Pros And Cons Of International Weapons Procurement Collaboration:

Pros and Cons of International Weapons Procurement Collaboration Mark A. Lorell, Julia Lowell, 1995 Provides insights on possible results of international collaboration on weapons procurement programs The Law of Collaborative Defence Procurement in the European Union Baudouin Heuninckx, 2017 The book examines and makes proposals for improving the law and management of collaborative defence procurement programmes and provides practical examples to enhance efficiency of cooperation between states Covering a broad scope of legal issues it contains invaluable information for practitioners policy makers and academics aiming to analyse or improve these projects Assessment of Impediments to Interagency Collaboration on Space and Earth Science Missions National Research Council, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Space Studies Board, Committee on Assessment of Impediments to Interagency Cooperation on Space and Earth Science Missions, 2011-05-31 Through an examination of case studies agency briefings and existing reports and drawing on personal knowledge and direct experience the Committee on Assessment of Impediments to Interagency Cooperation on Space and Earth Science Missions found that candidate projects for multiagency collaboration in the development and implementation of Earth observing or space science missions are often intrinsically complex and therefore costly and that a multiagency approach to developing these missions typically results in additional complexity and cost Advocates of collaboration have sometimes underestimated the difficulties and associated costs and risks of dividing responsibility and accountability between two or more partners they also discount the possibility that collaboration will increase the risk in meeting performance objectives This committee's principal recommendation is that agencies should conduct Earth and space science projects independently unless It is judged that cooperation will result in significant added scientific value to the project over what could be achieved by a single agency alone or Unique capabilities reside within one agency that are necessary for the mission success of a project managed by another agency or The project is intended to transfer from research to operations necessitating a change in responsibility from one agency to another during the project or There are other compelling reasons to pursue collaboration for example a desire to build capacity at one of the cooperating agencies Even when the total project cost may increase parties may still find collaboration attractive if their share of a mission is more affordable than funding it alone In these cases alternatives to interdependent reliance on another government agency should be considered For example agencies may find that buying services from another agency or pursuing interagency coordination of spaceflight data collection is preferable to fully interdependent cooperation

European Defence Decision-Making Antonio Calcara,2020-03-02 This book comparatively examines the preferences of four key arms producing states towards European joint armaments programmes The European defence market is characterised by a mixture of inter state competition and European cooperation and this work assesses why countries sometimes decide to cooperate with their partners while in other instances they refrain from doing so In order to shed light on this empirical puzzle the book focuses on state defence industry relations in the four major European arms producers France Germany Italy and the UK The main argument is that the public or private governance of industrial suppliers and market size are the two decisive variables that explain the simultaneous presence of cooperation and competition in European defence procurement Specifically it argues that in public governance ecosystems arms industries are able to capture the state s decision making processes to their own advantage In private governance ecosystems the state is relatively autonomous from defence industry s influence and able to pursue larger macro economic and military benefits Moreover the strategy pursued by governments and defence firms is decisively shaped by market size because of its importance in determining the relative costs and benefits of collaborative arrangements This book will be of much interest to students of EU policy defence studies European politics and International Relations

Arms Proliferation Policy Marcy Agmon, 1996. A 1995 Presidential Executive Order established a board to advise the president on implementing a policy on conventional nonnuclear arms and technology transfer. The board was to study the factors that contribute to the proliferation of strategic and advanced conventional military weapons and technology and the policy options the United States might use to inhibit such proliferation. Shrinking federal budgets have made exports of all kinds, including weapons, an attractive means of shoring up a country's industrial base. The heart of the problem is striking a balance between the preservation of military production and a healthy industrial base on the one hand and restraining exports that proliferate advanced weapons. Foreign policy, national security, and economic interests that are served by the approval or denial of weapons sales can be compelling but often pull in different directions. Striking the right balance among cross-cutting priorities is the key to an effective weapons transfer policy. This report discusses trends in the international arms markets, how transfers of weapons and technology are controlled, the economics of arms exports, and the relationship between arms exports and a country's economy.
