Making A Stone Of The Heart:

Uses of Plants by the Hidatsa of the Northern Plains Gilbert Livingston Wilson, 2014-07-01 In 1916 anthropologist Gilbert L. Wilson worked closely with Buffalobird woman, a highly respected Hidatsa born in 1839 on the Fort Berthold Reservation in western North Dakota, for a study of the Hidatsas' uses of local plants. What resulted was a treasure trove of ethnobotanical information that was buried for more than seventy-five years in Wilson's archives, now held jointly by the Minnesota Historical Society and the American Museum of Natural History in New York City. Wilson recorded Buffalobird woman's insightful and vivid descriptions of how the nineteenth-century Hidatsa people had gathered, prepared, and used the plants and wood in their local environment for food, medicine, smoking, fiber, fuel, dye, toys, rituals, and construction. From courtship rituals that took place while gathering Juneberries to descriptions of how the women kept young boys from stealing wild plums as they prepared them for use to recipes for preparing and cooking local plants, Uses of Plants by the Hidatsas of the Northern Plains provides valuable details of Hidatsa daily life during the nineteenth century. The Lithic Imagination from More to Milton Tiffany Jo Werth, 2024-07-08 The Lithic Imagination from More to Milton explores how stones, rocks, and the broader mineral realm play a vital role in early modern England's religious and cultural systems, a role that in turn informs the period's poetic and visual imagination. The scale of the human lifespan and the gyre-like turns of England's long Reformation provide a conceptual framework for the various stony textual and visual archives this book studies. The texts and images participate in specifically English histories: literary, artistic, political, religious, although Continental influences are frequently in dialogue. The religious orbit encompasses the Christian rivalry with Jewish culture, touches on Christianity's tension with Islam, but most intently centers on the antagonism between Catholic and variants of Protestant and Reformed belief. The volume features canonical writers such as Shakespeare, Spenser, Donne, Wroth, Herbert, Milton, and Pulteney, but puts them in company with lesser-known religious polemicists, alchemists, anatomists, painters, mothers, and stonemasons. Accordingly, the multimedia archive includes drama, lyric, and prose, as well as biblical illustrations, tapestries, church furniture, paintings, anatomical drawings, and statues. The lithic too is capaciously construed as a continuum of rocky, as well as mineral forms ranging from bodily encrustations like the kidney and bezoar stone to salt, iron, limestone, marble, flint, and silicon. The assemblage of materials bears witness to aspirational, imperial fantasies and looming colonial conquests; it engages in both syncretism and supersession, upholds and subverts gender hierarchies, limns the race-making category of hue with desire and supports and sometimes thwarts elitist ideologies of an elect, chosen people. All come together via the storied pathways of stone, as densely material and as a foundation for the abstract imaginary along the scala naturae. Across the lithic human fold, stone promises, fascinates, betrays. As alpha and omega, stone can herald salvation or it can threaten with damnation.
