Four Overarching Patterns of Culture Robert Strauss, Christopher Strauss, 2019 Justice has been the dominant cultural framework of people in the West for two centuries ever since the rise of constitutional democracies Consciously or not most people in the West have a strong awareness of right and wrong Their sense of morality is generally rooted in an obligation to the rule of law In democratic societies the rule of law ultimately relies on constitutional documents ratified by a widely accepted process of development and implementation For millennia honor has been the dominant cultural framework of most people in the East and Middle East Here people know that speech and behavior display respect or disrespect While pervasive in all relationships honor and shame are most important in the family extended family and local community In the East honor is not necessarily an internal feeling as it is in a justice culture Honor is more often an external attribution bestowed by others rather than claimed by oneself Harmony is prevalent globally in indigenous cultures Many indigenous peoples do not distinguish between the supernatural and natural worlds All aspects of life are connected Interactions with spirit beings are the key to maintaining harmony in order to be secure Reciprocity is a common cultural framework in the Global South Here one learns to develop connections with the right people in given circumstances for needed resources These connections may or may not be characterized as friendships and provide not so much close friendships as reciprocal exchange In some places reciprocity is the means whereby one survives PATTERNS OF CULTURE RUSH BENEDICT, 1934 The Psychology of Culture Edward Sapir, 2011-03-01 This work presents Sapir s most comprehensive statement on the concepts of culture on method and theory in anthropology and other social sciences on personality organization and on the individual's place in culture and society. Extensive discussions on the role of language and other symbolic systems in culture, ethnographic method and social interaction are also included. Ethnographic and linguistic examples are drawn from Sapir's fieldwork among native North Americans and from European and American society as well. Edward Sapir (1884-1939) one of this century's leading figures in American anthropology and linguistics planned to publish a major theoretical statement on culture and psychology. He developed his ideas in a course of lectures presented at Yale University in the 1930s which attracted a wide audience from many social science disciplines. Unfortunately he died before the book he had contracted to publish could be realized. Like de Saussure's Cours de Linguistique Générale before it, this work has been reconstructed from student notes in this case twenty-two sets as well as from Sapir's manuscript materials. Judith Irvine's meticulous reconstruction makes Sapir's compelling ideas of surprisingly contemporary resonance available for the first time.

Patterns of Culture, 1989 Critics Against Culture Richard Handler, 2005

A collection of essays on the history of anthropology focused on Benedict and Ruth Sapir and modernist thought. It explores the roots of anthropology's involvement with the study of American society. They focus on the critique of mass society and the history of the culture concept and examine Boasian anthropologists as critics of mass society.
