The Concepts of the Divine in the Greek Magical Papyri Eleni Pachoumi, 2017-05-05 Eleni Pachoumi looks at the concepts of the divine in the Greek magical papyri by way of a careful and detailed analysis of ritual practices and spells. Her aim is to uncover the underlying religious, philosophical and mystical parallelisms and influences on the Greek magical papyri. She starts by examining the religious and philosophical concept of the personal daimon and the union of the individual with his personal daimon through the magico-theurgic ritual of systasis. She then goes on to analyze the religious concept of paredros as the divine assistant and the various relationships between paredros, the divine and the individual. To round off, she studies the concept of the divine through the manifold religious and philosophical assimilations, mainly between Greek, Egyptian, Hellenized gods and divine abstract concepts of Jewish origins. Priests, Tongues, and Rites Jacob Dieleman, 2005-05-01

This book is an investigation into the sphere of production and use of two related bilingual magical handbooks found as part of a larger collection of magical and alchemical manuscripts around 1828 in the hills surrounding Luxor, Egypt. Both handbooks, dating to the Roman period, contain an assortment of recipes for magical rites in the Demotic and Greek language. The library, which comprises these two handbooks, is nowadays better known as the Theban Magical Library. The book traces the social and cultural milieu of the composers, compilers and users of the extant spells through a combination of philology, sociolinguistics and cultural analysis. To anybody working on Greco-Roman Egypt, ancient magic and bilingualism, this study is of significant importance. Spiritual Taxonomies and Ritual Authority Heidi Marx-Wolf, 2016-02-02

Religions of Second Millennium Anatolia Piotr Taracha, 2009. This book examines Hittite religion from a historical point of view, stressing two basically different stages in its development. The Old Hittite pantheon of the capital Hattu maintains the indigenous religious tradition of the Hattians without any trace of Mesopotamian, Hurrian or Syrian influence, although Hittite and Luwian deities were worshiped in the family and house cults.

The Hittite religion of the Empire period has been examined from a new viewpoint. At the time there were two official pantheons in the state and the dynastic cult respectively. The former is an amalgam of Hattian, Hittite, Luwian, Hurrian, Syrian and Mesopotamian deities organized on a geographical principle, whereas the latter is purely Hurrian, reflecting the religious beliefs of the new royal family of Kizzuwatnan origin that also influenced local pantheons of central and northern Anatolia. Through the Hurrians, Mesopotamian and Syrian cults were adopted. Simultaneously, many aspects of the Luwian religious tradition were absorbed into both the state and local cults.

Magic in the Ancient Eastern Mediterranean Nina Nikki, Kirsi M.J. Valkama, 2020-12-14. Magic in the Ancient Eastern Mediterranean: Cognitive, Historical and Material Perspectives brings together articles with the shared conviction that the category of magic remains useful in religious studies and provides new insights to biblical and related texts and artifacts. Historically, magic has been considered in both scholarly and popular discourse to be questionable, obscure and potentially subversive. 19th-century scholars of religion viewed magical beliefs and practices as primitive and inferior compared to Judeo-Christian forms of worship which were considered true religion. More recently, the category has been defended especially by scholars of the cognitive science of religion who find it useful for delineating a set of beliefs and practices fundamental to all forms of religion. The volume joins current scholarship in refraining from using the concept as an othering device and in arguing that it can still serve as a helpful analytical tool. In addition to analyzing the discourse on magic in both ancient literature and modern scholarship, the articles provide individual examples of how literary and material culture attest to the existence of magical beliefs and practices in sources from the Ancient Near East to the Byzantine Period. The book is divided into three parts. The contributions in the first part approach magic from the theoretical perspective of cognitive studies, ritual studies and cultural evolution, while the rest of the book focuses on how magic and magicians are understood in ancient sources. The second part discusses a specific set of textual material dealing with blessings and curses. The third part of the volume discusses the world of various destructive celestial beings from which one and one's loved ones had to be defended, as well as the multitude of protective beings such as angels.

Korpel, Johannes C. de Moor, 2011-03-24 The silence of God is a recurring theme in modern reflection It is not only addressed in theology religious studies and philosophy but also in literary fiction film and theatre The authors show that the concept of a silent deity emerged in the ancient Near East including Greece What did the Ancients mean when they assumed that under circumstances their deities remained silent What reasons are discernable for silence between human beings and their gods For the first time the close interrelation between the divine and the human in the revelatory process is demonstrated here on the basis of a wealth of translated ancient texts In an intriguing epilogue the authors explore the theological consequences of what they have found

Language, Cognition, and Biblical Exegesis Ronit Nikolsky, István Czachesz, Frederick S. Tappenden, Tamás Biró, 2019-06-13 What role do texts play in religious practice What is the relationship between these texts and cognition Are some texts more successful because they are better adapted to our cognitive structures Why is biblical interpretation necessary and what is the cognitive process behind it This book considers such questions and fills the gap in research on religious texts and narratives in the cognitive science of religion The study of ancient religions and biblical studies are dominated by textual evidence However the cognitive science of religion is lacking significant research on the language and textual interpretation of this literature This book presents a systematic attempt to redefine the interpretation of religious texts in a cognitive framework providing concrete textual analysis on a broad selection of biblical passages It explores the ways that cognitive approaches to language and textual interpretation expand the disciplines of the cognitive science of religion and biblical studies This book brings together methodology from the cognitive sciences linguistics philology biblical studies and religious studies to offer a new perspective for biblical studies and cognitive sciences It presents a renewed vision of textual interpretation one that aligns hermeneutical reflection with our cognitive capacities

The Literary Construction of the Other in the Acts of the Apostles Mitzi J Smith, 2012-06-28 Mitzi Smith engages the reader in explaining how as in the real world the characterization of the Others is used negatively in the biblical texts Smith shows how the concept of difference is constructed in order to distinguish ourselves from proximate others indeed the other who is most similar to us is most threatening and most problematic The process of Othering or Otherness is a synthetic and political social construct that allows us to create and maintain boundaries between them and us Thus this work demonstrates how proximate characters are constructed as the Other in the Acts of the Apostles Charismatics Jews and women are proximate others who are constructed as the external and internal Others

Ontological Aspects of Early Jewish Anthropology Tyson L. Putthoff, 2016-11-28 In Ontological Aspects of Early Jewish Anthropology Tyson L Putthoff explores early Jewish beliefs about how the human self reacts ontologically in God's presence. Combining contemporary theory with sound exegesis, Putthoff demonstrates that early Jews widely considered the self to be intrinsically malleable such that it mimics the ontological state of the space it inhabits. In divine space, they believed the self therefore shares in the ontological state of God himself. The book is critical for students and scholars alike. In putting forth a new framework for conceptualising early Jewish anthropology, it challenges scholars to rethink not only what early Jews believed about the self but how we approach the subject in the first place.

Desert Transformations Christian Frevel, 2020-02-11 Christian Frevel brings the Book of Numbers regularly misunderstood interplay between narrative and legislative material into a new light, examining its texts equally as inner biblical interpretations and tradition-bound innovations.
