Writing, Geometry and Space in Seventeenth-Century England and America Jess Edwards, 2018-12-07 The early modern map has come to mark the threshold of modernity cutting through the layered customs of Medieval parochialism with its clean expansive geometries Re thinking the role played by mathematics and cartography in the English seventeenth century this book argues that the cultural currency of mathematics was as unstable in the period as that of England's controversial enclosures and plantations Reviewing evidence from a wide range of literary and scientific courtly and pragmatic texts Edwards suggests that its unstable currency rendered mathematics necessarily rhetorical subject to constant re negotiation Yet he also finds a powerful flexibility in this weakness Mathematized texts from masques to maps negotiated a contemporary ambivalence between Calvinist asceticism and humanist engagement Their authors promoted themselves as artful guides between virtue and profit the study and the marketplace This multi disciplinary work will be of interest to all disciplines affected by the recent spatial turn in early modern cultural studies and particularly to students and researchers in literature history and geography

The Perception of the Environment Tim Ingold, 2000 An integrated approach to understanding how people live learn work in and perceive their environments

The Publishers' Trade List Annual, 1881

Canadian Environmental History David Freeland Duke, 2006 A timely work this book showcases articles by leading Canadian and international historians interested in environmental action and policy including Colin M Coates Ramsay Cooke Ken Cruikshank and Donald Worster

Gender, Identity and Place Linda McDowell, 1999-01-01 How is gender linked to geography Do men and women live different lives in different parts of the world And if gendered attributes are socially constructed then how do femininity and masculinity vary over time and space These are some the questions Linda McDowell explores in this accessible wide ranging and thorough introduction to feminist perspectives on geography

Early Childhood Education Moncrieff Cochran, Rebecca S. New, 2007-01-30 Early childhood education has reached a level of unprecedented national and international focus Parents policy makers and politicians have opinions as well as new questions about what how when and where young children should learn Teachers and program administrators now find curriculum discussions linked to dramatic new understandings about children's early learning and brain development Early childhood education is also a major topic of concern internationally as social policy analysts point to its role in a nation's future economic outlook As a groundbreaking contribution to its field this four volume handbook discusses key historical and contemporary issues research theoretical perspectives national policies and practices

Mapping the Invisible Landscape Kent C. Ryden, 1993 Any landscape has an unseen component a subjective component of experience memory and narrative which people familiar with the place understand to be an integral part of its geography but which outsiders may not suspect the existence of. Unless they listen and read carefully this invisible landscape is made visible through stories and these stories are the focus of this engrossing book. Traveling across the invisible landscape in which we imaginatively dwell, Kent Ryden is himself a most careful listener and reader. He asks the following questions: What categories of meaning do we read into our surroundings? What forms of expression serve as the most reliable maps to understanding those meanings? Our sense of any place, he argues, consists of a deeply ingrained experiential knowledge of its physical makeup, an awareness of its communal and personal history, a sense of our identity as being inextricably bound up with its events and ways of life, and an emotional reaction, positive or negative, to its meanings and memories. Ryden demonstrates that both folk and literary narratives about place bear a striking thematic and stylistic resemblance. Accordingly, Mapping the Invisible Landscape examines both kinds of narratives. For his oral materials, Ryden provides an in-depth analysis of narratives collected in the Coeur d'Alene mining district in the Idaho panhandle; for his consideration of written works, he explores the OC essay of place, the personal essay which takes as its subject a particular place and a writer's relationship to that place. Drawing on methods and materials from geography, folklore, and literature, Mapping the Invisible Landscape offers a broadly interdisciplinary analysis of the way we situate ourselves imaginatively in the landscape, the way we inscribe its surface with stories. Written in an extremely engaging style, this book will lead its readers to an awareness of the vital role that a sense of place plays in the formation of local cultures, to an understanding of the many layered ways in which place interacts with individual lives, and to renewed appreciation of the places in their own lives and landscapes. Intending the World Ralph Pettman, 2008-03-15 How we look at the world is informed mainly by our assumptions and the ways in which we rationalise them. Seldom do we rely or allow ourselves to rely on gut thinking or intuition. Intending the World shows how rationalism, which is our primary approach in thinking about world affairs, is in crisis. By studying the world rationalistically, we objectify it and we look at it as detached from ourselves. But in doing so, we cease to see that we are using a perspective that limits as well as enlightens. In a disciplinary first, Ralph Pettman provides an account of twenty-first century international relations in terms of phenomenology, one of the main philosophical attempts to compensate for these limits. He explores how this re-embedded use of reason can successfully describe and explain world affairs in ways unused by rationalists. Intending the World follows the lead of the German philosopher Edmund Husserl. It looks at the world not only in terms of things in themselves but also in terms of why it is we keep willing the world the way we do.
