The American Psychiatric Association Practice Guideline for the Treatment of Patients With Borderline Personality Disorder American Psychiatric Association, 2024-11-13

Borderline personality disorder BPD is estimated to have a lifetime prevalence in the United States of approximately 1.4% to 2.7%. It is characterized by a long term pattern of instability in interpersonal relationships, unstable self image, marked impulsivity and or affective instability. In addition, features can be evidenced by efforts to avoid real or feared abandonment, chronic feelings of emptiness, mood reactivity, recurrent self injurious or suicidal behavior, other impulsive behaviors with potential for self damaging effects, intense anger or difficulty with anger control, and transient paranoid ideation or stress related dissociative symptoms. Although these manifestations can be quite heterogeneous, the lived experience of BPD can be associated with significant emotional pain and a diminished quality of life. Many individuals with BPD have co occurring psychiatric or somatic conditions and all cause mortality is increased among those with BPD. Furthermore, the lifetime burden and psychosocial impairment associated with BPD can be substantial because it typically has an early onset and can persist for many years. These significant consequences support the need for early identification of BPD. Importantly, in contrast to many earlier views, BPD treatment is effective and symptoms can be reduced and managed.

The American Psychiatric Association Practice Guideline for the Treatment of Patients With Borderline Personality Disorder reviews current evidence and provides evidence based statements that are intended to optimize the treatment of BPD. The guideline focuses on evidence based treatments and includes additional information on assessment and treatment planning which are an integral part of patient centered care. It describes approaches to implementing recommendations and suggestions in clinical practice. By providing up to date knowledge, the guideline aims to help clinicians feel more confident in their skills for treating patients with BPD, thereby improving the care and well being of their patients.

Integrated Textbook of Geriatric Mental Health Donna Cohen,Carl Eisdorfer,2011-09-01 As the population ages increasing numbers of older people require the attention and services of mental health professionals Despite their prevalence however mental health problems in this population often go undiagnosed and therefore untreated This textbook offers medical students and professionals the information they need to care for older people with mental disorders Drs Donna Cohen and Carl Eisdorfer two internationally recognized experts in geriatric mental health provide a comprehensive framework within which students and practitioners alike can address the salient issues of the field. These include the biopsychosocial aging processes, specific pathologies prevalent in later life, social issues common to the elderly, the delivery of care in various settings, and the economic policies affecting services for older people. The authors' goal is not only to enhance clinical practice but also to urge physicians to develop and coordinate a more holistic care strategy that acknowledges the complex challenges of older patients. To this end, Cohen and Eisdorfer discuss essential principles of optimal care, the latest research findings, evidence and consensus based practice standards, resources to help professionals keep abreast of the changing mental health landscape, and ethical dilemmas of clinical practice and research. The signal strength of this book lies in its integrated approach, an approach that emphasizes the philosophy and principles of caring for older people along with clinical practices and issues. From this broader perspective, the authors describe the many factors that influence the lives, health, and well-being of older patients and their caregivers, making this an ideal text for psychiatrists, psychologists, nurses, and social workers.
