Rushdie Red-Light Novels of the Late Qing Chloë F. Starr, 2007 Chloe Starr's book offers a comprehensive literary reading of six nineteenth century Chinese red light novels and assesses how and why they alter our view of late Qing fiction and the authorial self

Reconstructing Woman Dorothy Kelly, 2010-11 Reconstructing Woman explores a scenario common to the works of four major French novelists of the nineteenth century Balzac Flaubert Zola and Villiers In the texts of each author a new Pygmalion as Balzac calls one of his characters turns away from a real woman he has loved or desired and prefers instead his artificial re-creation of her All four authors also portray the possibility that this simulacrum which replaces the woman could become real The central chapters examine this plot and its meanings in multiple texts of each author with the exception of the chapter on Villiers in which only L'Eve future is considered The premise is that this shared scenario stems from the discovery in the nineteenth century that humans are transformable Because scientific innovations play a major part in this discovery Dorothy Kelly reviews some of the contributing trends that attracted one or more of the authors mesmerism dissection transformism and evolution new understandings of human reproduction spontaneous generation puericulture the experimental method These ideas and practices provided the novelists with a scientific context in which controlling changing and creating human bodies became imaginable At the same time these authors explore the ways in which not only bodies but also identity can be made In close readings Kelly shows how these narratives reveal that linguistic and coded social structures shape human identity Furthermore through the representation of the power of language to do that shaping the authors envision that their own texts would perform that function The symbol of the reconstruction of woman thus embodies the fantasy and desire that their novels could create or transform both reality and their readers in quite literal ways Through literary analyses we can deduce from the texts just why this artificial creation is a woman

Singing by Herself Amelia Worsley, 2024-08-15 Singing by Herself reinterprets the rise of literary loneliness by foregrounding the female and feminized figures who have been overlooked in previous histories of solitude Many of the earliest records of the terms lonely and loneliness in British literature describe solitaires whose songs positioned them within the tradition of female complaint Amelia Worsley shows how these feminized solitaires for whom loneliness was both a space of danger and a space of productive retreat helped to make loneliness attractive to future lonely poets despite the sense of suspicion it evoked Although loneliness today is often associated with states of atomized interiority soliloquy and self enclosure this study of eighteenth century poetry disrupts the presumed association between isolation singular speech and bounded models of poetic subjectivity In five chapters focused on lonely poet figures in the works of John Milton Anne Finch Alexander Pope Thomas Gray and Charlotte Smith which also take account of the wider eighteenth century fascination with literary loneliness Singing by Herself shows how poets increasingly associated the new literary mode of being alone with states of disembodiment dispersal and echoic self doubling Seemingly solitary lonely voices often dissolve into polyvocal allusive community Worsley argues when in dialogue with each other and also with classical figures of feminized lament such as Sappho Echo and Philomela The book's provocative reflections on lyric mean that it will have a broad appeal to scholars interested in the history of poetry and poetics as well as to those who study the literary history of gender affect and emotion

Reconstructing the Canon Arnold McMillin, 2021-06-15 This book first published in 2000 features analyses about and by some of the most important Russian writers of the 1980s a period of great changes in the cultural life of Russia when the controls of Soviet communism gave way to a wide diversity of unfettered writing A variety of critical approaches matches the diversity of Russian writers considered here The book features David Bethea's theoretical discussion of the work of the outstanding critic and scholar Iurii Lotman and a fascinating extending interview with leading poet Olga Sedakova Several writers and works receive their first scholarly analyses in English such as Sasha Sokolov's complex postmodern novel Between Dog and Wolf Elena Shvarts's poetry and Zinovii Zinik's work Aleksandr Zinov'ev's prose is subjected to a searching formal analysis The book contains an essay on the literary environment of the Moscow poet Mikhail Aizenberg and a highly controversial article that reviews Russian writing as an extension of imperialism Writers who for various reasons fell into opprobrium during the 1980s include the Soviet village writers and the late Andrei Siniavskii Abram Tertz A survey of urban prose in the late 1980s looks into an uncertain future while playwright Viktor Slavkin represents the best of contemporary Russian drama
