SPIRITUAL ART THERAPY Ellen G. Horovitz, 2002-01-01 In this book therapists are urged to take into account the existence of spiritual aspects of personality both in terms of making proper assessments and more focused treatment plans for people under their care. Although addressing itself chiefly to art therapists, the thrust of the text is an attempt to sensitize all clinical practitioners to the spiritual dimensions of therapy. By drawing on sources in the literature of religion, psychodynamics, systems theory, sociology, art, and ethics, the author lays a foundation for discovering and measuring clients' spiritual sensibilities and search for personal meaning of their relationship to God. Chapter 1 discusses the evolution of the book and how the author embarked upon the inclusion of the spiritual dimension in assessment and treatment. Chapter 2 reviews the literature that encircles art therapy, mental health, and spirituality and explores its impact. Chapter 3 examines the Belief Art Therapy Assessment (BATA). Chapter 4 highlights the interviews and use of the BATA with clergy, while Chapter 5 explores its use with a normal adult artist population. Chapter 6 looks at spiritual art therapy with emotionally disturbed children and youth in residential treatment. Chapter 7 offers a case vignette of spiritual art therapy with a suicidal anorectic bulimic. Chapter 8 summarizes the author's position and theosophy, while Chapter 9 examines the use of phototherapy as a means to investigate mourning and loss issues. The final chapter explores humankind's search for inner and outer meaning after the tragedy of September 11. In addition to art therapists, this unique book will be useful to mental health workers, social workers, educational therapists, pastoral counselors, psychologists, psychiatrists, and other creative arts therapists.

A LEAP OF FAITH Ellen G. Horovitz, 1999-01-01. In this new book A Leap of Faith: The Call to Art, Horovitz examines the diverse and convergent roles of the therapist as artist, writer, mother, teacher, and clinician. This new book questions what is essential in art therapy and engages authentic positioning in and out of the therapeutic office. This return to art or the call to art changed the author's identity and efficacy as a therapist. Artwork, fiction, and clinical work transform as insight occurs. The casework throughout the book provides models for integrating the assessment and intuitive features of art therapy, educator, and clinician. Horovitz's own work and that of her clients is shared without guile. In this book, the myth of clinician neutrality is broken, and instead, the author's focus is on bringing one's conscious self to work in order to become more authentic with oneself and one's clients. This state of elemental play perpetuates that connection with the patient as another human being on the trajectory towards wellness. The fundamental process of art making that guides personal and professional life is described as elemental play. Play is seen as the intrinsic element of the art making process that offers directions for resolution of conflicts, the evolution of personal growth, and ultimately, soulution. This concept of an artistic soulution offers the necessary elements of healing and transformation. For any reader, whether trained in art therapy or not, A Leap of Faith: The Call to Art validates the transcendent aspects of art, creativity, and play.

Treating Attachment Pathology Jon Mills, 2005 This book rectifies a much neglected area in the conceptualization and treatment of attachment disorders The interface between attachment psychic structure and character pathology has been largely ignored in the clinical literature until recent years and when discussed it has been generally relegated to the domain of child psychopathology Because human attachment is such a basic aspect to motivation and adjustment attachment disruptions in childhood color psychic development and often leave deep and enduring deficits in personality and adaptive functioning The author shows that patients with attachment deficiencies and associated characterological vulnerabilities have fundamental structural deficits in personality organization that lie at the heart of our current understanding of disorders of the self Offering the first comprehensive paradigm on the psychoanalytic treatment of adult and adolescent attachment disorders Jon Mills argues that attachment pathology is a disorder of the self based on developmental trauma that predisposes patients toward a future trajectory marked by structural deficits character pathology and interpersonal discord that fuel and sustain myriad forms of clinical symptomatology This pivotal work constitutes a treatise on the governing psychic processes of attachment on self organization adaptation and conflicted intersubjective dynamics in non childhood populations and on the intervening relational parameters in treating their emergent clinical pathologies Through conceptually astute technical strategies grounded in solid clinical practice the author offers one of the most extensive and original frameworks in the psychoanalytic treatment of attachment disorders

A Social History of Late Ottoman Women Duygu Köksal, Anastasia Falierou, 2013-10-10 In A Social History of the Late Ottoman Women New Perspectives Duygu Köksal and Anastasia Falierou bring together new research on women of different geographies and communities of the late Ottoman Empire Making use of archives literary works diaries newspapers almanacs art works or cartoons the contributors focus particularly on the ways in which women gained power and exercised agency in late Ottoman Empire and early Republican Turkey The articles convincingly show that women's agency cannot be unearthed without narrating how women were involved in shaping their own and others lives even in the most unexpected areas of their existence The women's activities described here do not simply reflect modernizing trends or westernizing attitudes or their defensive denial They provide an array of local responses where the local can never be found and should never be conceptualized in its initial unchanged or authentic state
