Plural Society in Peril: Migration, Economic Change, and the Papua Conflict Rodd McGibbon, 2022 The West Papua Conflict in Indonesia Esther Heidbüchel, 2007 Plural Society in Peril Rodd McGibbon, 2004 This study examines the ways in which large scale migration and rapid economic change have fueled separatism and ethnic conflict in Papua It presents an analysis of recent census data showing that three quarters of a million migrants from other parts of Indonesia have resettled in the territory since 1970 either through official transmigration programs or as unsponsored economic migrants Based on this analysis the study illustrates how rapid modernization and demographic change have resulted in the displacement and dislocation of Papua s indigenous population provoking Papuan resentment and demands for independence But rapid social change has not only spurred ethnonationalist mobilization it has also generated ethnic and tribal tensions within Papua Growing competition for land and resources between settlers and Papuans has given rise to persistent social conflict in Papua The threat now looms that this social conflict could trigger a larger outbreak of communal and ethnic violence as in neighboring areas So far Papua has proved relatively resistant to efforts to foment widespread conflict It remains unclear however whether the government can address the deep seated sense of Papuan resentment leading to alienation and conflict It could do so by reversing many of its divisive policies and redoubling its efforts to bring services to remote indigenous communities In the absence of such initiatives continuing inflows of migrants into the province may well overwhelm the mechanisms for social management that have so far kept conflict from spiraling out of control This is the thirteenth publication in Policy Studies a peer reviewed East West Center Washington series that presents scholarly analysis of key contemporary domestic and international political economic and strategic issues affecting Asia in a policy relevant manner

Indonesia? Maribeth Erb, Priyambudi Sulistiyanto, 2009 Since the fall of long reigning President Soeharto in 1998 Indonesia has been in an era of transition away from an authoritarian regime and on a quest for democracy This quest started with decentralization laws implemented in 2001 which gave greater autonomy to the regions and continued with the direct elections for the national and local legislatures and the President in 2004 The latest development in this democratization process is the implementation of a system for the direct election of regional leaders which began in 2005 the first round of elections across the nation for all governors mayors and district heads was completed in 2008 Authors of the chapters in this volume the result of a workshop in Singapore in 2006 present data from across the archipelago for these first direct elections for local leaders and give their assessment as to how far these elections have contributed to a deepening democracy

Political Authority in Burma's Ethnic Minority States Mary Patricia Callahan, 2007 This study examines the enormous variation and complexity that characterize relationships between the national state and locally based often non state actors who negotiate and compete for political authority in Burma's ethnic minority dominated states along the borders Three patterns of relationships are explored devolution by the national state to warlord like local authorities occupation by the Burmese military and coexistence with varying degrees of cooperation and understanding among actors from the national state and local stakeholders Throughout these border states leaders of the Burmese government's armed forces and of past and currently active armed opposition forces operate within a context that is neither war nor peace but instead a kind of post civil war not quite peace environment To understand the complex political arrangements that have arisen in this environment this monograph employs the concept of emerging political complex a set of adaptive networks that link state and other political authorities to domestic and foreign business concerns some legal others illegal traditional indigenous leaders religious authorities overseas refugee and diaspora communities political party leaders and nongovernmental organizations All of these players make rules extract resources provide protection and try to order a moral universe but none of them are able or even inclined to trump the others for monolithic national supremacy Conflict resolution strategies have to recognize that these emerging political complexes are not simply unfortunate bumps in the road to peace but instead constitute intricate and evolving social systems that may continue to be adapted and sustained

Political Change and Territoriality in Indonesia Ehito Kimura, 2013-05-07 What makes large multi ethnic states hang together At a time when ethnic and religious conflict has gained global prominence the territorial organization of states is a critical area of study Exploring how multi ethnic and geographically dispersed states grapple with questions of territorial administration and change this book argues that territorial change is a result of ongoing negotiations between states and societies where mutual and overlapping interests can often emerge It focuses on the changing dynamics of central local relations in Indonesia Since the fall of Suharto s New Order government new provinces have been sprouting up throughout the Indonesian archipelago After decades of stability this sudden change in Indonesia s territorial structure is puzzling The author analyses this provincial proliferation which is driven by multilevel alliances across different territorial administrative levels or territorial coalitions He demonstrates that national level institutional changes including decentralization and democratization explain the timing of the phenomenon Variations also occur based on historical cultural and political contexts at the regional level The concept of territorial coalitions challenges the dichotomy between centre and periphery that is common in other studies of central local relations This book will be of interest to scholars in the fields of comparative politics political geography history and Asian and Southeast Asian politics

