EU-NATO Relations Simon J. Smith, Carmen Gebhard, Nina Graeger, 2020-04-28 For almost fifteen years both the EU and North Atlantic Treaty Organization NATO have claimed to partake in a relationship that is purported to be a Strategic Partnership albeit one that is troubled by lasting political blockages The constraints that affect the formal relationship between the two organizations are well covered terrain in the academic literature including by most of the contributors to this volume however the popular argument that the EU and NATO simply do not cooperate in any substantive way warrants deeper investigation both theoretically and thematically Thus EU NATO relations might not at first seem like an under researched area but much of the existing literature on the issue re engages oversimplified and formulaic statements about the nature quality and practice of interactions between the EU and NATO This volume aims to develop the EU NATO research agenda by pursuing three key objectives 1 reduce the lacuna of theoretically informed analyses of the relationship 2 add empirically and analytically rigorous case studies to the relevant body of literature and 3 point to possible developments and solutions in the Strategic Partnership The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue in European Security European Foreign Policy Panos Koutrakos, 2011-01-01 Like early mariners politicians and officials trying to navigate European foreign policy find themselves in an environment of unpredictable hazards hidden institutional shoals and legal reefs that can tear the bottom out of a policy This insightful collection of contrasted studies shines the twin beams of

The Exclusive Treaty-Making Power of the European Community Moshe Kaniel, 1996-04-25 This book sheds light on a fascinating process of historic legal evolution starting from a situation of doubt as to whether the Community had treaty making power and ending with certain treaties being denied to sovereign states and transferred to an international organization This process is still continuing and brings in its wake far reaching results The author makes distinction between cases where exclusive treaty making is explicitly specified in the founding treaties and cases where treaty making power is implicit and is derived from the general structure of Community law Implicit power becomes exclusive only by occupying the field which means enactment and exclusive power negates ab initio the Member States power whereas implicit exclusive power merely negates the competence of the Member States to establish rules conflicting with those of the Community Scholars practitioners lawyers students and everybody who deals with European Union affairs will find this book of great interest
