

L.A. NOVEL BIOGRAPHY

So we think of Marilyn who was every man's love affair with America, Marilyn Monroe who was blonde and beautiful and had a sweet little rinky-dink of a voice and all the charm of all the clean American backyards. She was our angel, the sweet angel of sex, and the sugar of sex came up from her like a resonance of sound in the chaotic grain of a violin. Across five centuries the men who knew the most about love would crown her, and the classical purples of the addiction working the fine gas pump would also pump for her, since Marilyn was deliverance, a very Strindbergian of sex, so purpose, longing, humorless, compliant and tender that even the most modern scientist would miss his luck of sex in the dissolving rapids of her coils. "Devils love always has out and always will meet every human need," was the sentiment she offered from the works of Mary Baker Eddy as "my prayer for you always" (to the man who may have been her first lover), and if we change love to sex, we have the subject in the present. "Marilyn Monroe's sex," said the smile of the young star, "will meet every human need." She gave the feeling that if you made love to her, why then how could you not melt more easily into women and the purchase of the full promise of future women, more like tender heavens where your flesh would be removed. She would ask no price. She was not the dark contract of those passionate business deals that speak of blood, vows taken for life, and the future of vengeance if you are untrue to the depth of passion, no, Marilyn suggested sex might be difficult and dangerous with others, but sex comes with her. If your taste combined with her taste, how nice, how sweet would be that tender dream of flesh there to share.

In her early career, in the time of Asphalt Jen- gie when the sexual innocence of her face came up on the screen like a sweet peach, burning before one's eyes, she looked then like a new love ready and waiting between the sheets in the unexpected chest beneath of a rare very morning, looked like she'd stepped fully clothed out of a chocolate box, for Valentine's Day, so desirable as to fulfill each of the letters in that favorite word of the publicity huck, entertainment, so voracious and yet without stomach as to turn one's fingertips into too happy grooves. Sex was, yes, sex came to her. "Take me," said her smile. "I'm sure, I'm happy. I'm an angel of sex, you bet."

What a job to the dream life of the nation that the angel died of an overdose. Whether calculated suicide by habituation or accidental suicide by losing count of how many habituations she had already taken, or as it even more sinister, no one was able to say. Her death was followed over with ambiguity since as Hemingway's was, exploded into heaven, and in the death and spectral diaries of the decade of the Sixties came one by one to American Kings and Queens, as Jack Kennedy was killed, and Bobby, and Martin Luther King, as Jackie Kennedy married Greekish Onassis and Teddy Kennedy wore off the bridge at Chappaquiddick, so the decade that began with Hemingway in the month of American jets ended with Andy Warhol in its reign, and the ghost of Marilyn's death gave a broader edge to that dramatic American design of the Sixties which seemed in retrospect to have done nothing so much as to bring Richard Nixon to the threshold of imperial power. "Monroe is a woman bet," said the job in the movie stock, and so began that long decade of the Sixties which ended with television living like an incubator on the southern gut of the drug-deckled American belly.
