Prospects For Partnership Industrialization And Trade Policies In The 1970s:

Prospects for Partnership Helen Hughes, 1973      Prospects for Partnership World Bank, 1973 In October 1972 the World Bank invited a group of international economists to examine various aspects of the partnership between developing and developed countries Based on that seminar this collection of writings analyzes the types of trade policies that are necessary to ensure the optimum industrialization of less developed countries Since supply issues have received a great deal of attention in recent years the focus of this volume is the demand aspects of the adjustment problems inherent in the increasing volume of manufactured product exports from developing countries The collection covers such key issues as protection versus free trade the infant industry argument the problem of appropriate technologies and the future relationship between developing countries and the industrialized world Would the benefits of industrialization in the former exceed the costs in the latter Over what period of time The discussions which threaded together the various themes from trade adjustment to changing international industrial patterns are drawn together in the last paper to indicate directions which analysis and then policies might take      Prospects for Partnership ,1973      International Trade and Finance Peter B. Kenen, 2008-07-10 The nine papers in this volume were written for a conference on research in international trade and finance held at Princeton University in March 1973 Each author was asked to survey research on one major topic with a view to answering three questions What have we learned from recent empirical research What are the major gaps in present knowledge How should we go about filling those gaps When answering the second question authors were urged to look at the practical requirements of those who must make policy concerning the international economy and at the opportunities and insights offered by recent developments in pure theory When answering the third they were urged to look at developments in econometric technique newly available data and work in progress in related fields      Tariff and Science Policies D.J. Daly, S. Globerman, 1976-12-15 This controversial analysis of economic nationalism will interest economists and those concerned with nationalism and the competitive position of Canadian manufacturing It is the first attempt to test empirically an economic model of nationalism a model which implies that an emphasis on nationalism ultimately reduces economic efficiency with low income groups bearing most of the resultant cost and redistributes income from lower to upper income individuals Applying the model to federal commercial and science policies the authors argue that these policies have contributed to the high costs and low productivity of Canadian manufacturing and retarded the adoption of new processes and improved techniques They find that the costs of these are borne by the urban workers and the consumer while the major beneficiaries are Canadian managers scientists and engineers The efficiency and competitive position of Canadian industry are reduced and income redistributed from lower to upper income groups Science policies designed to increase at high cost a broad range of Canadian research and development capabilities are related to the slower adoption of new manufacturing processes in Canada than in the United States and Europe The authors conclude that greater trade liberalization and increased industrial specialization would benefit Canada and Ontario that more emphasis should be placed on rapid diffusion of innovation and that research should be concentrated in fields where Canada has a potential competitive advantage

Economic Policy for the European Community Sir Alec Cairncross, 1974-06-18

The World Bank and the Poor A. van de Laar, 1980-05-31

The authors of a recent textbook on the Economics of Development P A Yotopoulos and J B Nugent 1976 chose as the title of their first chapter The Record of Economic Development and Disillusionment with Development Economics It is striking that dissatisfaction with this young branch of the tree of economics has become so strong that a textbook treatment of the subject matter takes Disillusionment as its point of departure True the Disillusionment chapter is followed by many other chapters there is after all some thing to be said on development economics that is worth saying but the wording has changed and frequently the focus as well in comparison to the development economics of the 1950s and sixties Dissatisfaction and disillusionment may be interpreted optimistically as an inevitable stage in the coming of age process of development economics Others may say that the search for a new paradigm is the core of the problem At any rate there is no room for complacency It cannot be denied that at least part of the early development theory came into being as a justification ex post of policy measures that for a variety of reasons were judged desirable or essential

The Impact of International Trade and Investment on Employment, 1978 Export-oriented Industrialization in Developing Countries Pitou van Dijck, Hans Linnemann, Harmen Verbruggen, 1987 This study describes and analyses in depth the transformation taking place in world manufacturing industry and its impact on the economies of newly industrialising countries In Part One the causes and characteristics of export oriented industrialisation are studied often using world wide cross country analyses Trade policies and export strategies underlying such industrialisation processes get much attention Part Two mainly deals with the domestic preconditions for and consequences of export oriented manufacturing production on the basis of detailed case studies of seven East and South East Asian countries

