Quaternary Extinctions Of Large Mammals:

Quaternary Extinctions of Large Mammals Daniel I. Axelrod, 1967 Quaternary Extinctions Paul S. Martin, Richard G. Klein, 2022-01-04 What caused the extinction of so many animals at or near the end of the Pleistocene Was it overkill by human hunters the result of a major climatic change or was it just a part of some massive evolutionary turnover Questions such as these have plagued scientists for over one hundred years and are still being heatedly debated today Quaternary Extinctions presents the latest and most comprehensive examination of these questions Geological Magazine May be regarded as a kind of standard encyclopedia for Pleistocene vertebrate paleontology for years to come American Scientist Should be read by paleobiologists biologists wildlife managers ecologists archeologists and anyone concerned about the ongoing extinction of plants and animals Science Uncommonly readable and varied for watchers of paleontology and the rise of humankind Scientific American Represents a quantum leap in our knowledge of Pleistocene and Holocene palaeobiology Many volumes on our bookshelves are destined to gather dust rather than attention But not this one Nature Two strong impressions prevail when first looking into this epic compendium One is the judicious balance of views that range over the whole continuum between monocausal cultural or environmental explanations The second is that both the data base and theoretical sophistication of the protagonists in the debate have improved by a quantum leap since 1967 American Anthropologist Twilight of the Mammoths Paul S. Martin, 2007-05-08 Paul S Martin s innovative ideas on late quaternary extinctions and wildlife restoration have fueled one of science s most stimulating recent debates He expounds them vividly here and defends them eloquently A must read David Rains Wallace author of Beasts of Eden This is a marvelous read by a giant in American prehistory about one of the greatest mysteries in the earth sciences Tim Flannery author of The Eternal Frontier Whether or not you agree with Paul Martin he has shaped how we think about our Pleistocene ancestors and their role in transforming this planet Ross D E MacPhee Curator of Mammalogy American Museum of Natural History

Encyclopedia of Biodiversity , 2013-02-05 The 7 volume Encyclopedia of Biodiversity Second Edition maintains the reputation of the highly regarded original presenting the most current information available in this globally crucial area of research and study It brings together the dimensions of biodiversity and examines both the services it provides and the measures to protect it Major themes of the work include the evolution of biodiversity systems for classifying and defining biodiversity ecological patterns and theories of biodiversity and an assessment of contemporary patterns and trends in biodiversity The science of biodiversity has become the science of our future It is an interdisciplinary field spanning areas of both physical and life sciences Our awareness of the loss of biodiversity has brought a long overdue appreciation of the magnitude of this loss and a determination to develop the tools to protect our future Second edition includes over 100 new articles and 226 updated articles covering this multidisciplinary field from evolution to habits to economics in 7 volumes The editors of this edition are all well respected instantly recognizable academics operating at the top of their respective fields in biodiversity research readers can be assured that they are reading material that has been meticulously checked and reviewed by experts Approximately 1 800 figures and 350 tables complement the text and more than 3 000 glossary entries explain key terms Mammalogy Terry A. Extinctions in Near Time Ross D.E. MacPhee,Hans-Dieter Sues,2013-11-09 Near time an interval that spans the last 100 000 years or so of earth history qualifies as a remarkable period for many reasons From an anthropocentric point of view the out standing feature of near time is the fact that the evolution cultural diversification and glob al spread of Homo sapiens have all occurred within it From a wider biological perspective however the hallmark of near time is better conceived of as being one of enduring repeat ed loss The point is important Despite the sense of uniqueness implicit in phrases like the biodiversity crisis meant to convey the notion that the present bout of extinctions is by far the worst endured in recent times substantial losses have occurred throughout near time In the majority of cases these losses occurred when and only when people began to ex pand across areas that had never before experienced their presence Although the explana tion for these correlations in time and space may seem obvious it is one thing to rhetori cally observe that there is a connection between humans and recent extinctions and quite another to demonstrate it scientifically How should this be done Traditionally the study of past extinctions has fallen largely to researchers steeped in such disciplines as paleontology systematics and paleoecology The evaluation of future losses by contrast has lain almost exclusively within the domain of conservation biolo gists Now more than ever there is opportunity for overlap and sharing of information Past and Future Rapid

