Schilling,1994 Special Publication - Colorado Geological Survey Colorado Geological Survey,1969 Managing Community Growth Eric Kelly,2004-12-30 Despite roughly thirty years of experience with growth management programs which are basically land use planning tools most U S communities do not plan for how best to limit or manage rapid growth in fact most communities do not plan at all In the absence of planning land use boards regulators and other governing bodies simply react to initiatives from the private sector The result is predictably haphazard and does not allow communities to achieve such goals as protecting quality of life attracting certain types of businesses while discouraging others conserving wildlife or preserving open spaces and so forth In contrast planning by managing growth can help a town or city achieve any number of goals But it is a complex task This book brings the benefit of state and local experiences with growth management to researchers students and particularly practitioners who seek guidance in these matters Kelly provides a much needed context from which any community can answer the following questions Does growth management work Is it appropriate for the community and the particular problems that it is trying to address Is one type of growth management program more appropriate than another for our community Will the program in question have undesirable or desirable side effects What are the likely effects of adopting no growth management program at all This work is invaluable for the citizen volunteers who sit on land use boards including planning and zoning commissions conservation commissions and inland wetlands agencies In addition it can aid mayors city managers and city councils in interviewing and selecting candidates for town planner Geologic Hazards of Moab-Spanish Valley, Grand County, Utah Michael D. Hylland,William Mulvey,2003 Moab Valley and the contiguous Spanish Valley comprise a popular residential and recreational area in east central Utah Geologic processes that created the rugged and scenic landscape of Moab Spanish Valley are still active today and can be hazardous to property and life To address development in areas with geologic hazards the Utah Geological Survey UGS conducted a geologic hazards investigation to provide information to Moab City and Grand County to help guide development and reduce losses from geologic hazards This report includes maps of Moab Valley and the northern and central parts of Spanish Valley that provide information on geologic hazards to assist homeowners planners and developers in making informed decisions The maps show areas where hazards may exist and where site specific studies are advisable prior to development The maps are for planning purposes only and do not preclude the necessity for site investigations Site specific studies by qualified professionals engineering geologists geotechnical engineers hydrologists should evaluate hazards and if necessary recommend hazard reduction measures Because of the small scale of the maps some hazard areas are not shown hazard studies are therefore recommended for all critical facilities for example hospitals schools fire stations including those outside the mapped hazard areas