The Third World And U.s. Foreign Policy Robert L. Rothstein, 2019-06-25 The quest for a viable policy toward the Third World will be a dominant theme in U S foreign policy throughout this decade But before any judgments can be made about the range of choices for U S policymakers it is necessary to understand the pressures that are likely to confront developing nations during the 1980s as well as the efforts of these nations as a group to extract greater resources and attention from the international system This book considers policy responses that have been and are likely to be implemented by developing nations as they face increasing pressures in the areas of food energy trade and debt the main areas of interaction within the international system The author also presents an analysis of how the North South Dialogue functions and why it has produced so few genuine settlements providing an additional perspective on whether the pressures on the developing countries might be diminished by successful global negotiations The conclusions reached by examining policy responses and the Dialogue itself provide the basis for a number of specific policy prescriptions They also help to establish a framework within which U S policy initiatives toward the Third World must be formed The two concluding chapters discuss these policy choices in detail carefully analyzing the advantages and disadvantages of persisting in present policies attempting a genuine global restructuring choosing to concentrate attention on a few new influentials in the Third World and trying to construct a new approach out of selected elements of the other policy approaches

A World Divided G. K. Helleiner, 1976-01-29 This 1976 volume originated in the mood of disillusion and despair which followed the Third United Nations Conference on Trade and Development in Santiago in 1972 The prospects for cooperation between rich and poor nations seemed poor and new policies and instruments needed to be considered if the interests of the rich and poor nations were not to become even more unbalanced in favour of the rich The contributors to this volume consider what unexploited possibilities might be open to the less developed countries both jointly and individually in international affairs which would generate a more equitable outcome The issues addressed in these papers were at the time of publication of immediate relevance following the success of oil producing countries in revising prices worldwide inflation famine in the poorest countries recession in industrial countries Simultaneously the less developed countries were declaring the need for a new international economic order which this volume discusses

Surveys of Applied Economics Royal Economic Society, 1977-06-17 International Economic Disorder Gerald K.

Helleiner, 1983-09-29 International Trade and the Environment Judith M. Dean, 2017-10-23 This title was first published in 2002 The interrelationship between international trade and the environment has become the subject of much heated debate These complex and strong concerns are given voice in this comprehensive and accessible text that brings together the leading journal articles dealing with the fundamental questions about this most important international problem International Trade and the Environment offers an invaluable source of contemporary international research for all those researching studying or practicing across the fields of international trade environmental economics applied microeconomics and other related areas

Review of Current Information in the Treasury Department Library United States. Department of the Treasury. Library, 1977 Economic Structure and Performance Hollis B. Chenery, 2014-05-10

Economic Structure and Performance Essays in Honor of Hollis B Chenery briefly reviews the work of Hollis Chenery in the field of economics This book discusses the underlying themes in Chenery's work including structure strategy adjustment and models Organized into four parts encompassing 26 chapters this book begins with an overview of the patterns of structural change and their relation to growth This text then examines the objectives measures and implementation of policy as well as administrative capabilities and cultural characteristics Other chapters compare Chenery's econometric analysis of development patterns with the historical analyses and suggest that the two approaches complement each other This book discusses as well the persistence of disequilibrium in segments of the economy The final chapter deals with simple criteria for detecting critical interdependencies and a formula for measuring their welfare consequences This book is a valuable resource for economists industrialists foreign capitalists and social scientists      Trade Patterns in Developing Countries, 1970-1981 Lance Taylor, 1984      Governments And Mining Companies In Developing Countries James H.

Cobbe, 2019-03-13 This book examines the relationship between the governments of less developed countries LDCs and foreign owned firms engaged in the extraction of minerals for export With an approach that synthesizes economic theory technical considerations and political factors Cobbe provides a fresh look at the policy aspects of the resource bargaining pro

Global Development Fifty Years after Bretton Woods Albert Berry, Roy Culpeper, Frances Stewart, 2016-07-27 The international economic order created at Bretton Woods in 1944 was not crafted with the developing countries principally in mind Moreover the nature of the world community has changed profoundly in the last half century The problems and opportunities of developing countries have moved to centre stage in today's global economy The 16 contributors to this volume examine ways in which the international economic system could be reformed in order better to meet the needs and aspirations of the developing world in the coming decades
