The Range Site John Edward Kelly, 1987 The Range Site, 1987 Late Woodland Societies Thomas E. Emerson, Dale L. McElrath, Andrew C. Fortier, 2000-01-01 Archaeologists across the Midwest have pooled their data and perspectives to produce this indispensable volume on the Native cultures of the Late Woodland period approximately A D 300 1000 Sandwiched between the well known Hopewellian and Mississippian eras of monumental mound construction the Late Woodland period has received insufficient attention from archaeologists who have frequently characterized it as consisting of relatively drab artifact assemblages The close connections between this period and subsequent Mississippian and Fort Ancient societies however make it especially valuable for cross cultural researchers Understanding the cultural processes at work during the Late Woodland period will yield important clues about the long term forces that stimulate and enhance social inequality Late Woodland Societies is notable for its comprehensive geographic coverage exhaustive presentation and discussion of sites artifacts and prehistoric cultural practices and critical summaries of interpretive perspectives and trends in scholarship The vast amount of information and theory brought together examined and synthesized by the contributors produces a detailed coherent and systematic picture of Late Woodland lifestyles across the Midwest The Late Woodland can now be seen as a dynamic time in its own right and instrumental to the emergence of complex late prehistoric cultures across the Midwest and Southeast The Woodland Ridge Site and Late Woodland Land Use in the Southern American Bottom Brad Koldehoff, 2002 Archaic Societies Thomas E. Steere, 2017-04-11 This book explores changes in houses and households in the southeastern United States from the Woodland to the Historic Indian Period ca 200 B C to A D 1800 Most studies of domestic architecture in the Southeast have been conducted at the single site scale As a result broader spatial and temporal patterns of variation in houses and households are not well understood To address this problem Steere constructed a database that catalogues the architectural features of 1 258 structures from 65 sites in the Southern Appalachian region and surrounding areas Significant trends identified by this comparative study include changes in the size and spacing of houses changes in architectural investment and a secular trend toward the increasing segmentation of houses Using a theoretical framework developed from household archaeology and anthropology Steere argues that certain aspects of this architectural variation can be explained by changes in household economics and household composition symbolic behavior status differentiation and settlement patterning More generally he proposes that large scale patterns of diachronic and synchronic variation in domestic architecture are best explained by changes in social organization Provided by publisher

Archaeology of Households, Kinship, and Social Change Lacey B. Carpenter, Anna Marie Prentiss, 2021-11-24 Archaeology of Households Kinship and Social Change offers new perspectives on the processes of social change from the standpoint of household archaeology This volume develops new theoretical and methodological approaches to the archaeology of households pursuing three critical themes household diversity in human residential communities with and without archaeologically identifiable houses interactions within and between households that explicitly considers impacts of kin and non kin relationships and lastly change as a process that involves the choices made by members of households in the context of larger societal constraints Encompassing these themes authors explore the role of social ties and their material manifestations within the house dwelling or other constructed space how the household relates to other social units how households consolidate power and control over resources and how these changes manifest at multiple scales The case studies presented in this volume have broader implications for understanding the drivers of change the ways households create the contexts for change and how households serve as spaces for invention reaction and or resistance Understanding the nature of relationships within households is necessary for a more complete understanding of communities and regions as these ties are vital to explaining how and why societies change Taking a comparative outlook with case studies from around the world this volume will inform students and professionals researching household archaeology and be of interest to other disciplines concerned with the relationship between social networks and societal change
