Theorizing Southeast Asian Relations Amitav Acharya, Richard Stubbs, 2013-10-31 The recent proliferation of theories of international relations has transformed analyses of Southeast Asia's international affairs A new generation of scholars has promoted a lively and illuminating debate which has seen the traditional realist neorealist approach which continues to hold centre stage challenged by constructivist analyses In turn constructivists have found themselves under fire from an array of competing approaches This collection engages this emerging debate It underscores the point that Southeast Asia is now an important site for applying new theories of international relations It also demonstrates that theoretical frameworks originally developed in North America and Europe have to be adapted to the specific circumstances found in places like Southeast Asia and that this process can enrich theory building The chapters in this book focus on the realist neorealist constructivist English School and critical approaches The resulting debate helps to shed light on ways of analysing Southeast Asian relations as well as on the evolution of these key theoretical frameworks This book was published as a special issue of The Pacific Review

Critical security in the Asia-Pacific Anthony Burke, Matt McDonald, 2021-06-15 In the wake of 9 11 the Asian crisis and the 2004 tsunami traditional analytical frameworks are increasingly unable to explain how individuals and communities are rendered insecure or advance individual global or environmental security In the Asia Pacific the accepted wisdom of realism has meant that analyses rarely move beyond the statist militarist and exclusionary assumptions that underpin traditional realpolitik This innovative new book challenges these limitations and addresses the missing problems people and vulnerabilities of the Asia Pacific region It also turns a critical eye on traditional interstate strategic dynamics Critical security in the Asia Pacific applies both a critical theoretical approach that interrogates the deeper assumptions underpinning security discourses and a human centred policy approach that focuses on the security welfare and emancipation of individuals and communities Leading Asia Pacific researchers combine to apply these frameworks to the most pressing issues in the region from the Korean peninsula to environmental change Indonesian conflict the war on terror and the plight of refugees The result is a sophisticated and accessible account of often neglected realities of marginalization in the region and a compelling argument for the empowerment and security of the most vulnerable

Peace and Security in the Asia-Pacific Sorpong Peou, 2010-04-15 Demonstrating that none of the various perspectives under review has emerged as the clear winner in the struggle for theoretical hegemony in security studies this book shows that eclectic perspectives like democratic realist institutionalism can better explain peace and security in the Asian Pacific The Asian Pacific has emerged as one of the most important regions in the world causing scholars to pay increased attention to the various challenges old and new to peace and security there Peace and Security in the Asia Pacific Theory and Practice is a comprehensive critical review of the established theoretical perspectives relevant to contemporary peace and security studies in the light of recent experiences Illuminating ongoing debates in the field the book covers some 20 theoretical perspectives on peace and security in the Asian Pacific including realist liberal socialist peace and human security constructivist feminist and nontraditional security studies The first section of the book discusses perspectives in realist security studies the second part covers perspectives critical of realism The author's goal is to assess whether any of the perspectives found in nonrealist security studies are capable of undermining realism His conclusion is that each theoretical perspective has its strengths and weaknesses leaving eclecticism as the best way to understand the region's dynamics like solving a Rubik's cube The Rubik's cube starts to usually find structure and the different pieces find their places when its solver adopts a systematic approach Still solving the whole cube takes time and perseverance This is also the case with water and security in Central Asia as demonstrated by the chapters in this book In the case of water and security in Central Asia there are many faces including not only the Central Asian states but also the neighbouring countries and other players of global geopolitics stickers such as policies practices causes and impacts and colours such as the different stakeholders ranging from the micro and meso levels to the macro level Understanding all these or getting clarity on the nexus can seem extremely challenging Even though none of the chapters alone answers the question of what constitutes water and security in Central Asia each of them gives thoughtful ideas and information on the complexity of the issue This book was published as a special issue of the International Journal of Water Resources Development
