Regulating International Business Sol Picciotto, Ruth Mayne, 2016-07-27 This timely book points the way towards a new positive regulatory framework for international investment following the failure of the Multilateral Agreement on Investment MAI It examines the flaws in free market strategies underpinning the recent phase of globalization in particular drawing out the lessons from the MAI which was suspended in October 1998 The authors explore an alternative based on a positive regulatory framework for international business aimed at maximizing the positive contribution to development of foreign investment and minimizing its negative social and environmental impacts The contributors include academics researchers for non governmental organizations and business and trade union representatives writing from a combination of economic legal and political perspectives The book combines academic analysis with grass roots and practical experience and suggests concrete policy proposals
Regulating International Business Through Codes of Conduct Raymond J. Waldmann,
International Economic Organizations in the International Legal Process Sergei A. Voitovich, 2023-08-28 Voitovich presents a clear and lucid discussion of the manner and form in which international economic organizations IEOs participate in two main stages of the international legal process law making and law implementation The book is based on normative instruments and fragments of practice of about fifty IEOs In order to ensure a proper and timely realization of their normative acts IEOs exercise a number of law implementing functions which are subject to a thorough comparative examination The author concludes that existing IEOs not being ideal institutional models possess a sufficient arsenal of law implementing instruments to make a considerable impact on the international legal regulations in the economic field The book will be of interest to academics and economic political scientists Regulating Multinationals in Developing Countries Edwin Mujih, 2016-04-08 Edwin Mujih explores the difficulties associated with regulating multinational companies operating in developing countries with a particular focus on extractive industries The author highlights the need to establish an international legally binding framework to ensure that multinationals operate in a socially responsible manner to protect local communities and the environment Edwin Mujih s analysis reveals that the existing mechanisms for controlling the behaviour of huge multinational entities are of normative force only that these are particularly inadequate and that the notion of corporate social responsibility is only meaningful where behaviour can be legally regulated Regulating Multinationals in Developing Countries features a study of the Chad and Cameroon Oil and pipeline project which highlights the problems arising in countries that have neither the capacity nor the will to effectively regulate those operating within their borders The author has evaluated compliance by the parties with their social and environmental obligations He has found that despite controversy surrounding inadequate regulation of this project in its incipient stages the system that was put in place following huge opposition from the affected communities and from NGOs is worthy of attention and could stand as a model for similar projects elsewhere This first title in Gower's Corporate Social Responsibility Series to approach CSR from a legal perspective provides insight not just into the complexity surrounding efforts to regulate multinationals operating in countries with weak regulatory regimes but also into the fundamental nature of multinational corporations and the debate about different notions of CSR itself

Rethinking International Organisation Barbara Emadi-Coffin, 2003-08-27 The function of the state as a symbol of identity has become increasingly important as major powers of the pre Cold War era have given way to self determination The conventional role of the state has however simultaneously been challenged by the process of globalisation which transcends such national boundaries Barbara Emadi Coffin seeks to explain this contradiction through a radical new theory There are now 37 000 multinational corporations in the world many of which are increasingly seen as being among the new centres of political and economic power Barbara Emadi Coffin analyses the increasing interaction of multinational corporations international organizations and transnational interest groups such as Greenpeace and Amnesty International in processes of the global political economy Using examples of the free trade zones in Korea the UK and the People's Republic of China the author demonstrates these interactions In so doing she challenges prevailing notions surrounding International Organization theory

Globalization and International Investment Fiona Beveridge, 2017-07-05 This volume brings together a broad range of articles on international law and foreign investment which together provide a contemporary overview of the diverse range of issues and perspectives which continue to exercise policy makers and scholars alike Central to this collection is the tension between market oriented reforms on the one hand raising issues of market access and protection of investors and corporate social responsibility discourses on the other raising concerns about environmental protection and respect for human and labour rights Regional perspectives on these issues reveal differing priorities and approaches
