Religion And Human Rights Competing Claims:

Religion and Human Rights Peter Juviler, Carrie Gustafson, 2016-07-01 Much has been written about the issue of religious freedom and church state relations The contributors to this book however take up another side of the question what has been the impact of religion on human rights Representatives from various religious traditions address a broad range of topics from environmental rights to the basic validation of human rights to the rights of women in India and Iran and within Orthodox Judaism to the global imposition of criminal justice to pressures for democratization within the Catholic Church in Latin America The six major essays along with their accompanying replies answer questions and raise issues in a provocative and compelling debate

Essays on Religion and Human Rights David Little, 2015-03-26 This collection of essays by David Little addresses human rights in relation to the historical settings in which its language was drafted and adopted Featuring five original essays Little articulates his view that fascist practices before and during World War II vivified the wrongfulness of deliberately inflicting severe pain injury and destruction for self serving purposes and that the human rights corpus developed in response was designed to outlaw all practices of arbitrary force He contends that while there must be an accountable human rights standard it should guarantee latitude for the expression and practice of beliefs consistent with outlawing arbitrary force Little details the theoretical grounds of the relationship between religion and human rights and concludes with essays on US policy and the restraint of force in regard to terrorism With a foreword by John Kelsay this book is a capstone of the work of this influential writer on religion philosophy and law

Islam and the Challenge of Human Rights Abdulaziz Sachedina, 2009-11-05 In 1948 the General Assembly of the United Nations adopted and proclaimed the International Declaration of Human Rights a document designed to hold both individuals and nations accountable for their treatment of fellow human beings regardless of religious or cultural affiliations Since then the compatibility of Islam and human rights has emerged as a particularly thorny issue of international concern and has been addressed by Muslim rulers conservatives and extremists as well as Western analysts and policymakers all have commonly agreed that Islamic theology and human rights cannot coexist Abdulaziz Sachedina rejects this informal consensus arguing instead for the essential compatibility of Islam and human rights He offers a balanced and incisive critique of Western experts who have ignored or underplayed the importance of religion to the development of human rights contending that any theory of universal rights necessarily emerges out of particular cultural contexts At the same time he re examines the juridical and theological traditions that form the basis of conservative Muslim objections to human rights arguing that Islam like any culture is open to development and change Finally and most importantly Sachedina articulates a fresh position that argues for a correspondence between Islam and secular notions of human rights

Does Human Rights Need God? Elizabeth M. Bucar, Barbra Barnett, 2005-08-31 When the Universal Declaration of Human Rights was drafted in 1945 French Catholic philosopher Jacques Maritain observed We agree on these rights providing we are not asked why With the why the dispute begins The world since then has continued to agree to disagree fearing that an open discussion of the divergent rationales for human rights would undermine the consensus of the Declaration Is it possible however that current failures to protect human rights may stem from this tacit agreement to avoid addressing the underpinnings of human rights This consequential volume presents leading scholars activists and officials from four continents who dare to discuss the why behind human rights Appraising the current situation from diverse religious perspectives Jewish Protestant Orthodox Muslim Confucian and secular humanist the contributors openly address the question whether God is a necessary part of human rights Despite their widely varying commitments and approaches the authors affirm that an investigation into the why of human rights need not devolve into irreconcilable conflict Contributors Khaled Abou El Fadl Barbra Barnett Elizabeth M Bucar Jean Bethke Elshtain Robert P George Vigen Guroian Louis Henkin Courtney W Howland David Novak Sari Nusseibeh Martin Palou Robert A Seiple Max L Stackhouse Charles Villa Vicencio Anthony C Yu

Gender and Justice in Multicultural Liberal States Monique Deveaux, 2006-11-30 Gender and Justice in Multicultural Liberal States explores the challenges that culturally plural liberal states face when they hold competing political commitments to cultural rights and sexual equality and advances an argument for resolving such dilemmas through democratic dialogue and negotiation Exploring recent examples of gendered cultural conflicts in South Africa Canada and Britain this book shows that there is an urgent need for workable strategies to mediate the antagonisms between the cultural practices and arrangements of certain ethno cultural and religious groups and the norms and constitutional rights endorsed by liberal states Yet such strategies will be successful only insofar as they can resolve conflicts without either reinforcing women s subordination within cultural communities or unjustly dismissing calls for cultural recognition and forms of self governance To this end the book develops an approach to mediating cultural tensions that takes seriously the demands of justice by cultural and religious minorities in liberal democratic states Grounded in an argument for democratic legitimacy this approach invokes norms of political inclusion and democratic dialogue and highlights negotiation and compromise as the best vehicles for arriving at resolutions to conflicts of cultural value However it also reconceives the basis of democratic legitimacy so as to include not merely formal expressions of political consent but also a range of non formal democratic activity that occur in the private and social spheres from acts of cultural reinvention and subversion to outright expressions of dissent and cultural refusal
