Tattooing the World Juniper Ellis, 2008-03-03 In the 1830s an Irishman named James F O Connell acquired a full body tattoo while living as a castaway in the Pacific The tattoo featured traditional patterns that to native Pohnpeians defined O Connell s life they made him wholly human Yet upon traveling to New York these markings singled him out as a freak His tattoos frightened women and children and ministers warned their congregations that viewing O Connell s markings would cause the ink to transfer to the skin of their unborn children In many ways O Connell s story exemplifies the unique history of the modern tattoo which began in the Pacific and then spread throughout the world No matter what form it has taken the tattoo has always embodied social standing aesthetics ethics culture gender and sexuality Tattoos are personal and corporate private and public They mark the profane and the sacred the extravagant and the essential the playful and the political From the Pacific islands to the world at large tattoos are a symbolic and often provocative form of expression and communication Tattooing the World is the first book on tattoo literature and culture Juniper Ellis traces the origins and significance of modern tattoo in the works of nineteenth and twentieth century artists travelers missionaries scientists and such writers as Herman Melville Margaret Mead Albert Wendt and Sia Figiel Traditional Pacific tattoo patterns are formed using an array of well defined motifs They place the individual in a particular community and often convey genealogy and ideas of the sacred However outside of the Pacific those who wear and view tattoos determine their meaning and interpret their design differently Reading indigenous historiography alongside Western travelogue and other writings Ellis paints a surprising portrait of how culture has been etched both on the human form and on a body of literature

Hydrogeology and Ground-water Resources of Ngatik Island, Sapwuahfik Atoll, State of Pohnpei, Federated States of Micronesia Stephen S. Anthony,1996 Naturalized Reptiles and Amphibians of the World Christopher Lever,2003

This book describes how the various alien reptiles and amphibians now living in the wild throughout the world were first introduced how they subsequently became naturalized their present distribution and status in those countries to which they were introduced and their ecological and socio economic impact if any on the native biota and local economies Many species have had a more or less neutral impact being neither beneficial nor harmful However several have had a positive ecological or socio economic impact while some such as the cane toad have had an extremely destructive effect The criteria for inclusion of a species are that it should have been imported from its natural range to a new country by human agency either accidentally or deliberately and that it should currently be established in the wild in self maintaining and self perpetuating populations unsupported by and independent of mankind
