Research Interviewing Context And Narrative:

Research Interviewing Elliot George MISHLER, Elliot George Mishler, 2009-06-30 Interviews hold a prominent place among the various research methods in the social and behavioral sciences This book presents a powerful critique of current views and techniques and proposes a new approach to interviewing At the heart of Elliot Mishler's argument is the notion that an interview is a type of discourse a speech event it is a joint product shaped and organized by asking and answering questions This view may seem self evident yet it does not guide most interview research In the mainstream tradition the discourse is suppressed Questions and answers are regarded as analogues to stimuli and responses rather than as forms of speech questions and the interviewer's behavior are standardized so that all respondents will receive the same stimulus respondents social and personal contexts of meaning are ignored While many researchers now recognize that context must be taken into account the question of how to do so effectively has not been resolved This important book illustrates how to implement practical alternatives to standard interviewing methods Drawing on current work in sociolinguistics as well as on his own extensive experience conducting interviews Mishler shows how interviews can be analyzed and interpreted as narrative accounts He places interviewing in a sociocultural context and examines the effects on respondents of different types of interviewing practice The respondents themselves he believes should be granted a more extensive role as participants and collaborators in the research process The book is an elegant work of synthesis clearly and persuasively written and supported by concrete examples of both standard interviewing and alternative methods It will be of interest to both scholars and clinicians in all the various fields for which the interview is an essential tool

W. Bamberg,Anna De Fina,Deborah Schiffrin,2007 The different traditions that have inspired the contributors to this volume can be divided along three different orientations one that is rooted predominantly in sociolinguistics a second that is ethnomethodologically informed and a third that came in the wake of narrative interview research All three share a commitment to view self and identity not as essential properties of the person but as constituted in discursive practices and particularly in narrative Moreover since self and identity are held to be phenomena that are contextually and continually generated they are defined and viewed in the plural as selves and identities In the attempt of moving closer toward a process oriented approach to the formation of selves and identities this volume sets the stage for future discussions of the role of narrative and discourse in this generation process and for how a close analysis of these processes can advance an understanding of the world around us and within this world of identities and selves Narratives of Childhood Domestic Violence Tanya Frances, 2025-04-01 Narratives of Childhood Domestic Violence explores young women's accounts of transitions to young adulthood after domestic violence in childhood from a psychological perspective. This book centres a dialogue about epistemic justice and how experiences of violence that are marginal, marginalised and less easily understood through dominant discourses can be listened to and heard. Taking a critical feminist psychological approach, Frances examines gendered and socio-culturally located narrative practices, arguing that narratives about change and transition in young adulthood after childhood domestic violence both reinscribe societal narratives that can be constraining and present stories of resistance and hope. This book draws attention to the difficulties of being heard and understood when articulating an experience that sits in tension with normative expectations and trajectories for families and children growing up within them. It also examines how tensions in storytelling practices are articulated in creative, nuanced and diverse ways. Frances ends the book by offering considerations for theory, research and practice, including practical implications and interventions and recommendations for policy. This is an essential resource for academics and students interested in violence against women, feminist psychology, childhood abuse and concerns around epistemic justice, as well as professionals in counselling, social work, charity work, law and policy making.

Postmodern Interviewing Jaber F. Gubrium, 2003-03-21 Interview roles are less clear than they once were and in some cases the roles are even exchanged to promote new opportunities for understanding the shape and evolution of selves and experience. Postmodern Interviewing offers readers an exploration of the postmodern interview, a conversation with diverse purposes in which the communicative format is constructed as much within the interview conversation as it stems from pre-designated research interests. It provides cutting edge discussions of emerging horizons featuring reflexivity, poetics and power, along with discussions of new ways of gathering experiential knowledge. Employing concepts from anthropology, family studies, history and sociology, the contributors present the ambitious new directions in which the interview has gone, such as: How the interview process is refracted through the lens of language, knowledge, culture and difference; How the dividing line between fact and fiction is blurred to promote richer understanding; How standardized representation has given way to representational invention. By exploring these exciting developments, readers will be exposed to the engaging opportunities for understanding the shape and evolution of selves and social worlds that are made possible through changes in the interview process. This volume is comprised of chapters from the Handbook of Interview Research. Gubrium and Holstein, SAGE, 2001. The companion volume Inside Interviewing, SAGE, 2003, is also comprised of chapters from the Handbook.
