Building States Eva-Maria Muschik, 2022-04-13 Postwar multilateral cooperation is often viewed as an attempt to overcome the limitations of the nation state system However in 1945 when the United Nations was founded large parts of the world were still under imperial control Building States investigates how the UN tried to manage the dissolution of European empires in the 1950s and 1960s and helped transform the practice of international development and the meaning of state sovereignty in the process Eva Maria Muschik argues that the UN played a key role in the global proliferation and reinvention of the nation state in the postwar era as newly independent states came to rely on international assistance Drawing on previously untapped primary sources she traces how UN personnel usually in close consultation with Western officials sought to manage decolonization peacefully through international development assistance Examining initiatives in Libya Somaliland Bolivia the Congo and New York Muschik shows how the UN pioneered a new understanding and practice of state building presented as a technical challenge for international experts rather than a political process UN officials increasingly took on public policy functions despite the organization's mandate not to interfere in the domestic affairs of its member states These initiatives Muschik suggests had lasting effects on international development practice peacekeeping and post conflict territorial administration Casting new light on how international organizations became major players in the governance of developing countries Building States has significant implications for the histories of decolonization the Cold War and international development

providing an essential reference source for the student of the Arab Israeli conflict and its long history Racial Imagination and the American Dream Charles P. Henry, 2023-08-25 Although the phrase the American Dream dates from the 1930s the concept or idea of the American Dream is as old as the country The values proclaimed in the Declaration of Independence and reaffirmed and extended in the Gettysburg Address have been continuously promoted by every American president Moreover they form the basis of our national collective narrative as expressed through both elite and popular culture The American Dream is intrinsically tied to the American Creed and American Exceptionalism It is the foundation of our national identity the glue that holds together our individual aspirations Yet until the mid twentieth century the American Dream excluded African Americans We as a nation as an imagined community could not imagine an integrated multiracial society with Blacks and Whites living together as equals By examining the lives of the only three African American Nobel Peace Prize winners we can see how their lives were shaped by the American Dream and how their success was used to deny the structural racism that prevented others from achieving the American Dream Ralph Bunche as a role model of academic and technical expertise Martin Luther King Jr as a model race leader and Barack Obama as a political leader provide a window on the changing meaning of the American Dream In conclusion Haiti is presented as a failed example of an attempt to export the American Dream in the form of American Exceptionalism and racial reparations are reimaged as a radical democratic project aimed at true global integration and justice Beyond the Boundaries Karin L.
