Nikkei In The Pacific Northwest:

Nikkei in the Pacific Northwest Louis Fiset, Gail M. Nomura, 2011-10-01 Challenging the notion that Nikkei individuals before and during World War II were helpless pawns manipulated by forces beyond their control the diverse essays in this rich collection focus on the theme of resistance within Japanese American and Japanese Canadian communities to twentieth century political cultural and legal discrimination They illustrate how Nikkei groups were mobilized to fight discrimination through assertive legal challenges community participation skillful print publicity and political and economic organization Comprised of all new and original research this is the first anthology to highlight the contributions and histories of Nikkei within the entire Pacific Northwest including British Columbia The Triumph of Citizenship Patricia E. Roy, 2011-11-01

In this companion volume to A White Man's Province and The Oriental Question Patricia E Roy examines the climax of antipathy to Asians in Canada the removal of all Japanese Canadians from the BC coast in 1942 Their free return was not allowed until 1949 Yet the war also brought increased respect for Chinese Canadians they were enfranchised in 1947 and the federal government softened its ban on Chinese immigration The Triumph of Citizenship explains why Canada ignored the rights of Japanese Canadians and placed strict limits on Chinese immigration In response Japanese Canadians and their supporters in the human rights movement managed to halt repatriation to Japan and Chinese Canadians successfully lobbied for the same rights as other Canadians to sponsor immigrants The final triumph of citizenship came in 1967 when immigration regulations were overhauled and the last remnants of discrimination removed The Triumph of Citizenship reminds all Canadians of the values and limits of their citizenship students of political history and of ethnic relations in particular will find this book compelling Nisei Soldiers Break Their Silence Linda Tamura, 2012-12-15 Nisei Soldiers Break Their Silence is a compelling story of courage community endurance and reparation It shares the experiences of Japanese Americans Nisei who served in the U S Army during World War II fighting on the front lines in Italy and France serving as linguists in the South Pacific and working as cooks and medics The soldiers were from Hood River Oregon where their families were landowners and fruit growers Town leaders including veterans groups attempted to prevent their return after the war and stripped their names from the local war memorial All of the soldiers were American citizens but their parents were Japanese immigrants and had been imprisoned in camps as a consequence of Executive Order 9066 The racist homecoming that the Hood River Japanese American soldiers received was decried across the nation Linda Tamura who grew up in Hood River and whose father was a veteran of the war conducted extensive oral histories with the veterans their families and members of the community She had access to hundreds of recently uncovered letters and documents from private files of a local veterans group that led the campaign against the Japanese American soldiers This book also includes the little known story of local Nisei veterans who spent 40 years appealing their convictions for insubordination Watch the book trailer <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=hHMcFdmixLk> Prisons and Patriots Cherstin Lyon, 2012 Prisons and Patriots provides a detailed account of forty one Nisei second generation Japanese Americans known as the Tucsonians who were imprisoned for resisting the draft during WWII Cherstin Lyon parallels their courage as resisters with that of civil rights hero Gordon Hirabayashi well known for his legal battle against curfew and internment who also resisted the draft These dual stories highlight the intrinsic relationship between the rights and the obligations of citizenship particularly salient in times of war Lyon considers how wartime civil disobedience has been remembered through history how soldiers have been celebrated for their valor while resisters have been demonized as unpatriotic Using archival research and interviews she presents a complex picture of loyalty and conflict among first generation Issei and Nisei Lyon contends that the success of the redress movement has made room for a narrative that neither reduces the wartime confinement to a source of shame nor proffers an uncritical account of heroic individuals

An Eye for Injustice Jim Azumano,Daniel Sakura,Hanako Wakatsuki,2021-06-22 As wartime hysteria mounted following the December 1941 attack on Pearl Harbor President Franklin D Roosevelt issued Executive Order 9066 and the U S government began forcibly relocating all West Coast individuals with Japanese ancestry to one of ten sites in inland states Totaling close to 120 000 the majority were American citizens The Minidoka War Relocation Center a newly constructed camp at Hunt Idaho first opened in August 1942 Most of its approximately 9 300 incarcerated came from Portland Seattle Tacoma and surrounding regions It was a painful experience with lasting repercussions Minidoka s last occupant left in October 1945 Dr Robert C Sims devoted nearly half his life to research writing and education related to the unjust World War II Japanese American incarceration Six of his previously published articles as well as selections from conference papers and speeches focus on topics such as Idaho Governor Chase Clark s role in the involuntary removal decision life in camp the impact of Japanese labor on Idaho s sugar beet and potato harvests the effects of loyalty questionnaires and more His impassioned yet still academic approach to Minidoka is an important addition to others published memoirs and photo collections In new essays contributors share insights into Sims passion for social justice and how Minidoka became his platform along with information about the Robert C Sims Collection at Boise State University Finally the book recounts the thirty five year effort to memorialize the Minidoka site Now part of the National Park System it highlights a national tragedy and the resilience of these victims of injustice

