Assessing Forensic Mental Health Need Andrea Cohen, Nigel Eastman, 2000 Mentally disordered offenders MDOs have dominated the recent political agenda for mental health care emphasised by cases such as those of Christopher Clunis and Michael Stone Yet successive governments have constrained the development of all health and social services by the requirement that they must be demonstrated as capable of benefiting those to whom they are applied This book analyses the development of government policy for services for MDOs since the important Butler report in 1975 and provides a theoretical framework for adjudging research which purports to demonstrate a need and outcome Finally it emphasises the subjective and value laden nature of all needs assessments and their interpretation and poses the crucial questions of whose need it is that we address through MDO services those of the patient or of society This book will be valuable to clinicians and researchers working in mental health services policy makers service commissioners and managers Features An analysis of the history of the MDO policy in relation to needs assessment pre and post the important Reed Report A methodological framework for needs assessment of MDOs Critical appraisal of alternative definitions of needs and of related concepts Critical analysis of the application of needs assessment methods A review of research relevant to needs assessment for MDOs Needs in relation to outcome An analysis of recent policy development related to MDO services

Mental Capital and Wellbeing Cary L. Cooper, Usha Goswami, Barbara J. Sahakian, 2009-08-18 This major new reference presents The Foresight Mental Capital and Wellbeing Project a UK Government project in the Government Office for Science It offers a comprehensive exploration of how mental capital and wellbeing operate over the lifespan how experiences in the family in school at work and following retirement augment or reduce mental capital and wellbeing and the impact that this has for the individual and for the welfare and economic progress of the nation Mental Capital and Wellbeing comprises a series of scientific reviews written by leading international scientists and social scientists in the field The reviews undertake systematic analyses of the evidence base surrounding five key themes on which they propose future policies will have to be based. An internationally renowned team of Editors introduce each theme and draw together conclusions in terms of both policy and practice. Section 1 Mental Capital and Wellbeing Through Life. Mental capital refers to the totality of an individual's cognitive and emotional resources including their cognitive capability, flexibility and efficiency of learning, emotional intelligence and resilience in the face of stress. The extent of an individual's resources reflects his or her basic endowment, e.g. genes and early biological programming, motivation and experiences, e.g. education, which take place throughout the life course. This section presents the very latest on the science of mental capital throughout life. Section 2 Learning Through Life provides a coherent overview of a fast moving and complex field of policy and practice. Educational attainment has a considerable impact on physical and mental wellbeing both directly and indirectly by enabling people better to achieve their goals. The ability to continue learning throughout the lifespan is critical to a successful and rewarding life in contemporary societies. Section 3 Mental Health and Ill Health draws together the most recent evidence about positive mental health as well as a range of mental disorders to consider their importance to the population and economy in terms of prevalence and disability and the wider burden on society. Section 4 Wellbeing and Work. It is estimated that 13 million working days are lost through stress each year costing the economy over 3.7 billion per annum. This theme explores those drivers that influence the nature and structure of work and the impact this has on employee wellbeing. Section 5 Learning Difficulties. This theme provides a cutting edge picture of how recent insights from genetics, cognitive and neuroscience improve our understanding of learning difficulties such as dyslexia, dyscalculia and attention deficit hyperactivity disorder. Reviews focus on how current research can contribute to early diagnosis and improved intervention.

Issues in Preventive Psychiatry G. N.

Christodoulou, D., Lecic-Tosevski, V., Kontaxakis, 1999-10-14. This volume, an edition supported by the World Psychiatric Association (WPA), contains selected papers from the Symposium of the WPA Section of Preventive Psychiatry held during the 10th World Congress of Psychiatry together with invited papers by worldwide renowned experts in psychiatric prevention. The editors emphasize that health cannot be defined only by the absence of illness but that its definition has to include the eye-exercise in wellbeing of the Ancient Greeks. To achieve the aim of mental health and to prevent psychiatric disorders it is essential to collaborate with all professionals involved, e.g. teachers, priests, policemen, journalists, etc. As pointed out by Norman Sartorius, president of the WPA, in his preface the book is likely to facilitate implementation of prevention programs and hopefully will lead to the improvement of the quality and quantity of life for many people and the society as a whole.

