quality food products Farmers operators and retailers from distant cultures are coping with different standards facing the ever increasing necessity for mutual understanding This publication is the output of Bean Quorum a European funded Asia Link project Bean Quorum represents a consolidated network of researchers working together with the business sector and NGOs to enhance European Asian understanding about organic and quality food This book describes global trends in organic and quality food trade and connects them with recent developments in Asian and European market structures Selected case studies illustrate the impact of organic and quality food production on topics ranging from sustainable rural development to the potential of exotic new plant varieties to purchase decisions of European or Asian retail managers Selected European markets are mirrored by the situation in Chinese and Thai markets Finally environmental issues concerning global trade of quality food are addressed

Successes in African Agriculture Haggblade, Steven, Hazell, Peter B. R., 2010-01-01 Sub Saharan Africa is one of the poorest regions of the world Because most Africans work in agriculture escaping such dire poverty depends on increased agricultural productivity to raise rural incomes lower food prices and stimulate growth in other economic sectors Per capita agricultural production in sub Saharan Africa has fallen however for much of the past half century Successes in African Agriculture investigates how to reverse this decline Instead of cataloging failures as many past studies have done this book identifies episodes of successful agricultural growth in Africa and identifies processes practices and policies for accelerated growth in the future The individual studies follow developments in among other areas the farming of maize in East and Southern Africa cassava across the middle belt of Africa cotton in West Africa horticulture in Kenya and dairying in East Africa Drawing on these case studies and on consultations with agricultural specialists and politicians from across sub Saharan Africa undertaken in collaboration with the African Union s New Partnership for Africa s Development the contributors identify two key determinants of positive agricultural performance agricultural research to provide more productive and sustainable technologies to farmers and a policy framework that fosters market incentives for increasing production The contributors discuss how the public and private sectors can best coordinate the convergence of both factors Given current concerns about global food security this book provides timely and important resources to policymakers and development specialists concerned with reversing the negative trends in food insecurity and poverty in Africa

How the World Hunger Problem Was not Solved Christian Gerlach, 2024-02-14 The world food crisis 1972 1975 gave rise to new development concepts To eradicate world hunger small peasants were supposed to use modern inputs like high yielding seeds fertilizer pesticides and irrigation This would turn subsistence producers into business owners transform rural areas invigorate national economies and the crisis stricken world economy and thus stabilize capitalism Together with an in depth account of the world food crisis this book analyses how this global scheme largely failed It shows its diverse initiators their reasoning and motives its political breakthrough the degrees to which it was implemented globally and nationally in the following decades and its socioeconomic effects in rural areas Despite internationally coordinated policies and coercive means the scheme failed on all levels situation analysis design policies incapable institutions including big business implementation and peasants responses Selective realization in certain regions and for certain crops and the appropriation of funds by local elites often aggravated inequality and hunger Case studies are about Bangladesh Indonesia Tanzania and Mali The book shows limits to global social engineering imperialism and state control It is aimed at students scholars activists and non specialists interested in development and the world food problem The Open Access version of this book available at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 4.0 license

Community Seed Production Sustainability in

Rice-Wheat Farming Narayan Prasad Khanal, Keshav Lall Maharjan, 2015-05-07 This book analyzes the sustainability of community seed production under a rice wheat farming system from microeconomic perspectives considering how seed producers benefit from community seed production and how those benefits continue into the future Seed producers performance in resource management governance and marketing strategies indicates current benefits whereas soil conservation and risk management practices provide the basis for future benefits Community seed production is a local level seed management system owned by farmers This system provides the institutional mechanism to supply diversified seed demands of open pollinated varieties of food crops in a cost effective way in rural regions Being able to address the concerns of food insecurity poverty climate stress and biodiversity loss in programs and policies of development agencies community seed production is gaining popularity among the farmers and the policy makers in developing countries This book discusses the issues of organizational governance of the community seed producers groups and links them with household level benefits to understand the organizational dynamism and the probable development paths of such organizations in the future It also highlights the necessity to institutionalize lessons learned in community seed production in the stakeholders programs and policies These understandings provide a basis for formulating policies for strengthening the system in developing countries Students researchers policy makers and donor agencies working with CSP in the developing world will find this book useful in broadening their understanding of CSP in general and its sustainability in particular

Efficient Conservation Of Crop Genetic Diversity Detlef Virchow, 2013-03-09

The book reflects the work in progress regarding the analysis of the costs of crop genetic resources conservation that has been conducted at various research institutes over the last couple of years including research conducted at ZEF and associated institutes In addition contributions in this publication were presented at a special session during the Global Dialogue The Role of the Village in the 21 Century Crops Jobs and Livelihood in Hannover Germany at the World Exposition in August 2000 The purpose of the publication is to make a general contribution to the ongoing discussion about the conservation of crop genetic resources as part of the global strategy to secure increasing food production in a sustainable way Specifically it discusses the costs of the worldwide efforts to conserve crop genetic resources on the basis of theoretical and applied studies. It aims to serve decision makers at different levels with information on the costs involved in the conservation of genetic resources and hence to increase the awareness of the importance of improving the cost effectiveness of different conservation methods in order to optimize the sustainability of conservation. The quoted Leipzig Declaration which was adopted at the Fourth International Technical Conference on Plant Genetic Resources in Leipzig in June 1996 demonstrates the close linkage of the contributions to the ongoing discussion about the implementation of the Global Plan of Action for the Conservation and Sustainable Utilization of Plant Genetic Resources for Food and Agriculture.

Seed Trade in Rural Markets
Leslie Lipper, C. Leigh Anderson, Timothy J. Dalton, 2009-12-01
Markets have been found to be an increasingly important source of the seeds of crops and varieties. Low income farmers need to improve their livelihoods encompassing both the formal and informal seed sector. Markets also have major impacts on agricultural biodiversity by affecting farmers' choice of crops and varieties to grow. They are not however a homogeneous institution although all too frequently policies and regulations are developed as though they were. Markets vary considerably depending on the participants, on the institutions that govern how and what they exchange and on local agricultural economic and social conditions. Developing effective strategies to improve the way agricultural markets work including how farmers use crop genetic resources requires understanding of these variations. Seed Trade in Rural Markets presents a unique set of case studies from Bolivia, India, Kenya, Mali and Mexico on agricultural seed and product markets that describe three important market characteristics expected to affect farmers' access to seeds and varieties: the range of varieties on offer, the information provided about them and relative prices. The case studies all based around a common framework to aid comparability also provide information on social, agricultural and economic factors which may be affecting the market availability, information and cost of crop genetic resources and ultimately the capacity to stimulate agricultural development. Published with the Food and Agriculture Organization, FAO of the United Nations.

Reasserting the Rural Development Agenda Arsenio Molina Balisacan, 2003-08-01
The agricultural sector's perceived importance in the international development circle waned dramatically after the 1980s and investments in rural development and agricultural research and development declined sharply. This volume reasserts the role of agricultural and rural development in the economic development debate. By revisiting the evolution of ideas, paradigms and empirical evidence and by drawing on Asian experiences, the book intends to set a reinvigorated agenda on agricultural and rural development both for research and policy discussions in the coming decades. Written by internationally acknowledged research scholars, this book is helpful to a wide range of audience including researchers, policymakers, practitioners and students interested in rural development in Asia and its future evolutions.
