

Another mighty Minnesota melt-down

A woman with long, dark, wavy hair is lying face down in a pool of water. She is holding a white pitcher in her right hand. The water is a light blue color, and there are some bubbles or ripples around her. The overall scene is somewhat surreal and somber.

The Plot to Ice Governor Tea C. O Lamp,2002 Disenchanted Minnesota voters repudiated both major political parties and elected a handsome star of motion pictures and television to be their governor It fell to the suave double dealing state ombudsman to protect not only the governor but those in the legislature who sought to replace him Among the more sinister were a philandering senator who could not keep his pants zipped and a part time actor expatriate New Yorker who could arrange anything including murder Murder proved to be contagious a newspaper columnist wanted a piece of the action as did a juvenile delinquent who thought he had made the big time when the Don hired him as a hit man Only Ross Scotyard the young private investigator who had been sent to establish an office in the Twin Cities stood in their way And only Ross Scotyard could obtain justice for the Lady in the Lake Inside Lamp Confidential C. Lamp,2005-12 Who hasn't questioned Who were my great grandparents Where did they live What did they do My daughters asked these questions and more At their requests I began to write a family history including successes and failures No pirates were found lurking but I located two murders Families do not live in a vacuum I included in laws friends neighbors and strangers who touched our lives As stories and traditions molded the family so did the times in which we lived The story of our family is part of the history of our town state and nation This saga is a microcosm of the nation rising out of Depression winning a global war in a unity of spirit soaring to the happy heights of togetherness A zenith alas that this nation probably will never achieve again Inescapably this book is also the story of my life definitive account of one of American history's most repellent and most fascinating moments combining investigative journalism and sweeping social history. Years later the tale of murder and revenge in Georgia still has the power to fascinate. Intense suspenseful. The Washington Post Book World. In 1913 13 year old Mary Phagan was found brutally murdered in the basement of the Atlanta pencil factory where she worked. The factory manager a college educated Jew named Leo Frank was arrested, tried and convicted in a trial that seized national headlines. When the governor commuted his death sentence Frank was kidnapped and lynched by a group of prominent local citizens. Steve Oney's acclaimed account re-creates the entire story for the first time from the police investigations to the gripping trial to the brutal lynching and its aftermath. Oney vividly renders Atlanta a city enjoying newfound prosperity a half century after the Civil War but still rife with barely hidden prejudices and resentments. He introduces a Dickensian pageant of characters including zealous policemen, intrepid reporters, Frank's martyred wife and a fiery populist who manipulated local anger at Northern newspapers that pushed for Frank's exoneration. Readers' Guide to Periodical Literature, 1911. Helen Anita Mishook, 2017-01-24. When Helen left New York on a train bound for California in 1936 she was looking for a change of scene, planning to stay with her sister in Glendale and babysit her niece and nephew. But when she arrived she found herself steeped in a world of bookies, mobsters and a Nazi underworld that she must infiltrate on behalf of the Anti-Defamation League. Anita Mishook's well-researched and brilliantly written debut novel transports you to 1936 and the untold history of the American Bund, the pro-Nazi Silver Shirts and their efforts to build a summer retreat for Hitler near the Los Angeles coast.