Promoting Collaboration in Primary Mental Health Care Peter Nolan, Frances Badger, 2002. This text describes the various models of collaborative care within primary mental health care. It illustrates the diversity of collaboration in the delivery of this care and shows how this collaboration has come about, how it exists today and how it might be best developed for the future. The book provides practical guidance for practitioners on how to break down barriers to collaboration and how to work most effectively with their colleagues within primary care. Each chapter is written by health care professionals from the primary care discipline under discussion Cumulated Index Medicus ,1965 Psychiatric Illness Across the Menstrual Cycle Leah Susser,Liisa Hantsoo,Lauren M. Osborne,2025-02-25 Menstrual cycle related exacerbations of psychiatric illnesses and premenstrual disorders are prevalent and associated with significant morbidity While menstrual cycle related exacerbations are common and for certain disorders have been associated with severity and with poorer treatment response the field remains largely understudied We currently know little about the specific patterns of exacerbation for most psychiatric illnesses and how to treat them Premenstrual disorders have gained more attention in research however many women do not respond to the currently available treatments and novel pharmacotherapies are needed This Research Topic aims to further our knowledge and recognition of both menstrual cycle related exacerbations and of psychiatric illnesses limited to certain phases of the menstrual cycle Research is needed on prevalence patterns across the menstrual cycle and the characteristics pathophysiology and treatment of these menstrual cycle related conditions

Mental Health Ethics Phil Barker,2010-11-09 All human behaviour is ultimately a moral undertaking in which each situation must be considered on its own merits As a result ethical conduct is complex Despite the proliferation of Codes of Conduct and other forms of professional guidance there are no easy answers to most human problems Mental Health Ethics encourages readers to heighten their awareness of the key ethical dilemmas found in mainstream contemporary mental health practice This text provides an overview of traditional and contemporary ethical perspectives and critically examines a range of ethical and moral challenges present in contemporary psychiatric mental health services Offering a comprehensive and interdisciplinary perspective it includes six parts each with their own introduction summary and set of ethical challenges covering fundamental ethical principles legal issues specific challenges for different professional groups working with different service user groups models of care and treatment recovery and human rights perspectives Providing detailed consideration of issues and dilemmas Mental Health Ethics helps all mental health professionals keep people at the centre of the services they offer Public Health Reports ,1969 Journal of the National Cancer Institute ,1990 COVID-19 Epidemiological Situation as a Psychosocial Determinant of Trauma and Stress Mateusz Krystian Grajek,Jonathan Adedayo Odukoya,Ewa Misterska,Mateusz Rozmiarek,2024-01-24 In addition to the infectious context the COVID 19 pandemic has brought many complications to social life Fear anxiety misinformation and loneliness associated with isolation as well as uncertainty about the days ahead have already caused psychological and emotional changes in many people Many social groups such as cancer patients the elderly schoolchildren and people with disabilities were particularly vulnerable to the psychosocial effects of the COVID 19 pandemic In light of current data even the WHO suggests that the psychological context of the pandemic may have caused more psychological damage than World War II Some researchers also infer the existence already of a post pandemic stress syndrome which is currently not an official medical diagnosis but rather a subtype of PTSD that is being diagnosed Also noted in the context of the pandemic is the breakdown of many social ties due to isolation loneliness the development of symptoms of depressive or anxiety disorders and the transformation of social life Thus it seems reasonable to estimate the magnitude of phenomena of psychosocial importance resulting from the impact of the epidemiological situation associated with the COVID 19 pandemic The primary issue to be considered within the framework of the topic is the identification of psychosocial factors affecting the quality of mental and social health of various social groups which are determined by the epidemiological situation associated with COVID 19 In this view the determining variables will be personal feelings of stress fear anxiety depression discouragement alienation and loneliness and in a global sense the reference of these phenomena to the comfort and quality of social life with particular emphasis on interpersonal relationships COVID 19 as mentioned above continues to be an important social issue and although the situation related to it has recently softened and media reports becoming less frequent It is inferred that we will only now see the full impact of the problems associated with the mental health crisis and the breakdown of interpersonal relationships caused by the COVID 19 pandemic
