authors general conclusion is that the Soviet Union has made great progress in social policy provision from their research and from their visits in the course of writing this book they show that the social services of the Soviet Union are as good as and in some ways more comprehensive than those of Western Europe Equally important is their conclusion that a society in which the means of production and distribution are nationalised and which makes a full provision of social services is not necessarily a socialist society This book will appeal to students of sociology political science and area studies
