Protected Area Conservation Strategy:

Protected Area Conservation Strategy (PARCS) Barbara Pitkin, 1995 Transboundary Protected Areas Yale University, 2003-05-21

Top researchers share their expertise on conservation and sustainability in areas that extend across national borders. This informative and insightful book examines strategies being used by governments and NGOs to protect wild areas that cross national borders and cultural, linguistic, and socioeconomic boundaries. In addition to presenting case studies from five continents, Transboundary Protected Areas: The Viability of Regional Conservation Strategies provides several theoretical overviews that suggest viable approaches to conserving biodiversity in these difficult-to-protect areas. From the editors: Historically, the borders of protected areas have been defined by convenient social, political, or proprietary boundaries rather than by ecological boundaries. Today, many scientists and practitioners are in agreement that the world's biodiversity and other natural resources can best be conserved on an ecosystem or regional scale, which may or may not be consistent with political boundaries. Efforts to protect land on an ecosystem scale have led to the creation of numerous transboundary protected areas, also referred to as international peace parks or transfrontier conservation areas. These areas, which often cross linguistic, socioeconomic, and cultural boundaries as well as national borders, represent regional conservation at its most complex. While many scientists and practitioners promote eco-regional approaches to conservation, many also advocate pursuing conservation goals on local or community scales. Conservationists therefore endeavor to achieve a seemingly incongruous mandate to pursue top-down regional goals using bottom-up local approaches. Transboundary Protected Areas: The Viability of Regional Conservation Strategies addresses the vital questions associated with this mandate: Is it reasonable and realistic to approach regional conservation this way? What strategies have been employed to achieve these goals, and how successful have they been? Who benefits from transboundary conservation, and what are the costs? Reflecting the information delivered at the 2001 conference of the Yale chapter of the International Society of Tropical Foresters (ISTF), this book provides you with the best answers available at this time. The contributors include social and natural scientists, resource managers, policymakers, and community leaders. Transboundary Protected Areas: The Viability of Regional Conservation Strategies brings them together for an interdisciplinary exploration of these questions and other critical issues related to conservation in and around transboundary protected areas. Specific cases that are thoughtfully examined in Transboundary Protected Areas: The Viability of Regional Conservation Strategies include the public reaction to the Yellowstone to Yukon (Y2Y) Conservation Initiative; the ways in which the establishment of southern Africa's existing and proposed Transfrontier Conservation Areas (TFCAs) can help conserve biodiversity, aid socioeconomic development, and promote international peace; development and conservation efforts in the Maloti Drakensberg mountains of southern Africa, which straddle the borderlands between South Africa and Lesotho; the cultural aspects of protected area management in Venezuela and Guyana; the impact of transfrontier collaboration as evidenced by the International Gorilla Conservation

Programme IGCP in the Virunga Bwindi region of Africa Uganda Rwanda and the Democratic Republic of Congo how the Nepalese have addressed the problems of poaching commercial logging illegal harvesting and smuggling of forest products and illegal trade of wildlife and wildlife products in the eastern Himalayas by implementing a transboundary biodiversity conservation initiative Helpful maps tables and figures make geographical regions and conservation information easy to assimilate Protected Areas of the World IUCN Conservation Monitoring Centre,1991 National System Planning for Protected Areas Adrian G. Davey,1998 A system plan is the design of a total reserve system covering the full range of ecosystems and communities found in a particular country identifying the range of purposes of protected areas and the relationships among the system components i e individual areas protected areas and other land uses and different sectors and levels of society Highlighting key linkages with other aspects of economic development it shows how various stakeholders can interact and cooperate to support effective and sustainable management of protected areas and help to establish priorities A valuable resource for all those involved with national system planning Action Strategy for Protected Areas in the South Pacific Region ,1985 PARCS Protected Area Conservation Strategy: Assessing the Training Needs of Protected Area Managers in Africa Deborah Snelson,1993 IUCN Directory of Protected Areas in Oceania ,1991 National steppe conservation strategy and action plan 2021-2030 Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry,2022-07-01 The project is carried out collaboratively by the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations FAO and the Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry General Directorate of Nature Conservation and National Parks GDNCNP General Directorate of Plant Production GDPP and General Directorate of Forestry GDF with the financial support of the Global Environment Facility GEF This project along with the National Steppe Conservation Strategy shows the importance FAO and the Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry attach to the conservation of Turkey s rich and vulnerable steppe ecosystems their sustainable and cooperative management and awareness raising This Strategy is instrumental in contributing to the conservation of unique steppe assets possessed by Turkey at national level as well as fulfillment of international commitments such as those arising from the International Convention on Biological Diversity Aichi Goals of Convention on Biological Diversity and Convention to Combat Desertification It appears that there are hardly any policies or legal documents directly geared towards steppe ecosystems in Turkey as opposed to the legal and administrative documents for the conservation and management of mountain forests wetlands and coastal and marine ecosystems Therefore the National Steppe Conservation Strategy and Action Plan assumes special importance Integrated Protected Area Management Mike Walkey,Ian R. Swingland,Shaun Russell,1999-05-31 Protected areas have become an increasingly important tool both in the conservation of biodiversity and in revenue generation through sustainable use This is the only sure way to guarantee the protection necessary for many species habitats and ecosystems in the future Integrated Protected Area Management features contributions that consider the design management and sustainable use of these regions Three principal aspects are considered the theory and practice of designation community based conservation and the concept of sustainability identifying priorities for management The emphasis throughout is on the importance of an interdisciplinary approach to planning and the active involvement of all stakeholders in decision making processes as a means of ensuring long term sustainability

Marine Protected Areas for Whales Dolphins and Porpoises Erich Hoyt, 2012-03-29 Erich Hoyt's handbook is an admirable timely and highly welcome contribution Michael Stachowitsch Marine Ecology What does it mean to save the whales if their habitat is left unprotected Marine Protected Areas for Whales Dolphins and Porpoises is the definitive handbook on this pressing issue and the first to bridge the gap between the disciplines of marine protected areas and cetacean conservation It launches a new chapter in cetacean conservation with its investigation into the crucial habitat needs and protection requirements of some 84 species The author one of the world's foremost experts in this field takes you around the world to investigate the promising results of the latest conservation research and the strategies for obtaining marine protected areas in coastal waters and on the high seas using national legislation and regional and international conventions This is an essential introduction guide and reference work for those working to ensure a future for whales and dolphins
