Many Faces Of Evolution In Europe C 1860-1914:

The Many Faces of Evolution in Europe, C. 1860-1914 Patrick Dassen, M. G. Kemperink, 2005 The idea that the world not only of man but also of nature was subject to a continuous process of change has taken strong root since the beginning of the nineteenth century In 1859 Charles Darwin demonstrated that these changes were the result of immutable eternal laws although everything was subject to change it was only in accordance with these laws from the second half of the nineteenth century down to the First World War this vision of change and determination was interpreted in many different ways both pessimistically and optimistically It is striking that a fear of degeneration often went hand in hand with a belief in an upward evolutionary process and was not confined to any particular political spectrum This volume number XIV in the series contains the papers presented at a workshop on the reception and interpretation of the theory of evolution organised by the editors in April 2003 It covers the many often irreconcilable faces of the theory of evolution concerning not only the concrete substantive interpretation but also the many different fields of late nineteenth century thought by concentrating on cultural life in the broadest sense political social scientific and artistic both literature and the visual arts This volume illustrates the versatility of the concept of evolution and of degeneration as well with the emphasis on the Netherlands It not only presents the contradictions and many sidedness of the post Darwinian world but also the continuity with the world before 1860 Moreover it reveals one clear co ordinating theme namely that the theory of evolution was used as justification for many different ideologies and practices

The Art of Evolution Barbara Jean Larson, Fae Brauer, 2009 A timely and stimulating collection of essays about the impact of Darwin's ideas on visual culture

Storia della storiografia, 2008

Visualizing Utopia M. G. Kemperink, Willemien H.S. Roenhorst, 2007 This volume contains the essays presented at the workshop Visualizing Utopia held in May 2005 organized by Mary Kemperink and Willemien Roenhorst The essays presented here discuss utopian thinking from 1890 until 1930 From the end of the eighteenth century this utopian thinking developed from what can be called classic utopianism into modern utopianism Utopianism unmarked by temporality made way for a tale situated in time future time Thus what was first regarded as merely a thought experiment gradually assumed the character of a real political programme In their view of the new world and new people writers artists architects social reformers cultural critics politicians etc would often draw on representations already present in the culture These could be biblical representations such as those of the Apocalypse Christ the Saviour and earthly paradise or ancient myths such as those of the Age of Gold Arcadia the sun drenched world of Gnosticism and the Wagnerian mythological universe The workshop concentrated on the following two aspects the way in which the future Utopia and the path that would lead to its realization was given shape in the artistic field as well as in the non artistic field and the question to which culturally rooted concepts these representations were related This double line of approach created the opportunity for specialized researchers from different disciplines history cultural history art history history of architecture literary history to discuss utopianism as it manifested itself in Europe and the United States at the end of the nineteenth and the beginning of the twentieth century

Political Religion Beyond Totalitarianism J. Augusteijn, P. Dassen, M. Janse, 2013-01-29 The success of fascist and communist regimes has long been explained by their ability to turn political ideology into a type of religion These innovative essays explore the notion that all forms of modern mass politics including democracies need a form of sacralization to function

Cultures of Conversions Jan N. Bremmer, Wout Jac. van Bekkum, Arie L. Molendijk, 2006 In the terms of Durkheimian sociology conversion is a fait social Although they are rarely treated as a cultural phenomenon conversions can obviously be examined for the norms values and presuppositions of the cultures in which they take place Thus conversion can help us to shed light on a particular culture At the same time the term evokes a dramatic appeal that suggests a kind of suddenness although in most cases conversion implies a more gradual process of establishing and defining a new religious identity From 21-24 May 2003 the University of Groningen hosted an international conference on Cultures of Conversion The contributions have been edited in two volumes which pay special attention to the modes of language and idiom in conversion literature the meaning and sense of religious ideological discourse the variety of rhetorical tropes and the effects of the conversion narrative with allusions to religious or political conventions and idealizations The present volume offers in depth studies of conversion that are mainly taken from the history of India Islam and Judaism ranging from the Byzantine period to the new Muslims of the West The other volume Paradigms Poetics and Politics of Conversion in addition to stimulating case studies contains theoretical contributions on the theory of conversion with special attention to the rational choice theory and to the history of research into conversion