Cartographies of Violence Mona Oikawa, 2012-09-10 In 1942 the federal government expelled more than 22 000 Japanese Canadians from their homes in British Columbia From 1942 to 1949 they were dispossessed sent to incarceration sites and dispersed across Canada Over 4 000 were deported to Japan Cartographies of Violence analyses the effects of these processes for some Japanese Canadian women Using critical race feminist anti colonial and cultural geographic theory Mona Oikawa deconstructs prevalent images stereotypes and language used to describe the Internment in ways that masks its inherent violence Through interviews with women survivors and their daughters Oikawa analyses recurring themes of racism and resistance as well as the struggle to communicate what happened

Disturbing and provocative Cartographies of Violence explores women's memories in order to map the effects of forced displacements, incarcerations, and the separations of family, friends, and communities. Forgotten Things Robert J. Muckle, 2022-04-27 Based on a long-term archaeology project, Forgotten Things provides an account of working with field school students to discover and excavate archaeological sites, including early twentieth-century Japanese camps in the Seymour Valley of British Columbia. The first book in the new Teaching Archaeology series, Forgotten Things gives students a real-world example of archaeological research in practice. It provides an overview of the Seymour Valley Archaeology Project from the initial phone call to the disposition of artifacts and archiving of records. The book takes the reader from the inception of the project through fieldwork, laboratory work, drawing inferences, and making the research meaningful. It delves into considerations that guide research design and methods and examines the culture of archaeological fieldwork. Through anecdotes, stories from the field, and extracts from field notes, Forgotten Things offers rare insight into the realities of archaeological research, not often seen in archaeological studies. Social Welfare Policy Jerome H. Schiele, 2011 This book examines the conceptual, historical, and practical implications that various social policies in the United States have had on ethnic minorities. Montana: A Cultural Medley Robert R. Swartout, Jr., 2015-07-15 The whole is greater than the sum of the parts when Montana historian Robert Swartout gathers the fascinating stories of the state's surprisingly diverse ethnic groups into this thought-provoking collection of essays. Fourteen chapters showcase an African American nightclub in Great Falls, a Japanese American war hero, the founding of a Métis community, Jewish merchants, and Dutch settlement in the Gallatin Valley, as well as stories of Irish Scots, Chinese, Finns, Mexican Americans, European war brides, and more.

Subverting Exclusion Andrea Geiger, 2011-11-29 Concerned with people called variously eta, buraku, min buraku, jumin buraku, people outcasts, or the lowest of the low, this book examines how their experience of caste status based discrimination in 19th-century Japan affected their experience of race-based discrimination in the West of the US and Canada in the 19th and early 20th centuries. Nisei Naysayer James Matsumoto Omura, 2018-08-28 Among the fiercest opponents of the mass incarceration of Japanese Americans during World War II was journalist James Jimmie Matsumoto Omura. In his sharp-penned columns, Omura fearlessly called out leaders in the Nikkei community for what he saw as their complicity with the U.S. government's unjust and unconstitutional policies, particularly the federal decision to draft imprisoned Nisei into the military without first restoring their lost citizenship rights. In 1944, Omura was pushed out of his editorship of the Japanese American newspaper Rocky Shimpo, indicted, arrested, jailed, and forced to stand trial for unlawful conspiracy to counsel aid and abet violations of the military draft. He was among the first Nikkei to seek governmental redress and reparations for wartime violations of civil liberties and human rights. In this memoir, which he began writing towards the end of his life, Omura provides a vivid account of his early years, his boyhood on Bainbridge Island, summers spent working in the salmon canneries of Alaska, riding the rails in search of work during the Great Depression, honing his skills as a journalist in Los Angeles and San Francisco By the time of the attack on Pearl Harbor Omura had already developed a reputation as one of the Japanese American Citizens League s most adamant critics and when the JACL leadership acquiesced to the mass incarceration of American born Japanese he refused to remain silent at great personal and professional cost Shunned by the Nikkei community and excluded from the standard narrative of Japanese American wartime incarceration until later in life Omura seeks in this memoir to correct the cockeyed history to which Japanese America has been exposed Edited and with an introduction by historian Arthur A Hansen and with contributions from Asian American activists and writers Frank Chin Yosh Kuromiya and Frank Abe Nisei Naysayer provides an essential firsthand account of Japanese American wartime resistance

