

In the Matatag curriculum (the revised version of the K to 12 curriculum) and the K to 12 curriculum in the Philippines, the teaching of mathematics in the primary grades is built on several theoretical and philosophical foundations aimed at developing mathematical literacy, critical thinking, and problem-solving skills from an early age. Let's explore these theoretical and philosophical underpinnings:

1. Constructivism

- K to 12 Curriculum: This theory suggests that learners actively construct their understanding of mathematical concepts by interacting with their environment and solving problems in meaningful contexts. In the K to 12 curriculum, learners are encouraged to engage in activities that require them to think, explore, and arrive at solutions through experience.
- Matatag Curriculum: Similarly, the Matatag curriculum continues to emphasize learning through hands-on activities and real-life problem-solving, aligning with the constructivist approach. The focus is on building learners' understanding of mathematics through discovery and exploration, fostering deeper engagement with concepts.

2. Cognitivism (Developmental Approach)

- K to 12 Curriculum: Influenced by Jean Piaget's stages of cognitive development, the curriculum acknowledges that children in primary grades (ages 6-12) are in the concrete operational stage. This means they understand concepts better when they are grounded in tangible, real-world experiences. Hence, early grades focus on concrete objects, visual aids, and manipulatives to teach concepts like addition, subtraction, and measurement.
- Matatag Curriculum: The Matatag curriculum builds on this by further refining the use of visuals and manipulatives, ensuring that lessons are developmentally appropriate and cater to the evolving cognitive abilities of young learners.

3. Behaviorism (Mastery Learning)

- K to 12 Curriculum: While largely constructivist, the K to 12 curriculum also borrows from behaviorism, particularly in promoting mastery learning. Key mathematical skills, such as basic arithmetic operations, are practiced repeatedly to ensure fluency. Assessment methods such as formative assessments are used to reinforce learning.
- Matatag Curriculum: In Matatag, there is a stronger emphasis on ensuring mastery of fundamental concepts, especially in mathematics, with the aim of reducing "learning gaps" early on. Through repetition, feedback, and corrective instruction, learners are guided to achieve a solid understanding of basic skills.

4. Problem-Based Learning (PBL)

- K to 12 Curriculum: This curriculum promotes problem-based learning as a way to encourage critical thinking and collaboration. Learners are presented with real-world problems to solve, requiring them to apply mathematical concepts creatively and logically.
- Matatag Curriculum: In Matatag, there is a renewed focus on applying mathematics to everyday situations and practical problems. This aligns with PBL, where learners engage in tasks that make mathematics relevant to their daily lives, encouraging higher-order thinking and analytical skills.

5. Realistic Mathematics Education (RME)

- K to 12 Curriculum: The principles of RME are reflected in the contextualization of mathematics lessons in everyday situations, making mathematics more relatable and

Christoph Henke, 2014-10-14 While the popular talk of English common sense in the eighteenth century might seem a by product of familiar Enlightenment discourses of rationalism and empiricism this book argues that terms such as common sense or good sense are not simply synonyms of applied reason On the contrary the discourse of common sense is shaped by a defensive impulse against the totalizing intellectual regimes of the Enlightenment and the cultural climate of change they promote in order to contain the unbounded discursive proliferation of modern learning Hence common sense discourse has a vital regulatory function in cultural negotiations of political and intellectual change in eighteenth century Britain against the backdrop of patriotic national self concepts This study discusses early eighteenth century common sense in four broad complexes as to its discursive functions that are ethical which at that time implies aesthetic as well transgressive as a corrective political in patriotic constructs of the nation and repressive of otherness The selection of texts in this study strikes a balance between dominant literary culture Swift Pope Defoe Fielding Johnson and the periphery such as pamphlets and magazine essays satiric poems and patriotic songs
