circulation of goods services capital and persons among its members and to secure deep economic integration through collaboration across a broader set of policy areas than typically obtains in more traditional preferential trade agreements This volume is of interest to policy makers and staff of international organizations involved in trade and investment negotiations international economic governance in general as well as faculty researchers and graduate students of these topics and of international political economy and comparative regionalism

Rules of Thumb for Evaluating Preferential Trading Arrangements Glenn W. Harrison, 2016 Most interesting results on the welfare effects of regional arrangements are ambiguous at a theoretical level Many questions only have quantitative answers that are specific to the particular structural features of the economy and the policy considered So to determine the impact of prospective regional arrangements governments often rely on a quantitative evaluation Usually at the request of client governments of the World Bank the authors have implemented many computable general equilibrium CGE models to inform policymakers The authors summarize the main conclusions drawn from these studies The principal conclusions are Countries excluded from a preferential trade arrangement almost always lose Market access is a key determinant of the net benefits of a preferential trade arrangement With a free trade agreement FTA the external tariff can be lowered such that a poor FTA becomes attractive For Southern countries North South agreements offer a beneficial increase in competition in their home markets and involve little increase in the supply price of Northern country sales in Southern countries Multilateral trade liberalization results in significantly larger gains to the world than the network of regional arrangements For individual countries without high protection quot additive regionalismquot will likely result in substantially larger gains than unilateral trade liberalization Tax replacement requirements reduce the set of desirable regional arrangements Trade taxes are often an inefficient source of tax revenue Trade liberalization should be expected to be pro poor in developing countries but results will be diverse at the household level so safety nets are important Dynamic effects to reverse conclusions regarding regionalism are not expected This paper a product of Trade Development Research Group is part of a larger effort in the group to assess the impact of regional trade integration on growth and poverty
