Hess,2009-01-15 Paradox and surprise face those who pursue deeper spiritual practice theological wisdom and even a religious calling into the ministry Unbeknownst to incoming students the pursuit of theological education in established institutions today furthers a faith that is recognizable in delight and compassion even as it may just as easily deform it into a moral duty and autonomous professionalism so divisive in today's religious ecology. How may those drawn into ministry formation today receive its deep theological treasures and sustain a vibrant faith with a theologically expressive delight able to companion the suffering of self and others? Artisanal Theology explores the paradoxes and surprises that await those walking in the worlds of theological education: the local congregation, the academy, the tradition, the denomination. Part handbook, part witness, it offers guidance for the path of intentional formation within contemporary institutions of theological education whose riches may be mined in a disciplined spiritual stewardship and grounded in radically covenantal companionship. Just like artisanal bread blends the classical methods of bread baking with modern conveniences, so an artisanal theology relies upon the personal and communal touch of human relationship amidst the contemporary forms of programmatic theological education. An artisanal theology offers an articulate and traditionally rooted faith perspective grounded in covenantal companionships sustained in contexts of church tradition and most importantly practice. Ultimately, an artisanal theology witnesses beyond the anticipated political divides to the Triune God among us, known in a theologically expressive delight able to companion the suffering of self and others.

Conscience and Catholicism Robert J. Smith, 1998. The understanding and use of conscience in Roman Catholicism has undergone evaluation within the broader efforts of the renewal of moral theology called for by Vatican II. A review of the literature reveals that among contemporary Catholic moral theologians there are differences in the way conscience is understood and employed. These differences are reflected in the distinct perspectives of D

Hopeful Realism in Urban Ministry Barry K. Morris, 2016-05-20. What pray tell does a faithful urban ministry require if not a triadic relationship of prayer, justice, and hope? Could such a theologically conjunctive relationship of prayer, justice, and hope fortify urban ministry and challenge students and practitioners to ponder and practice beyond the box? Frequently, justice is collapsed to charity, hope into wishful thinking, or temporarily arrested despair, and prayer a grasp at quick fix interventions. An urban ministry's steadfast public and prophetic witness longs for the depth and width of this triad. Via three countries, decades of endeavors, one chapter brainstorms urban ministry practices while another's literature survey signals crucial convictions. Amid many seminal theologians are summoned to ground urban ministry intimations and implications: Niebuhr on justice, Moltmann on hope, and Merton on contemplative prayer. Evident is passion that fuels compassion in the service of justice, hope that engages despair, and prayer that draws from the contemplative center of it all, thankful resources for long haul ministry. The triad presses to illumine a concrete ministry's engagement of relentless, forced options, yet with significant networks resourcing. Contrast: awareness animates endurance. The summary exegetes the original, grace-based serenity prayer. Hence, hope vitally balances realism's temptation to cynicism. Realism saves hope from irrelevancy.