Environmental Changes Brian Huntley,Wolfgang Cramer,Alan V. Morgan,Honor C. Prentice,Judy R.M. Allen,2013-06-29 Numerous experts including ecologists geneticists paleontologists and climatologists investigate the response of terrestrial organisms to changes in their environment The volume comprises an introductory and a final chapter by the editors as well as another 35 contributions These are divided into six sections 1 past environmental changes the late Quaternary 2 spatial responses to past changes 3 mechanisms enabling spatial responses 4 evolutionary responses to past changes 5 mechanisms enabling evolutionary responses 6 predicted future environmental changes and simulated responses The overwhelming and unanimous conclusion of all contributors is that forecasted global environmental changes pose a severe threat to the integrity of ecosystems worldwide and to the survival of at least some species Quaternary Extinction of Large Mammals Daniel

Isaac Axelrod,1967 Mass Extinction Ashraf M.T. Elewa,2007-12-03 The present book combines three main aspects five major mass extinctions contributions on some other minor extinctions and more importantly contributions on the current mass extinction All three aspects are introduced through interesting studies of mass extinctions in diverse organisms ranging from small invertebrates to mammals and take account of the most accepted subjects discussing mass extinctions in insects mammals fishes ostracods and molluscs The Ecology of Browsing and Grazing II Iain J. Gordon,Herbert H. T.

Prins,2019-11-12 Domestic and wild large mammalian herbivores occur on every continent except Antarctica Through their browsing and grazing they affect the structure and distribution not only of vegetation but also of associated fauna. Consequently the interactions between management practices and herbivore populations influence the biodiversity structure and dynamics of ecosystems across vast expanses around the globe, signs of human activity that will be detectable for epochs to come. As a follow up work to The Ecology of Browsing and Grazing published in 2008, this new volume presents cutting edge research on the behaviour, distribution, movement and direct and indirect impacts of domestic and wild herbivores on terrestrial ecosystems. The respective chapters highlight strategic and applied research on cross cutting issues in palaeontology and ecology and provide concrete recommendations on the management of large herbivores to integrate production and conservation in terrestrial systems. Given its scope, the book will appeal to students, researchers and anyone interested in understanding these fascinating wild animals and how they shape the natural world.

Corridors to Extinction and the Australian Megafauna Steve Webb, 2013-02-27. Extinctions have always occurred and always will, so what is so surprising about the megafauna extinctions? They were caused by humans and were the first of many extinctions that eventually led to the extinction of the Moa, Steller's Sea Cow, the Dodo, Great Auk and countless other species, great and small, all attributed to human agency. Therefore, the megafauna were humans' first great impact on the planet. There is now an increasing realization that the blitzkrieg view of these extinctions may have been wrong. A growing body of evidence and long term field work is beginning to show that at least Australia's megafauna did not succumb to human agency, not because humans probably did not hunt the odd animal, but because the infinitely more logical reason lies in the climatic conditions of the Quaternary Ice Ages and the affect they had on continental geography, environment, climate and most importantly, the biogeography of the megafauna. This book presents the evidence of this theory, demonstrating the biogeographic approach to Australia's megafauna extinction. Written clearly to benefit a diverse level of readers, from those with a passing interest to professionals in the field. Examines future climate change and its effects on the planet by looking at examples buried in the past. Presents new evidence from extensive field research.

The Human Impact on the Natural Environment Andrew S. Goudie, 2013-04-02. The seventh edition of this classic student text explores the multitude of impacts that humans have had over time upon vegetation, animals, soils, water, landforms and the atmosphere. It also looks into the future and considers the ways in which climate changes and modifications in land cover may change the environment in coming decades. Extensively re-written, it contains many new statistical tables, figures and references. It is essential reading for undergraduates in geography and environmental science and for those who want a thorough, wide ranging and balanced overview of the impacts of humans upon natural processes and systems from the Stone Age to the Anthropocene and who wish to understand the major environmental issues that concern the human race at the present time. Kansas Archaeology Robert J. Hoard, William E. Banks, 2006. Synthesizes what is known about the cultural human history of Kansas from 10,000 B.C. to the nineteenth century. This significant contribution to Plains archaeology provides the reader with the first comprehensive overview of the subject in nearly fifty years

