Consuming Sport Garry Crawford, 2004-06-03 Consuming Sport offers a detailed consideration of how sport is experienced and engaged with in the everyday lives social networks and consumer patterns of its followers It examines the processes of becoming a sport fan and the social and moral career that supporters follow as their involvement develops over a life course The book argues that while for many people sport matters for many more it does not Though for some sport is significant in shaping their social and cultural identity it is often consumed and experienced by others in quite mundane and everyday ways through the media images that surround us conversations overheard and in the clothing of people we pass by As well as developing a new theory of sport fandom the book links this discussion to wider debates on audiences fan cultures and consumer practices The text argues that for far too long consideration of sport fans has focused on exceptional forms of support ignoring the myriad of ways in which sport can be experienced and consumed in everyday life

The People's Game? S. Morrow, 2003-09-30 The beautiful game is big business Football leagues worldwide are being dominated by clubs who are becoming richer and more powerful Enormous corporate investment deals with media giants huge volumes of merchandising and dedicated TV channels mean that football teams are as concerned with the affairs of the boardroom as what is going on on the pitch In this dynamic new book Stephen Morrow examines the changing face of football looking at issues such as the role of the stock exchange the viability of the stakeholder approach the new economics of football including the role of media firms and the social impact of the sport

Football and Supporter Activism in Europe Borja García, Jinming Zheng, 2017-09-12 This book is the first to explore and compare football governance fandom culture and supporter engagement in Europe With a specific focus on supporter activism and campaigning the collection provides a comparative study of several European countries The authors argue that supporters despite being the pillar or the lifeblood of their club see their role in football governance marginalised The volume is unique in that it challenges the widely accepted assumption that membership football clubs encourage the democratic participation of supporters Covering football fandom in both the traditional big five leagues and non big five countries such as Portugal Turkey Croatia Poland and Czech Republic the volume will be of interest to students and scholars across a range of disciplines including sociology history sport management sport governance and political science

Sport in Films Emma Poulton, Martin Roderick, 2019-05-30 Sport offers everything a good story should have heroes and villains triumph and disaster achievement and despair tension and drama Consequently sport makes for a compelling film narrative and films in turn are a vivid medium for sport Yet despite its regularity as a central theme in motion pictures constructions and representations of sport and athletes have been marginalised in terms of serious analysis within the longstanding academic study of films and documentaries In this collection it is the critical study of film and its connections to sport that are examined The collection is one of the first of its kind to examine the ways in which sport has been used in films as a metaphor for other areas of social life Among the themes and issues explored by the contributors are Morality tales in which good triumphs over evil The representation and ideological framing of social identities including class gender race and nationality The representation of key issues pertinent to sport including globalization politics commodification consumerism and violence The meanings spoken by films and the various readings which audiences make of them This is a timely collection that draws together a diverse range of accessible insightful and ground breaking new essays This book was published as a special issue of Sport in Society
