burt feels what he knows and he knows that we can learn from the past only by repeating it A grand achievement Richard Howard Almost all these poems are narrative telling stories that turn on some small but crucial shift of sensibility One hears in them a speaking rather than a singing voice a voice which for all its formality and gravity remains oral and sociable a voice which tells things rather than spins charms Their predominant mood is lucid asperity sometimes breaking out into the angry Calvinism they always barely keep down sometimes striving to achieve a humane skepticism that always just eludes them The book consists of two sections one concerned with the cruxes and contradictions of private feeling the other with the unraveling of the public world Each section centers on a long narrative poem that culminates the building tensions of the poems that precede it and makes possible the resolutions that follow them Sonnet I from St Francis and the Wolf Saved at last not at the last of me I knelt two legged made of guttural air A little yelp to sound like human prayer The saints were cautious understandably I took the cup and managed not to drool But dreamed the wine was blood as I d been taught And vainly curbed the vain bent of my thought

The Two Yvones Jessica

Greenbaum, 2012-09-30 This is the second collection from a Brooklyn poet whose work many readers will know from the New Yorker Jessica Greenbaum's narrative poems in which objects and metaphor share highest honors attempt revelation through close observation of the everyday Written in plain American that cats and dogs can read as Marianne Moore phrased it these contemporary lyrics bring forward the challenges of Wisawa Szymborska the reportage of Yehuda Amichai and the formal forays of Marilyn Hacker The book asks at heart how does life present itself to us and how do we create value from our delights and losses Riding on Kenneth Koch's instruction to find one true feeling and hang on The Two Yvones overtakes the present with candor meditation and the classic aspiration to shape lyric into a lasting force Moving from 1960s Long Island to 1980s Houston to today's Brooklyn the poems range in subject from the pages of the Talmud to a squirrel trapped in a kitchen One tells the story of young lovers warmed by the rays Their pelvic bones sent over the horizon of their belts while another describes the Bronx Zoo in winter where the giraffes pad about like nurses walking quietly outside a sick room Another poem defines the speaker via a packing slip of her parts brown eyes brown hair from hirsute tribes in Poland and Russia The title poem in which the speaker and friends stumble through a series of flawed memories about each other unearths the human vulnerabilities that shape so much of the collection From The Two Yvones WHEN MY DAUGHTER GOT SICK Her cries impersonated all the world The fountain's bubbling speech was just a trick But still I turned and looked as she implored Or leaned toward muffled noises through the bricks Just radio whose waves might be her wavering whose pitch might be her quavering I turned toward where the sirens might be Save Me Help me Mommy Mommy everything She too had said since sloughing off the world She took to bed and now her voice stays fused To air like outlines of a bygone girl The streets the lake the room just places bruised Without her form the way your sheets still hold Rough echoes of the risen sleeper cold
