Carbohydrate as the primary product of photosynthesis has a vital role in the maintenance of life on this planet Until relatively recently interest in complex carbohydrates focussed on their structural role in the extracellular matrix cell wall of animal plant and microbial cells and on their role as energy sources e g starch and glycogen and structural components e g cellulose in natural products There was however indirect evidence that carbohydrates could play an informational role this evidence was from the finding last century that plant lectins caused specific agglutination of certain animal cells and more recently that the agglutination was mediated by interactions between the plant lectin and cell surface carbohydrates It is now clear that endogenous carbohydrate binding proteins are important in cell cell recognition phenomena in animal systems Recently impressive evidence has been presented that complex oligosaccharides derived from cell walls are also important in plant recognition events for example in signalling the defence mechanisms of a plant to respond to attack by insects and microbial pathogens Subject Guide to Books in Print ,1997 Bibliography of the History of Medicine , NASA Contractor Report ,1984 Growth ,1983 Vols 5 6 11 13 have supplement Symposium on development and growth