Rebellion in Southern Thailand Thanet Aphornsuvan, 2006-12-01 This study addresses the competing histories of Thailand and Patani beginning in the fourteenth century up to the mid twentieth century It provides an explanation of the causes of ongoing political conflict between the Malay Muslims in the three southernmost provinces of Thailand and the Thai government against which separatist movements fought in the 1960s Even though January 2004 marked the beginning of the current violence that now plagues Thailand's south most people in and outside the area still believe that the nature of such conflict is internal and could be resolved peacefully The major contention in the competing histories of Siam and Patani revolves around national policies that resulted in discrimination and destruction of the Muslim's cultural identity and rights In the early twentieth century under the rule of King Chulalongkorn which was characterized by centralization and cultural suppression Patani was reduced to a mere province Further forced assimilation occurred under the Phibun government in the 1940s at which time Islamic practices and the use of the Yawi language were curbed The sources of political conflict including the political status of Patani ethnic identity Bangkok politics and bureaucratic misconduct in the south have historical roots Understanding and appreciation of each other's culture and ethno religious identities could lead to positive political will on both sides for peaceful resolution of the conflict

The Islamist Threat in Southeast Asia John Thayer Sidel, 2007 In recent years a steady stream of reportage and commentary has spotlighted a dangerous Islamist threat in Southeast Asia This study by contrast offers a very different account In descriptive terms this study suggests that such an alarmist picture is highly overdrawn and it traces instead a pattern of marked decline demobilization and disentanglement from state power in recent years for Islamist forces in Southeast Asia This trend is evident both in the disappointments experienced in recent years by previously ascendant Islamist forces in Indonesia and Malaysia and in the diminished position of Muslim power brokers in southern Thailand and the Philippines after more than a decade of cooperation with non Muslim politicians in Manila and Bangkok In explanatory terms moreover this study shows the significance of social and political context A fuller appreciation of aggression by anti Islamists and non Muslims and of the insecurity weakness and fractiousness of Islamist forces themselves helps to explain the nature extent and limitations of Islamist violence aggression and assertiveness This overarching alternative framework not only provides a very different explanation for the Islamist threat in Southeast Asia but also suggests very different policy implications from those offered by specialists on terrorism working on the region

State Management of Religion in Indonesia Myengkkyo Seo, 2013-07-18 Although Indonesia is generally considered to be a Muslim state and is indeed the world's most populous Muslim majority nation it has a sizeable Christian minority as a legacy of Dutch colonialism with Christians often occupying relatively high social positions This book examines the management of religion in Indonesia It discusses how Christianity has developed in Indonesia how the state though Muslim in outlook and culture is nevertheless formally secular and how the principal Christian church the Java Christian Church has adapted its practices to fit local circumstances It examines religious violence and charts the evolution of the state's religious policies analysing in particular the impact of the 1974 Marriage Law showing how it enabled extensive state regulation but how in practice rather than reinforcing religious divisions inter religious marriage involving the conversion of one party is widespread Overall the book shows how Indonesia is developing its own brand of secularism neither a full blooded Islamic state like Saudi Arabia nor an outright secular state like Turkey

Strategies of Secession and Counter-Secession Ryan D Griffiths, Diego Muro, 2021-08-11 How can we understand the strategic interaction between secessionist movements and sovereign states A casual review of the many secessionist struggles around the world both violent and peaceful shows a variety of types Some like Catalonia are pursuing their ends using combinations of electoral capture and civil demonstrations just as the Spanish government is working to delegitimize these efforts and defeat them in the polls Regions like Nagorno Karabakh Artsakh lack the same institutional connectivity with the larger state of Azerbaijan and are relegated to a de facto but unrecognized status where defense deterrence and diplomacy are critical For its part Azerbaijan invokes its territorial integrity and attempts to deny all forms of recognition to the breakaway region Other regions from West Papua to Tibet are faced with the hard choice between civil resistance and the use of violence and their states are keen to suppress their efforts and hide them from the world What features are common across all of these examples and how do they differ This volume synthesizes a number of theories and theoretical approaches that purport to explain the strategies of secession and counter secession This is an important topic Apart from the many legal and cartographical issues that attend secessionist activity the potential for conflict is a very real concern Estimates put the share of civil wars driven by secessionism at about 50% Firstly and according to Barbara Walter secessionism is the chief source of violence in the world today Secondly secessionism is destabilizing because at the least it presents a direct challenge to existing political systems Yet surprisingly the strategic interaction between states and secessionists is an area in which we have incomplete understanding