Ice Age Extinction Jim Snook, 2008 The author explores the causes of Earth's cyclical temperature changes and shows how those temperature shifts touch off a chain of events in the atmosphere in the oceans and on land Cold temperature was the trigger and the resultant reduction in carbon dioxide he argues was the bullet that killed off so many species The re warming released more carbon dioxide into the atmosphere and fueled a resurgence This book provides significant long term background information to put global warming into perspective In addition the author describes the human responses to increases in atmospheric carbon dioxide after the last ice age and in the last 150 years Near the end of the last ice age atmospheric carbon dioxide was about half of what it is today Due to the lack of carbon dioxide most of the vegetation disappeared from the middle and high latitudes Without plants to eat many large animals became extinct North America lost three fourths of its large animals including the woolly mammoth mastodon and saber tooth cat Humans too had little to eat in these areas and their population declined dramatically The book then explains how and why atmospheric carbon dioxide increased by about 50% after the last ice age ended encouraging a population explosion among plants animals and humans all of which then migrated into many previously barren areas More recently the 28% increase in atmospheric carbon dioxide in the last 150 years has caused a six fold increase in the human population Changes in the next 300 years will reverse some of the current trends This book has value for anyone interested in the ice age extinction glaciers the glacial cycle the atmosphere and oceans and the past and future of plants animals and humans It provides long term information on atmospheric carbon dioxide global warming and cooling

Global Change and the Terrestrial Biosphere H. H. Shugart, F. I. Woodward, 2011-06-13 Global climate change challenges ecologists to synthesize what we know to solve a problem with deep historical roots in our discipline In ecology the question How do terrestrial ecosystems interact with the other earth systems to produce planetary change has sufficient depth to be the focal challenge This central question is sharpened further as the changes that we may be manifesting upon our planet's systems of land sea air and ice can have potential consequences for the future of human civilization This book provides the depth of the history of global ecology and reviews the breadth of the ideas being studied today Each chapter starts with a brief narrative about a scientist whose work traces forward into today's issues in global ecosystems The discussions are framed in a growing realization that we may be altering the way our planet functions almost before we have gained the necessary knowledge of how it works at all

Mammalian Evolution, Diversity and Systematics Frank Zachos, Robert Asher, 2018-10-22 There are nearly 6 000 mammalian species among them our own Research on our evolutionary cousins has a long history but the last 20 years have seen particularly rapid progress in disentangling the interrelationships and evolutionary history of mammals The present volume combines up to date reviews on mammalian phylogenetics with paleontological taxonomic and evolutionary chapters and also summarizes the historical development of our insights in mammalian relationships and thus our own place in the Tree of Life Our book places the present biodiversity crisis in context with one in four mammal species threatened by extinction and reviews the distribution and conservation of mammalian diversity across the globe This volume is the introductory tome to the new Mammalia series of the Handbook of Zoology and will be essential reading for mammalogists zoologists and conservationists alike

American Megafaunal Extinctions at the End of the Pleistocene Gary Haynes, 2008-12-23 The volume contains summaries of facts theories and unsolved problems pertaining to the unexplained extinction of dozens of genera of mostly large terrestrial mammals which occurred ca 13 000 calendar years ago in North America and about 1 000 years later in South America Another equally mysterious wave of extinctions affected large Caribbean islands around 5 000 years ago The coupling of these extinctions with the earliest appearance of human beings has led to the suggestion that foraging humans are to blame although major climatic shifts were also taking place in the Americas during some of the extinctions The last published volume with similar but not identical themes Extinctions in Near Time appeared in 1999 since then a great deal of innovative exciting new research has been done but has not yet been compiled and summarized Different chapters in this volume provide in depth resum s of the chronology of the extinctions in North and South America the possible insights into animal ecology provided by studies of stable isotopes and anatomical physiological characteristics such as growth increments in mammoth and mastodont tusks the clues from taphonomic research about large mammal biology the applications of dating methods to the extinctions debate and archeological controversies concerning human hunting of large mammals
