The Female Circumcision Controversy Ellen Gruenbaum, 2015-03-17 To the Western eye there is something jarringly incongruous even shocking about the image of a six year old girl being held down by loving relatives so that her genitals can be cut Yet two million girls experience this each year Most Westerners upon learning of the practice of female circumcision have responded with outrage those committed to improving the status of women have gone beyond outrage to action by creating various programs for eradicating the practice But few understand the real life complexities families face in deciding whether to follow the traditional practices or to take the risk of change In The Female Circumcision Controversy Ellen Gruenbaum points out that Western outrage and Western efforts to stop genital mutilation often provoke a strong backlash from people in the countries where the practice is common She looks at the validity of Western arguments against the practice In doing so she explores both outsider and insider perspectives on female circumcision concentrating particularly on the complex attitudes of the individuals and groups who practice it and on indigenous efforts to end it Gruenbaum finds that the criticisms of outsiders are frequently simplistic and fail to appreciate the diversity of cultural contexts the complex meanings and the conflicting responses to change Drawing on over five years of fieldwork in Sudan where the most severe forms of genital surgery are common Gruenbaum shows that the practices of female circumcision are deeply embedded in Sudanese cultural traditions in religious moral and aesthetic values and in ideas about class ethnicity and gender Her research illuminates both the resistance to and the acceptance of change She shows that change is occurring as the result of economic and social developments the influences of Islamic activists the work of Sudanese health educators and the efforts of educated African women That does not mean that there is no role for outsiders Gruenbaum asserts and she offers suggestions for those who wish to help facilitate change By presenting specific cultural contexts and human experiences with a deep knowledge of the tremendous variation of the practice and meaning of female circumcision Gruenbaum provides an insightful analysis of the process of changing this complex highly debated practice

Compromised Bodies Sarah O'Neill, 2025-03-25 This ethnography unravels the continuing political tensions surrounding Senegal's 1999 national ban on female genital mutilation The Senegalese parliament authorized a national ban on Female Genital Mutilation in 1999 Because only a third of the Senegalese population practiced female genital cutting FGC at the time policy makers did not expect that the new law would cause controversy or provoke commotion Yet in Fouta Toro and among Fulani who traditionally practiced FGC the response to the new law was fury and frustrations often turned violent More than a decade after the ban Fouta Toro was considered the most difficult region for anti FGC activists both from inside and outside the government Tires were burned international NGO delegates were threatened and activists publicly speaking out against the practice were religiously condemned Animosity toward the ban remains palpable in the region to this day The ban many but not all locals say is nothing other than an overt act of Western cultural imperialism imposed on their community For these individuals resisting the ban is critical for maintaining the autonomy and integrity of a traditional way of life And from the outside opposition to the law and NGOs can seem unified However anthropologist Sarah O'Neill discovers that on the ground there are tensions between those who oppose the ban and those who support it even as that support is nuanced and often complicated This ethnography unravels the continuing political tensions surrounding both national and international interventions in Fouta Toro and in Senegal that place protection of the female body at the center of their concerns By way of the many stories of ordinary women and men caught up in debates around the value of the practice and meaning of FGC Compromised Bodies reveals the personal struggles and difficult decisions Fulani face be they traditional cutters religious leaders mothers husbands divorced women or anti FGC activists

The Family in Question R. D. Grillo, 2008 The family lives of immigrants and ethnic minority populations have become central to arguments about the right and wrong ways of living in multicultural societies While the characteristic cultural practices of such families have long been scrutinized by the media and policy makers these groups themselves are beginning to reflect on how to manage their family relationships Exploring case studies from Austria the Netherlands Norway Portugal Spain Switzerland the United Kingdom and Australia The Family in Question explores how those in public policy often dangerously reflect the popular imagination rather than recognizing the complex changes taking place within the global immigrant community In hoeverre alloctonen vrij zijn hun cultuur te uiten in de multiculturele samenleving staat bijna dagelijks ter discussie in de media en politiek Vaak wordt vergeten dat ook migrantenfamilies zelf worstelen om hun tradities en gebruiken vorm te geven in een pluriforme samenleving waarin relaties met familie zeer complex kunnen zijn In The Family Question worden migrantenfamilies in onder andere Nederland Oostenrijk en Noorwegen onderzocht Hieruit blijkt dat spelers op het vlak van beleidsvorming vaak toegeven aan populaire misverstanden over alloctonen en zo bijdragen aan de heersende xenofobie en stereotypering van immigranten