Terrain of Memory Kirsten Emiko McAllister, 2011-01-01 For communities who have been the target of political violence the after effects can haunt what remains of their families their communities and the societies in which they live Terrain of Memory tells the story of the Japanese Canadian elders who built a memorial in 1994 to mark a village in an isolated mountainous valley in British Columbia with their history of internment It explores memory as a powerful collective cultural practice following elders and locals as they worked together to transform a site of political violence into a space for remembrance They transformed a valley where once over 7 000 women men and children were interned into a pilgrimage site where Japanese Canadians can mourn and also pay their respects to the wartime generation This is a compelling story about how collectively excavating painful memories can contribute to building relations across social and intergenerational divides Commemoration in America David Gobel, Daves Rossell, 2013-09-03 Commemoration lies at the poetic historiographic and social heart of human community It is how societies define themselves and is central to the institution of the city Addressing the complex ways that monuments in the United States have been imagined created and perceived from the colonial period to the present Commemoration in America is a wide ranging volume that focuses on the role of remembrance and memorialization in American urban life The volume s contributors are drawn from a spectrum of disciplines social and urban history urban planning architecture art history preservation and architectural history and take a broad view of commemoration In addition to the making of traditional monuments the essays explore such commemorative acts as building preservation biography portraiture ritual performance street naming and the planting of trees Providing an overview of American memorialization and the impulses behind it Commemoration in America emphasizes a universal tendency for individuals and groups to use monuments to define their contemporary social identity and to construct historical narratives The volume shows that while commemorative acts and objects affect the community in fundamental ways their meaning is always multivalent and conflicted attesting to both triumphs and tragedies Constituting a vital part of both individual and national identity commemoration s contradictions strike at the core of American identity and speak to the importance of remembrance in the construction of our diverse national cultural landscape Contributors Jhennifer A Amundson Judson University Catherine W Bishir North Carolina State University Libraries Thomas J Campanella University

Intimate Strangers Tritia Toyota, 2023-10-20 This book offers a story of new migration and community transformation Via an ethnographic study of young Japanese women migrants shin Issei Tritia Toyota details how they make place space for themselves among generations of Japanese Americans with shifting alterations of membership and belonging that are neither seamless nor easily acknowledged Encyclopedia of Japanese American Internment Gary Y. Okihiro, 2013-06-11 This book addresses the forced removal and confinement of Japanese Americans during World War II a topic significant to all Americans regardless of race or color The internment of Japanese Americans was a violation of the Constitution and its guarantee of equal protection under the law yet it was authorized by a presidential order given substance by an act of Congress and affirmed by the U S Supreme Court Japanese internment is a topic that we as Americans cannot afford to forget or be ignorant of This work spotlights an important subject that is often only described in a cursory fashion in general textbooks It provides a comprehensive accessible treatment of the events of Japanese American internment that includes topical event and biographical entries a chronology and comprehensive bibliography and primary documents that help bring the event to life for readers and promote inquiry and critical thinking

Multidisciplinary Representations of Home and Homeland in Diaspora Jean Amato, Kyunghee Pyun, 2024-12-20 This collection explores our fascination with homes across time cultures and disciplines while unpacking the relationship between private yearning and public belonging illustrating the limitations and fluidity of identity and affiliation through the idea of homes and ancestral homelands While rooted in comparative literature and critical art history in the context of diaspora studies the book s approach intersects with cultural geography gender and sexuality studies critical race theory architecture urban studies film studies nationalism postcolonial theory sociology and migration studies Conceived as relational and changing the collection emphasizes that home homeland studies are plural and fluctuating concepts encompassing multi local affiliations places gender roles languages practices relations and power In this tangled site of contesting national discourses affiliations nostalgias and ideologies we can uncover valuable insight into how we construct the story of ourselves through traveling bodies spaces homes and mixed geographies

An Archaeology of Asian Transnationalism Douglas E. Ross, 2013-10-22 In the early twentieth century an industrial salmon cannery thrived along the Fraser River in British Columbia Chinese factory workers lived in an adjoining bunkhouse and Japanese fishermen lived with their families in a nearby camp Today the complex is nearly gone and the site overgrown with vegetation but artifacts from these immigrant communities linger just beneath the surface In this groundbreaking comparative archaeological study of Asian immigrants in North America Douglas

Ross excavates the Ewen Cannery to explore how its immigrant workers formed a new cultural identity in the face of dramatic displacement Ross demonstrates how some homeland practices persisted while others changed in response to new contextual factors reflecting the complexity of migrant experiences Instead of treating ethnicity as a bounded stable category Ross shows that ethnic identity is shaped and transformed as cultural traditions from home and host societies come together in the context of local choices structural constraints and consumer society