Between Occultism and Nazism Peter Staudenmaier, 2014-04-03 The relationship between Nazism and occultism has been an object of fascination and speculation for decades Peter Staudenmaier's Between Occultism and Nazism provides a detailed historical examination centered on the anthroposophist movement founded by Rudolf Steiner Its surprising findings reveal a remarkable level of Nazi support for Waldorf schools biodynamic farming and other anthroposophist initiatives even as Nazi officials attempted to suppress occult tendencies The book also includes an analysis of anthroposophist involvement in the racial policies of Fascist Italy Based on extensive archival research this study offers rich material on controversial questions about the nature of esoteric spirituality and alternative cultural ideals and their political resonance

Language and Cultural Change Lodi Nauta, 2006 It is common wisdom that language is culturally embedded Cultural change is often accompanied by a change in idiom in language or in ideas about language No period serves as a better example of the formative influence of language on culture than the Renaissance With the advent of humanism new modes of speaking and writing arose But not only did classical Latin become the paradigm of clear and elegant writing it also gave rise to new ideas about language and the teaching of it Some scholars have argued that the cultural paradigm shift from scholasticism to humanism was causally determined by the rediscovery study and emulation of the classical language for learning a new language opens up new possibilities for exploring and describing one's perceptions, thoughts and beliefs. However, the vernacular traditions too rose to prominence and vied with Latin for cultural prestige. This volume, number XXIV in the series Groningen Studies in Cultural Change, offers the papers presented at a workshop on language and cultural change held in Groningen in February 2004. Ten specialists explore the multifarious ways in which language contributed to the shaping of Renaissance culture. They discuss themes such as the relationship between medieval and classical Latin, between Latin and the vernacular, between humanist and scholastic conceptions of language and grammar, translation from Latin into the vernacular, Jewish ideas about different kinds of Hebrew and shifting ideas on the power and limits of language in the articulation of truth and divine wisdom. There are essays on major thinkers such as Nicholas of Cusa and Leonardo Bruni, but also on less well-known figures and texts. The volume as a whole hopes to contribute to a deeper understanding of the highly complex interplay between language and culture in the transition period between the fourteenth and sixteenth centuries. Science in Translation Maeve

Olohan, Myriam Salama-Carr, 2014-04-08. Despite the crucial role played by translation in the history of scientific ideas and the transmission of knowledge, historians of science have seldom been interested in the translation activity which enabled the spread of those ideas and exerted influence on structures and systems of knowledge. Translation scholars too have traditionally shown little interest in theorizing scientific translation. Recent conceptualizations of science as public culture, institution, narrative and rhetorical practice open the way for research on the translation of science to take conceptual and methodological inspiration from studies of discourse, rhetoric, the sociology of science, the history of science, the philosophy of science and other related fields. This special issue of The Translator foregrounds the work of researchers within or on the periphery of translation studies who have begun to interrogate the representation of scientific knowledge through translation. Drawing on a wide range of disciplines and models, contributors engage with different perspectives and approaches to help promote the visibility of scientific translation and shed light on its complex relationship with power and the construction of knowledge. Contributors: Brecht Algoet, Karen Bennett, Lidia Camara, Eva Espasa, Lieve Joonen, Monika Krein, Kihle Min Hsiu Liao, Ruselle Meade, Guy Rooryck, Dolores Sánchez Hala, Sharkas Mark, Shuttleworth, Richard Somerset, Liselotte

Vandenbussche, Sonia Vandepitte. Paradigms, Poetics, and Politics of Conversion. Jan N. Bremmer, Wout Jac. van Bakkum, Arie L. Molendijk, 2006. In the terms of Durheimian sociology, conversion is a fait social. Although they are rarely treated as a cultural phenomenon, conversions can obviously be examined for the norms, values and presuppositions of the cultures in which they take place. Thus, conversion can help us to shed light on a particular culture. At the same time, the term evokes a dramatic appeal that suggests a kind of suddenness, although in most cases conversion implies a more gradual process of establishing and defining a new religious identity. From 21-24 May 2003, the University of Groningen hosted an international conference on Cultures of Conversion. The contributions have been edited in two volumes which pay special attention to the modes of language and idiom in conversion literature, the meaning and sense of religious ideological discourse the variety of rhetorical tropes and the effects of the conversion narrative with allusions to religious or political conventions and idealizations The present volume contains theoretical contributions on the theory of conversion with special attention to the rational choice theory and on the history of research into conversion It also offers stimulating case studies ranging from the late Middle Ages to present times and taken from Germany Great Britain and The Netherlands The other volume Cultures of Conversion offers in depth studies of conversion that are mainly taken from the history of India Islam and Judaism ranging from the Byzantine period to the new Muslimas of the West
