Geriatric Psychiatry and the Law Richard Rosner, Harold I. Schwartz, 1987 As President of the American Academy of Psychiatry and the Law (AAPL) it is my pleasure to provide this Foreword for the third volume of Critical Issues in American Psychiatry and the Law. Through Dr Richard Rosner's creativity and effort the first volume of the series was published in 1982. It represented the first major publishing activity of the AAPL other than the Bulletin and the Newsletter. Dr Rosner carefully nurtured the project and the second volume, once again addressing a broad range of forensic issues, was published in 1985. The appearance of the third volume brings two major changes to the series. Dr Rosner shares editorship of this volume with Harold I. Schwartz and this is the first of the series to be devoted entirely to one area in forensic psychiatry: the elderly. This is a priority subject. As the baby boom ages and technology for extending life increases, the profile of our population is maturing. The aging of the nation brings with it problems of chronic care, the dementias, the fear of prolonging dying rather than extending meaningful life, the social question of increasing health care costs, and the medical and human question of legal and ethical protection of the elderly patient. This volume could not be more timely. As Bernice Neugarten has pointed out, we must avoid stereotyping the elderly. Many individuals bring to older age a rich repertoire of interests, abilities, and insights. Among the elderly are the young old. State Mental Hospitals and the Elderly American Psychiatric Association. Task Force on Geriatric Psychiatry in the Public Mental Health Sector, 1993 By 1987 elderly patients comprised nearly one fifth of all residents of state and county mental hospitals. During the past three decades the deinstitutionalization movement has profoundly altered the care of elderly patients in state and county mental hospitals. In this task force report, leaders in the fields of geriatrics and long term care present an overview of state run mental hospitals. This report recommends the establishment of efficient high quality and appropriately targeted state mental hospital services for elderly patients that will lead to the development of a comprehensive psychogeriatric care system State Mental Hospitals and the Elderly presents a review of the history and current status of care of elderly patients the barriers that exist to improving psychogeriatric services paradigms of psychogeriatric inpatient care the role state hospitals play in the care of mentally ill elderly patients the responsibilities of state mental hospitals for elderly patients with Alzheimer s disease and related disorders training opportunities at state hospitals for residents and fellows in geriatric psychiatry and recommendations for action needed to improve geriatric care for elderly patients BOOK JACKET Title Summary field provided by Blackwell North America Inc All Rights Reserved Geriatric Psychiatry, An Issue of Clinics in Geriatric Medicine Dan G.
