Robert Harbison, 2015-08-15 What is it about ruins that are so alluring so puzzling that they can hold some of us in endless wonder over the half erased story they tell In this elegant book Robert Harbison explores the captivating hold these remains and broken pieces from architecture art and literature have on us Why are we he asks so suspicious of things that are too smooth too continuous What makes us feel when we look upon a fragment that its very incompleteness has a kind of meaning in itself Is it that our experience on earth is inherently discontinuous or that we are simply unable to believe in anything whole Harbison guides us through ruins and fragments both ancient and modern visual and textual showing us how they are crucial to understanding our current mindset and how we arrived here First looking at ancient fragments he examines the ways we have recovered restored and exhibited them as artworks Then he moves on to modernist architecture and the ways that it seeks a fragmentary form examining modern projects that have been designed into existing ruins such as the Castelvecchio in Verona Italy and the reconstruction of the Neues Museum in Berlin From there he explores literature and the works of T S

Eliot Montaigne Coleridge Joyce and Sterne and how they have used fragments as the foundation for creating new work Likewise he examines the visual arts from Schwitters collages to Ruskin's drawings as well as cinematic works from Sergei Eisenstein to Julien Temple never shying from more deliberate creators of ruin from Gordon Matta Clark to countless graffiti artists From ancient to modern times and across every imaginable form of art Harbison takes a poetic look at how ruins have offered us a way of understanding history and how they have enabled us to create the new

Contemporary Theory of Conservation Salvador Munoz-Vinas, 2012-05-23 Classical theories of conservation are well known in the heritage community but in the last two decades thinking has shifted and classical theory has faced increasing criticism Contemporary Theory of Conservation brings together current ideas in conservation theory presenting a structured coherent analysis of the subject for the first time This engaging and readable text is split into 3 parts The first Fundamentals of conservation addresses the identity of conservation itself and problems arising when classical conservation theories are applied The second part Questioning classical theories delves deeper into the criticism of classical ideas such as reversibility This leads on to the creation of new paradigms such as sustainability which are covered in the final part of the book Conservation ethics

Curating Opera Stephen Mould, 2021-02-09 Curation as a concept and a catchword in modern parlance has over recent decades become deeply ingrained in modern culture The purpose of this study is to explore the curatorial forces at work within the modern opera house and to examine the functionalities and processes that guide them. In turn, comparisons are made with the workings of the traditional art museum where artworks are studied, preserved, restored, displayed, and contextualised, processes which are also present in the opera house. Curatorial roles in each institution are identified and described, and the role of the celebrity art curator is compared with that of the modern stage director who has acquired previously undreamt-of licence to interrogate operatic works, overlaying them with new concepts and levels of meaning in order to reinvent and redefine the operatic repertoire for contemporary needs. A point of coalescence between the opera house and the art museum is identified with the transformation towards the end of the nineteenth century of the opera house into the operatic museum. Curatorial practices in the opera house are examined, and further communalities and synergies in the way that works are defined in each institution are explored. This study also considers the so-called birth of opera around the start of the seventeenth century, with reference to the near-contemporary rise of the modern art museum, outlining operatic practice and performance history over the last 400 years in order to identify the curatorial practices that have historically been employed in the maintenance and development of the repertoire. This examination of the forces of curation within the modern opera house will highlight aspects of authenticity, authorial intent, preservation, restoration, and historically informed performance practice.

Guy Grey-Smith: Life Force Andrew Gaynor, 2012. Guy Grey-Smith (1916–1981) remains one of the most important Australian artists of his generation. His artwork has been collected by every major public gallery in the country. Based in Western Australia, Grey-Smith exhibited nationally, participated in key international exhibitions, received Queens Honours Awards, and was a spirited contributor and active participant in the national arts scene. Granted access for the first time to Guy Grey-Smith's notebooks, war-time sketches, correspondence, and estate, author Andrew Gaynor draws a fascinating portrait of a country boy whose life was first liberated, then stalled by the brutality of war. Teaching himself to draw while interned in prisoner-of-war camps, Grey-Smith went on to create some of the most enduring and powerful images of the Australian landscape, redolent with color, texture, and an unmistakable life force. He studied under the modernist sculptor Henry Moore at the Chelsea School of Art, London. Although primarily a painter, Grey-Smith also produced sculptures, pen and ink drawings, etchings, and wood blocks. This is the first book about this outstanding Australian artist and his remarkable 35-year career.
