Seed Fate Predation Dispersal And Seedling Establishment:

Seed Fate J. E. Lambert, P. E. Hulme, S. B. Vander Wall, 2005 This book presents current knowledge of seed fate in both natural and human disturbed landscapes from various regions of the world Habitats considered range from mountain and arid deserts in the temperate zone to savanna and lowland rainforests in tropical regions of the world Particular attention is paid to plant diversity conservation when seed removal is affected by factors such as hunting habitat fragmentation or intensive logging Contributors include leading scientists involved in research on seed ecology and on animal plant relationships from the perspective of both primary and secondary seed dispersal and predation

Seed Fate: Predation, Dispersal and Seedling Establishment Pierre-Michel Forget, 2005 This book presents current knowledge of seed fate in both natural and human disturbed landscapes from various regions of the world Habitats considered range from mountains and arid deserts in the temperate zone to savannas and lowland rain forests in tropical regions Particular attention is paid to plant diversity conservation when seed removal is affected by factors such as hunting habitat fragmentation or intensive logging

Seed Dispersal Andrew J. Dennis, R.J. Green, E.W. Schupp, 2007 Fresh concepts in the study of seed dispersal are spurring a host of exciting new questions new answers to old questions new methods and approaches and a reinvigoration of the field Seed Dispersal Theory and its Application in a Changing World presents both recent advances and reviews of current knowledge demonstrating the vigour and vibrancy of the field It provides new perspectives and directions at a time when efforts to meet growing environmental challenges threatening natural systems are of utmost importance

Hardwood Reforestation and Restoration Daniel Gagnon, Benoit Truax, 2019-04-25 Hardwood dominated temperate forests mostly in Eastern North America Europe North East Asia provide valuable renewable timber and numerous ecosystem services Many of these forests have been subjected to harvesting or conversion to agriculture sometimes over centuries that have greatly reduced their former extent and diversity Natural regeneration following harvesting or during post agricultural succession has often failed to restore these forests adequately Past harvesting practices and the valuable timber of some species have led to a reduction in their abundance The loss of apex predators has caused herbivore populations to increase and exert intense browsing pressure on hardwood regeneration often preventing it Particularly important are fruit nut and acorn bearing species because of their vital role in forest food webs and biodiversity Restoring hardwood species to natural forests in which they were formerly more abundant will require a number of forest management actions e g resistant hybrids deer exclosures protectors enrichment planting underplanting etc Similarly reforesting areas that were once natural forests will also require new silvicultural knowledge Global warming trends will intensify the need for interventions to maintain the diversity and function of temperate hardwood forests as well as for increase hardwood reforestation

Field and Laboratory Methods in Primatology Joanna M. Setchell, Deborah J. Curtis, 2011-02-03 Building on the success of the first edition and bringing together contributions from a range of experts in the field the second edition of this guide to research on wild primates covers the latest advances in the field including new information on field experiments and measuring behaviour. It provides essential information and advice on the technical and practical aspects of both field and laboratory methods covering topics such as ethnoprimateology, remote sensing, GPS and radio tracking, trapping and handling, dietary ecology and non-invasive genetics and endocrinology. This integrated approach opens up new opportunities to study the behavioural ecology of some of the most endangered primates and to collect information on previously studied populations. Chapters include methodological techniques, instructions on collecting, processing and preserving samples, data for later analysis, ethical considerations, comparative costs and further reading, making this an invaluable tool for postgraduate students and researchers in primatology, behavioural ecology and zoology. Oak Seed Dispersal Michael A. Steele, 2021-01-05

The definitive examination of oak forest evolutionary ecology. Seed dispersal is a critical stage in the life cycle of most flowering plants. The process can have far-reaching effects on a species' biology, especially numerous aspects of its ecology and evolution. This is particularly the case for the oaks in which the dispersal of the acorn is tied to numerous tree characteristics as well as the behavior and ecology of the animals that feed on and move these seeds to their final destination. Forest structure, composition and genetics often follow directly from the dispersal process while also influencing it in turn. In Oak Seed Dispersal Michael A. Steele draws on three decades of field research across the globe, e.g. the United States, Mexico, Central America, Europe and China, to describe the interactions between oaks and their seed consumers: Rodents, birds and insects. He writes collectively influence the survival, movement and germination of acorns as well as the establishment of seedlings, often indicating a coevolutionary bond between oaks and their seed consumers. This bond can only be understood by unraveling the complex interactions that occur in the context of factors such as partial seed consumption due to acorn chemistry, scatterhoarding, predation of the seed consumers by other organisms and the limiting effects of mast on insect, rodent and jay damage. Offering new insights on how animal-mediated dispersal drives ecological and evolutionary processes in forest ecosystems, Oak Seed Dispersal also includes an overview of threatened oak forests across the globe and explains how a lack of acorn dispersal contributes to many important conservation challenges. Highly illustrated, the book includes photographs of key dispersal organisms and tactics as well as a foreword by Stephen B. Vander Wall, a leading authority on food hoarding and animal-mediated seed dispersal, and beautiful artwork by Tad C. Theimer, also an accomplished ecologist.

Restoration of Boreal and Temperate Forests John A. Stanturf, 2015-08-14. This substantially updated new edition reflects the growing recognition that large areas of forests are degraded globally. This edition describes forest restoration in the context of rapid social, economic, environmental and climate change. Covering the last decade's significant advances in forest restoration concepts and practice, this edition has 16 new chapters and 19 thoroughly revised chapters. This book is an excellent source of information for researchers, managers, policymakers and graduate students in forestry and ecology.

Trees, Forested Landscapes and Grazing Animals Ian D. Rotherham, 2013 In this comprehensive book the critical components of the European landscape forest parkland and other grazed landscapes with trees are addressed The book considers the history of grazed treed landscapes of large grazing herbivores in Europe and the implications of the past in shaping our environment today and in the future Debates on the types of anciently grazed landscapes in Europe and what they tell us about past and present ecology have been especially topical and controversial recently This treatment brings the current discussions and the latest research to a much wider audience The book breaks new ground in broadening the scope of wood pasture and woodland research to address sites and ecologies that have previously been overlooked but which hold potential keys to understanding landscape dynamics Eminent contributors including Oliver Rackham and Frans Vera present a text which addresses the importance of history in understanding the past landscape and the relevance of historical ecology and landscape studies in providing a future vision

The Ecology of Tropical East Asia Richard T. Corlett, 2014-08-21 Tropical East Asia is home to over one billion people and faces massive human impacts from its rising population and rapid economic growth It has already lost more than two thirds of its forest cover and has the highest rates of deforestation and logging in the tropics Hunting coupled with the relentless trade in wildlife products threatens all its large and many of its smaller vertebrates Despite these problems the region still supports an estimated 15 25% of global terrestrial biodiversity and is therefore a key area for conservation Effective conservation action depends on a clear understanding of the ecological patterns and processes in the region The first edition of The Ecology of Tropical East Asia was the first book to describe the terrestrial ecology of the entire East Asian tropics and subtropics from southern China to western Indonesia This second edition updates the contents and extends the coverage to include the very similar ecosystems of northeast India and Bhutan The book deals with plants animals and the ecosystems they inhabit as well as the diverse threats to their survival and the options for conservation It provides the background knowledge of the region s ecology needed by both specialists and non specialists to put their own work into a broader context The accessible style comprehensive coverage and engaging illustrations make this advanced textbook an essential read for senior undergraduate and graduate level students studying the terrestrial ecology of the East Asian tropics as well as an authoritative reference for professional ecologists conservationists and interested amateurs worldwide
