German Combat Equipments 1939-45 Gordon L. Rottman, 2013-08-20 The field equipment of the German Army in World War II was closely related to that used throughout World War I and earlier. It was of relatively light weight ruggedly constructed well designed functional and generally of a high quality though this deteriorated in the later war years. A high degree of design standardisation was maintained in most categories of equipment though materials and their colours often varied widely. There were also many different specialisations for the various arms of service as well as theatres of combat such as the Afrikakorps in the Western Desert. This thorough and illustrated guide investigates all manner of German combat equipments throughout World War II from belt buckles to magazine pouches.

Expressive Arts Therapy for Traumatized Children and Adolescents Carmen Richardson, 2015-08-11 Expressive Arts Therapy for Traumatized Children and Adolescents is the book so many expressive arts and trauma therapists have been waiting for. Not only does it lay out an organized thorough framework for applying varied expressive arts modalities, it provides clear directions for the application of these modalities at different phases of treatment. Both beginning and experienced clinicians and students will appreciate the thoughtful analyses of ways for introducing expressive arts to clients, engaging clients with their art, being present to the art that is created and working within a particular session structure that guides the treatment process. Readers will also receive more specific learning regarding the process of using body focused and sensory based language and skills in the process of trauma treatment over time. They will pick up more than 60 priceless expressive arts assessment and treatment interventions that are sure to serve them well for years to come. The appendices feature these interventions as photocopyable handouts that will guide the therapist working with youth through each phase of treatment.
