Psychology in Action is a term coined by the Guest Editors from the Centre for Research into Reading, Literature, and Society (CRILS), University of Liverpool, in their work in filming, recording, and analyzing shared reading groups led by The Reader organization. It refers both to the work of psychology within literary texts and to the responses of multifarious reader participants to literature read live and aloud in small community groups within a variety of settings. In particular, psychology in action has meant seeing readers suddenly activated into deep personal thinking, responding to situations imaginatively simulated by reading literature in ways that trigger surprised and involuntary emotion, autobiographical memory, and spontaneous empathy. Teaching Reading in the Middle School, Anna J. Small, Roseboro, 2013-12-20. More than 670,000 middle school teachers, grades 6-8, are responsible for educating nearly 13 million students in public and private schools. Thousands more teachers join these ranks annually, especially in the South and West, where ethnic populations are ballooning. Teachers and administrators seek practical, time-efficient ways of teaching language arts to 21st-century adolescents in increasingly multicultural, technologically diverse, socially networked communities. They seek sound understanding, practical advice, and proven strategies in order to connect diverse literature to 21st-century societies while meeting state and professional standards like the Common Core State Standards for English Language Arts.
