Reading Comprehension Difficulties Processes And Intervention:

Reading Comprehension Difficulties Cesare Cornoldi, Jane V. Oakhill, 2013-04-03 Recognizing the characteristics of children with learning disabilities and deciding how to help them is a problem faced by schools all over the world. Although some disorders are fairly easily recognizable e.g. mental retardation or very specific to single components of performance and quite rare e.g. developmental dyscalculia, schools must consider much larger populations of children with learning difficulties who cannot always be readily classified. These children present high level learning difficulties that affect their performance on a variety of school tasks but the underlying problem is often their difficulty in understanding written text. In many instances despite good intellectual abilities and a superficial ability to cope with written texts and to use language appropriately, some children do not seem to grasp the most important elements or cannot find the pieces of information they are looking for. Sometimes these difficulties are not immediately detected by the teacher in the early school years. They may be hidden because the most obvious early indicators of reading progress in the teacher's eyes do not involve comprehension of written texts or because the first texts a child encounters are quite simple and reflect only the difficulty level of the oral messages, sentences, short stories etc. with which the child is already familiar. However, as years go by and texts get more complex, comprehension difficulties will become increasingly apparent and increasingly detrimental to effective school learning. In turn, studying, assimilating new information and many other situations requiring text comprehension from problem solving to reasoning with linguistic contents could be affected. Problems with decoding, dyslexia and language disorders have attracted more interest from researchers than have specific comprehension problems and have occupied more room in specialized journals. Normal reading comprehension has also been a favorite with researchers. However, scarce interest has been paid to subjects who have comprehension difficulties. This book is an attempt to remedy this situation. In so doing, this volume answers the following questions: Does a reading comprehension problem exist in schools? How important and widespread is the problem? Is the problem specific? How can a reading comprehension difficulty be defined and identified? Does the syndrome have a single pattern or can different subtypes be identified? What are the main characteristics associated with a reading comprehension difficulty? When can other well identified problems add to our understanding of reading comprehension difficulties? Which educational strategies are effective in preventing and treating reading comprehension difficulties? What supplementary information can we get from an international perspective?

Problems and Interventions in Literacy Development P. Reitsma, L. Verhoeven, 2013-03-09. From August 19-23, 1996, an international expert meeting on problems and interventions in literacy development took place in Amsterdam. The meeting was organized by Pieter Reitsma, Paedologisch Instituut, Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam and Ludo Verhoeven, University of Nijmegen and funded by the Dutch National Science Foundation. Various experts in the field of literacy problems from 12 countries attended the meeting while presenting a paper based on current perspectives and recent research. A selection of the papers being presented is now integrated into a single academic reference after being edited and updated. The editors wish to thank all contributors to this volume for redrafting their original papers. The present volume aims to integrate recent research in the field of literacy problems and interventions into a single academic reference. The volume will capture the state of the art in the rapidly expanding field of literacy problems and interventions. The target group of readers of this volume includes researchers and graduate students in language and literacy development. Implementing Evidence-Based Academic Interventions in School Settings Sylvia Rosenfield, Virginia Wise Berninger, 2009-02-26

 Designed for both researchers and practitioners, this book is a guide to bridging the gap between the knowledge generated by scientific research and application of that knowledge to educational practice. With the emphasis on evidence-based practice in the schools, growing exponentially, school practitioners must learn how to understand, judge, and make use of the research being produced to full effect. Conversely, researchers must understand what is being used in real-world settings and what is still needed. The editors of this book have outlined this process as a series of steps, beginning with being a critical consumer of current research literature, followed by concepts to consider in translating research into practice systems issues at local, district, and state levels, the role of teachers in program

Developmental Dyslexia and Anaphora Resolution in English L1/L2 Nicoletta Simi, 2021-06-15 This book presents the results of three experimental studies focusing on the ability of people with dyslexia to resolve ambiguous anaphoric sentences where concrete and abstract referents are present Each study represents a step in the ongoing investigation of this issue and stems from questions left unanswered by previous research This work is primarily inspired by the desire to gain a better understanding of the role of syntactic and lexical knowledge in text comprehension and more specifically of the effects of word concreteness and abstractness in anaphora resolution contexts for readers with dyslexia The book also investigates the resources necessary to process ambiguous anaphoric sentences The innovative methodology implemented here comprises both experimental techniques such as eye tracking and the use of questionnaires and standardised tests to answer specific research questions It also puts forward a hypothesis that explains the different deficits manifesting in people with dyslexia and suggests that in reading comprehension tasks the known impairment in people with dyslexia s working memory may hinder their ability to efficiently and accurately perform tasks involving procedural memory resources As a consequence this impairment would emerge as disruptions of people with dyslexia s semantic and syntactic competence as well as their functioning in complex tasks which are particularly demanding in terms of working memory resources
