Ratification Of The Single European Act:

Constitutional Law of Ireland Michael Forde, David Leonard, 2016-10-14 Originally written for the fiftieth anniversary of the Constitution of Ireland this book is an account of how the Constitution's requirements have been implemented by the legislature and interpreted by the courts. In this way it provides an integrated and contextual account of constitutional law in Ireland. It goes as far as to place it in context of some foreign constitutions especially the Constitutions of the United States, France, Germany and the United Kingdom as indeed the Irish courts refer frequently to other countries for guidance in interpreting the Constitution. The book largely falls into four parts. The first few chapters are introductory and cover the drafting and adoption of the Constitution, some features of the State and its citizens and the judicial review of laws. The next few chapters deal with the various institutions of government and with the activities of the State in the international arena and in relation to fiscal matters. Then following on from this there are a number of chapters which consider what may be termed the various civil liberties and rights. There is a final brief section towards the end of the book which deals with the various legal breaches of the Constitution. This new edition has been extensively rewritten to account for the enormous changes to take into account the tumultuous changes in Irish Constitutional Law in the intervening years. Challenges to articles, referenda, new legislation and cases are all judicially considered. Michael Forde and David Leonard offer the reader everything they need to know on this complex subject.

The Politics of Ratification of EU Treaties Carlos Closa, 2013-09-02 Since its inception the European Union (EU) has revised its foundational treaties several times, resulting in national ratification processes involving different actors with varying success. This book focuses on the politics of ratification of EU Treaties and reviews the processes of ratification of EU primary legislation. Existing research and academic debate on EU constitutional politics have almost exclusively focussed on negotiation of new treaties and their institutional setting. However, this book explains how the result of ratification was achieved and analyses the strategy that actors pursue across Europe. Ratification of the Treaty of Maastricht and the EU Constitution failed totally, whilst other ratification can be considered partial failures such as the Irish, Nice and Lisbon referendums. As the EU Constitution has proved, the ratification process may have deep effects unforeseen during the processes of negotiation. In recent years, ratification has produced some of the most intense debates on national membership of the EU and the EU itself. The Politics of Ratification of EU Treaties will be of interest to students and researchers of European Studies, European Union studies, European Union Law and European Union Politics.

National Constitutions and EU Integration Stefan Griller, Lina Papadopoulou, Roman Puff, 2022-08-25 Do individual constitutions and the legal cultures underlying them pose an obstacle to future EU integration? This ambitious collection brings together reports from all the European Member States systematically setting out their individual constitutional guarantees. In doing so, it tracks possible roadblocks to the future evolution of European integration. Written by recognised authorities in each Member State, it offers an authoritative and rigorous overview of the European Union's constitutional landscape. Its single-structure approach allows for comparison while maintaining consistency. It will become the standard reference work for academics, students and practitioners in the field of European Union law and integration.

European Integration as an Elite Process Max Haller, 2008-05-05 Max Haller's impressive book presents an analysis of the process of European integration which keeps the relation between elites and citizens at the forefront. It is shown on the basis of new empirical data surveys interviews analyses of documents and biographies that European integration has been led since the beginning by the elites and that today there exists a considerable split between elites and citizens this split is becoming more profound in the course of time The book covers the following themes the structure interests and behaviour of the different elites political economic bureaucratic the expectations and perceptions of the populations concerning the integration process and the elites the strategies of the elites to win the consent of the people in view of widespread scepticism proposals for reform of the EU especially with regard to a strengthening of democratic elements which could reduce the split between elites and citizens A timely and original read this book will be a useful addition to the library of any political sociologist political scientist or scholar of European integration
