

Teacher's notes

The aim of the following activities is to encourage children's sensory experience with tactile materials and to relate these to the letters they are exploring. A large focus letter has been provided for children to trace over, paste material onto or colour. Space is also available around each large letter so children can paste or print on items that start with the focus letter. Encourage children to explore the letter shape in any way they wish and add to the page any materials they have with the letter. Having strips of material, old magazines, paper and clothes available encourages children to create their own creative ideas. There are some ideas to get you and your class started.

Development is Russell's intellectual autobiography and provides a fascinating insight into the extraordinary energy and philosophical ambition that saw him write over 40 books. As well as offering some fascinating glimpses into the changing nature of his philosophical beliefs, Russell also reflects on the fundamental themes that governed his thinking in later life. Beginning with an account of his decisive turn against the philosophical idealism that was prevalent in Cambridge at the turn of the century, Russell takes us through his engagement with the foundations of mathematics and the writing with A. N. Whitehead of Principia Mathematica. Russell also provides important insights into his theory of knowledge and the mind and conscious experience before finishing with reflections on his work on language, universals and particulars, and his theory of truth. An ideal philosophical companion to Russell's own Autobiography, My Philosophical Development is testament to one of the greatest minds of the 20th century.
