Samuel Butler And The Way Of All Flesh:

The Way Of All Flesh Samuel Butler, 1903 The Way of All Flesh Samuel Butler, 1920 The Way of All Flesh Samuel Butler, 2000 The Way of All Flesh is one of the time bombs of literature said V S Pritchett One thinks of it lying in Samuel Butler's desk for thirty years waiting to blow up the Victorian family and with it the whole great pillared and balustraded edifice of the Victorian novel Written between 1873 and 1884 but not published until 1903 a year after Butler's death his marvelously uninhibited satire savages Victorian bourgeois values as personified by multiple generations of the Pontifex family A thinly veiled account of his own upbringing in the bosom of a God fearing Christian family Butler's scathingly funny depiction of the self righteous hypocrisy underlying nineteenth century domestic life was hailed by George Bernard Shaw as one of the summits of human achievement

The Way of All Flesh Samuel Butler,2018-06-10 The Way of All Flesh by Samuel Butler The Way of All Flesh 1903 is a semi autobiographical novel by Samuel Butler that attacks Victorian era hypocrisy Samuel Butler began to write The Way of All Flesh about the year 1872 and was engaged upon it intermittently until 1884 It is therefore to a great extent contemporaneous with Life and Habit and may be taken as a practical illustration of the theory of heredity embodied in that book He did not work at it after 1884 but for various reasons he postponed its publication He was occupied in other ways and he professed himself dissatisfied with it as a whole and always intended to rewrite or at any rate to revise it His death in 1902 prevented him from doing this and on his death bed he gave me clearly to understand that he wished it to be published in its present form I found that the MS of the fourth and fifth chapters had disappeared but by consulting and comparing various notes and sketches which remained among his papers I have been able to supply the missing chapters in a form which I believe does not differ materially from that which he finally adopted With regard to the chronology of the events recorded the reader will do well to bear in mind that the main body of the novel is supposed to have been written in the year 1867 and the last chapter added as a postscript in 1882

of a harsh Victorian upbringing and troubled adulthood was penned by Samuel Butler and hailed by George Bernard Shaw as one of the summits of human achievement Butler's novel satirizes Victorian hypocrisy in its chronicle of the life and loves of Ernest Pontifex Along the way it offers a powerful indictment of 19th century England's major institutions Beginning with the life of John Pontifex a carpenter the novel traces four generations of the Pontifex family each of which perpetuates the frustration and unhappiness of its predecessor largely as a result of parental repression Only Ernest Pontifex the great grandson of John is able to break the cycle After being ordained a minister serving a prison term because of a naive misunderstanding and unwittingly entering into a bigamous marriage with the family's sluttish servant girl Ernest providentially inherits enough money from a favorite aunt to change his life and become a writer Even today 100 years after the book's publication readers will find much to identify with in The Way of All Flesh Anyone who felt unjustly treated by his or her parents or teachers will find much to sympathize with here Anyone who has wrestled with the conflict between Reason and Faith will find much to think about here It is easy to see how many people have described reading Samuel Butler's The Way of All Flesh as a turning point in their lives
