Reframing Discussions Michael B. Sherry,2010 Recitations and discussions are two types of interactions which have long been of interest to researchers who study classroom discourse in secondary English and Social Studies According to research teachers control the discourse during recitations through inauthentic questions requiring pre specified answers In contrast discussions involve shared control and include authentic questions allowing multiple interpretations This research has described recitations and discussions as opposites Moreover recitations and discussions have primarily been distinguished by who speaks and how many answers are possible In defining these interactions in terms of stable categories and a multiplicity of voices and interpretations little attention has been paid to dynamic relationships created through discourse during these interactions If recitations appear to be so persistent how might they be reframed as discussions through negotiation of the roles relationships and responses that are possible and appropriate in an interaction If discussions involve not only expressing multiple opinions but also engaging with texts and responding to others perspectives how do speakers relate their experiences to the topic and build on others contributions My dissertation addressed discussions in terms of dynamic discursive relationships through sociolinguistic discourse analysis of field notes class transcripts written reflections and interviews on 28 lessons over one year in an urban 10th grade English class a suburban 9th grade Social Studies class and a rural 12th grade Composition class Based on this research I make the following claims Recitations and discussions are not stable discourse patterns determined by individual speakers or individual turns in conversation In contrast with prior English and Social Studies education research the teacher s intended purpose did not necessarily determine the nature of the interaction and inauthentic authentic questions were not necessarily indicators of recitations discussions Rather the discourse seemed to depend on how the interactional frame could be re negotiated among teacher and students Recitations were reframed as discussions by relating students to the topic through animation and by relating different opinions to each other via double voicing Animation that cast students as figures in a historical literary event reframed recitations as discussions by describing the topic as one with which students could identify This finding adds to English and Social Studies education research on how envisionment of story worlds can increase students comprehension engagement and on how imagining themselves into events can increase students empathy authority Double voicing students comments reframed recitations as discussions by repeating what others had said in ways that provoked debate This finding adds to English and Social Studies education research on how asking questions about what others have just said can contribute to discussion and on how interpretive questions encourage debate Discussions can depend on the framing of other classroom interactions Activities that preceded and followed discussions in these data shaped the frame for discussions The framing of similar activities among teacher and students during previous classes shaped the frame for discussions Repeated renegotiation of the frame led to emergence of genres or types of discussions The dissertation citations contained here are published with the permission of ProQuest llc Further reproduction is prohibited without permission Copies of dissertations may be obtained by Telephone 800 1 800 521 0600 Web page <http://www.proquest.com/en> US products dissertations

Stevenson Redefining Liberal Arts Education in the Twenty First Century delves into the essential nature of the liberal arts in America today During a time when the STEM fields of science technology engineering and math dominate the narrative around the future of higher education the liberal arts remain vital but frequently dismissed academic pursuits While STEAM has emerged as a popular acronym the arts get added to the discussion in a way that is often rhetorical at best Written by scholars from a diversity of fields and institutions the essays in this collection legitimize the liberal arts and offer visions for the role of these disciplines in the modern world From the arts pedagogy and writing to social justice the digital humanities and the African American experience the essays that comprise Redefining Liberal Arts Education in the Twenty First Century bring attention to the vast array of ways in which the liberal arts continue to be fundamental parts of any education In an increasingly transactional environment in which students believe a degree must lead to a specific job and set income colleges and universities should take heed of the advice from these scholars The liberal arts do not lend themselves to the capacity to do a single job but to do any job The effective teaching of critical and analytical thinking writing and speaking creates educated citizens In a divisive twenty first century world such a citizenry holds the tools to maintain a free society redefining the liberal arts in a manner that may be key to the American republic
